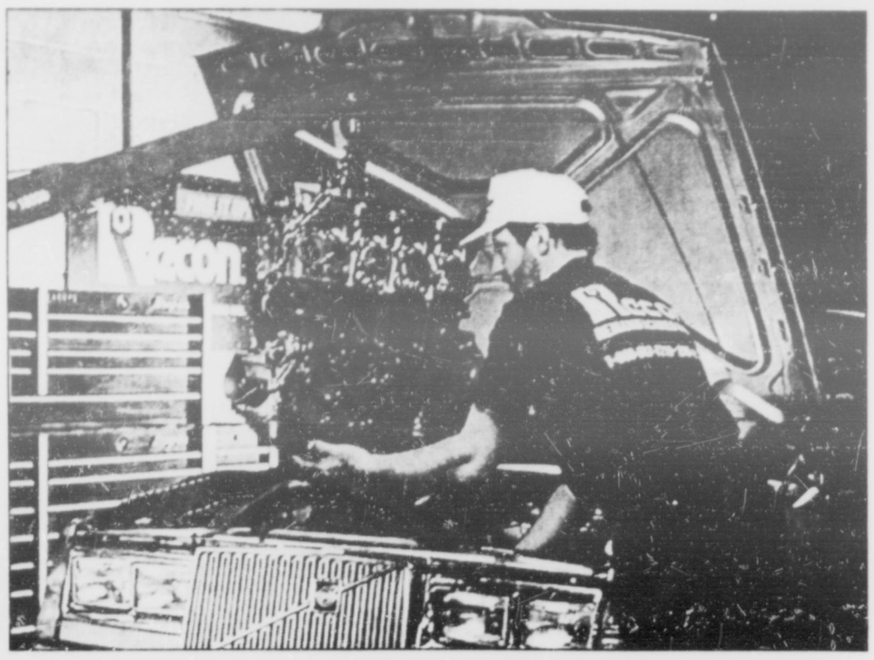
Giving New Life To An Old Auto

Getting ready to trade that old car you love? There's another option many people don't consider: a remanufactured engine to give it new life.

The fact is that cars are built much better than they were a decade or two ago. They don't rust out and their parts and accessories last longer. A fresh engine can give your car 50,000 to 100,000 extra miles.



A remanufactured engine can give an old car 50,000 extra miles.

Remanufactured Engine Basics

Just what is a remanufactured engine?

"A quality remanufactured engine isn't just an old engine that's taken apart and cleaned," explains Vincent Mancini, CEO of Recon Automotive Remanufacturers, Inc. in Philadelphia, one of the nation's largest remanufacturers. "Every single component, down to an individual valve, is carefully inspected and then either brought back to original equipment (O.E.) specs or replaced with a new or remanufactured part.

"When the engine is reassembled, it has been brought back to the same performance as when it was originally manufactured, with all the latest improvements, better fuel mileage and less pollution than the old motor," the Recon executive continues. Recon produces more than 300 remanufactured engines every day, distributing them all over the United States. Each one is individually tested on a spin tester before shipment.

A Sound Option

A professionally remanufactured engine can cost $2,000 to $4,000 installed, depending on the number of cylinders and whether it is domestic or an import. That's as little as ten percent of the cost of a new car. Remanufactured engines are easy to buy, too: most auto repair shops will sell and install quality remanufactured engines and even warrant them.

"More people should look at remanufactured engines," says Mancini. "The average car in the United States today is more than seven years old; the average truck more than eight. Remanufactured engines can extend a car's life for years."

Ladies, What Letter Are You?

In 1970 the Jackson Five recorded the hit single, ABC. The little girls who knew all of the lyrics now are grown women with children of their own. They drive the family taxi and are often responsible for its maintenance. Yet few of them realize that today the letters ABC are used in a different, more important context by the automotive service industry.

ABC (D and F) are used by many repair facilities to characterize their customers. Service providers strive to develop good, solid "A"clients. These are people who have developed a relationship with the shop. They trust the shop's staff and their recommendations. They are loyal and polite, and they pay their bills. They know the service writer's name and he/she knows theirs. They refer new business. Finally, "A" customers are understanding. If the service provider makes a mistake, the client calls it to their attention and the shop takes care of it.

At the other end of the spectrum is the "F" customer. These folks are know-it-all, one time customers who argue about almost everything during the repair process. They want their work done immediately and they want it done for next to nothing. These people don't understand the difference between a greasy hole and a clean, professional repair facility with skilled technicians and cutting edge equipment. Finally, the "F" customer takes no responsibility for his terribly maintained vehicle.

At first glance, this classification system may seem to play favorites and deal harshly with the ill-mannered motorists of the world. But upon closer inspection, the strategy of classifying customers is not only good business, it reveals an opportunity for the savvy motorist.

For example, assume you are an "A" customer at "Bill's Auto Repair." Would you want Bill spending a lot of time with a loud mouthed, motorist who refuses to listen to the diagnosis? Chances are you'd be happy to see Bill show this jerk to the door and get started on your car. After all, haven't you been a customer for 12 years? And hasn't Bill performed every bit of maintenance and repair work on all of your family cars? And don't you rave about his shop to all of your friends?

That's the point. You are an "A" customer, and chances are, Bill knows it. He'll go the extra mile for you. More than once he's squeezed your car ahead of other customers when you had to pick up the kids at 3:00. And remember the time the family was on vacation and the steering wheel locked up? You called Bill, and he explained how to remedy the situation.

You get to take advantage of special promotions because you're on his mailing list. With the cost of postage and printing, do you think he sends those mailers to everybody?

So this ABC idea isn't such a bad method, after all. But how can you get on and stay on the "A" list? First, become a better maintainer of your vehicle. Understand that scheduled maintenance is part of owning a vehicle, no matter how new or how old. Find a repair facility that comes highly recommended and develop a relationship with them. Treat them with respect. And finally, if they do something wrong, give them the opportunity to make it right. Most shops understand that it's easier to keep a current customer than to develop a new one.

Failed Belt Can Stop You Short

Unless your car is a vintage model, it most likely has a serpentine drive belt.

A serpentine belt is just what the name implies — a continuous loop belt that snakes its way through and around the engine compartment to drive power to accessories like the air conditioner, power steering, water pump and alternator.

It's definitely worth it to have this drive belt checked periodically, according to engineers at The Gates Rubber Company. If it fails, the engine will overheat, and worse, the car just won't run.

Generally, the serpentine belt should be replaced every four years, or whenever it shows any of the following signs of excessive wear:

* If the sides are slick or glazed, it could slip or cause overheating.

* If the V-grooves on the underside have excessive cracks or if chucks are missing, the belt will run rough.

* If there is grease buildup or oil contamination, the belt will soften and eventually rot.

* If the top cover has cracks or splits, it could separate and fail.

Most serpentine belts are fairly accessible at the front of the engine. As soon as you spot any indications of failure, have the belt replaced immediately. At the very least, ask your technician to look at the belt while the car is being serviced this spring.

How To Protect Yourself From Buying A Lemon

If you've purchased a used vehicle in the past, you may have first taken it to an automotive mechanic to have it checked out. That's a great idea that can save you from "buyer's remorse," but there's actually one other step you may want to consider.

Many auto body or collision repair facilities also offer a "pre-purchase" check of used vehicles. This service, for which there may be a fee, can help determine if there is unrepaired or poorly repaired previous damage that could impact the vehicle's value, safety or performance.

"A qualified, well-trained collision repair facility can restore both the look and performance of even a badly damaged vehicle," says Tom Mack, Executive Vice President and CEO of I-CAR®, the leading provider of collision repair training. "And that repair facility can also determine if a vehicle that may look shiny and great to the average consumer actually has had substandard or unsafe repair work done."

In some cases, a used vehicle that looks like a great bargain is actually a "rebuilt" vehicle that had been declared a total loss after an accident. Possibly the vehicle was damaged by water in a flooded area. A vehicle that has been severely damaged or totaled can be repaired properly, but not all of them are. Having it checked out by a reputable collision repair business could help you avoid surprises after the purchase has been completed. Those surprises can include paint that begins to peel, electrical problems, wheels that cannot be aligned, a trunk or window seal that leaks - or worse yet, structural damage or an air bag system that hasn't been restored to work properly.

While the collision repair facility can do a thorough inspection of a vehicle, there are a number of things consumers can do when checking out a used vehicle:

* Check for a musty smell - an indication of water leak problems or flood damage - inside the car and trunk.

* Make sure your test drive includes a stretch of flat, straight highway. If the car "pulls" or if the steering feels "sloppy," there could be suspension damage that has not been properly repaired. Uneven tire wear may also indicate suspension problems.

* Look at the vehicle's paint from different angles, preferably in good light, when the vehicle is clean and dry. Compare the color match between panels. Run your hand along the door jambs and the hood and trunk jambs. If they feel rough or look dull rather than shiny, the vehicle may have been painted poorly or without these areas properly masked. A bad paint job is not dangerous, but it might not hold up well and may be covering poor quality repair work. This could also result in paint peeling problems later on.

* Ask about the vehicle's history. Whenever possible, check with previous owners to find out if it was ever involved in a major collision or totaled for any reason. Vehicle histories are also available to the potential buyer from several information providers. If it was, you should have a qualified repair facility make sure it has been repaired properly.

* Look for fluid leaks on the underside of the vehicle, on the engine or transmission or on the ground beneath the vehicle. Look thoroughly for corrosion on all areas of the vehicle.

Just as you spend some time choosing the right vehicle to purchase, it's a good idea to spend some time choosing the right collision repair business - whether you need a repair facility to check out a used vehicle you're considering for purchase, or you need collision repair work done.

In choosing a repair facility, look for evidence that their technicians have been properly trained. Many insurance companies and repair facility associations recommend you look for a business that has earned the "I-CAR® Gold Class Professionals®" designation. This designation indicates that a repair facility's employees have completed a substantial amount of training. They are up-to-date in collision repair knowledge and technology. I-CAR training covers virtually every step of the repair process. This includes analyzing the damage, structural repair processes, corrosion protection, matching your vehicle's paint finish, and checking safety features like air bags, seat belts and anti-lock braking systems. The company established the Gold Class Professionals designation to help consumers identify repair facilities that have invested in proper training.

For the location of an I-CAR Gold Class Professionals business near you, call (800) ICAR-USA.

Alternative Fuel Is A Reality

With America's energy policy being batted around like a political tennis ball, questions concerning the validity of alternative fueled and hybrid vehicles are becoming more prevalent. The problem, says the Car Care Council, is not with the fuels or the vehicles, but with public perception.

"Americans seem to have a stereotype of energy efficient vehicles that are not powered by fossil fuels," says Donna Wagner, president of the Council. "They think these cars have a top speed of 30 mph and an extension cords. That's not how it works in the new millennium."

While Wagner admits that consumers will become more interested and better educated about these advances, she thinks that initially, car manufacturers and consumers will be engaged in a game of Truth or Dare.

"The manufacturers are going to have to be very truthful about their product claims," she explains. "And the motorists who invest in these products will have to dare to be among the first using the new technology.

Just as the cassette tape was better than the 8-track, one or more of these systems probably will become the norm.

The big question is, 'Which one?' One thing is for certain, folks will continue to be skeptical until they see their neighbor driving a hybrid vehicle or a truck powered by hydrogen."

Other fuels that provide an alternative to fossil fuels include:

- Biodiesel
- Electric Fuel
- Ethanol
- Hydrogen
- Methanol
- Natural Gas (CNG/LNG)
- Propane (LPG)
- P-Series
- Solar Fuel

Avoid Overheating By Checking Cooling System, Engine For Leaks

When your car's cooling system fails, the engine overheats. And when the engine overheats for a very long time, metal parts can become seriously damaged and require expensive repair.

Most often, overheating results when the coolant level is too low or when there is a leak in the system. During the summer, just driving in stop-and-go traffic or hauling a car loaded with vacation baggage and gear on a hot day with the air conditioner running is enough to overheat the engine.

Coolant Loss

According to engineers at The Gates Rubber Company, a low coolant level leads to overheating because there isn't enough fluid in the system to absorb the engine's heat. The air in the system that is absorbing these high temperatures is a poor heat conductor and won't do an effective job of transferring the heat to the radiator.

Cars, pickups and SUV's have white-colored coolant recovery tanks that have markings on the tank indicating where coolant levels should be when the car is running and when it's not. If the coolant level is low after repeated fillings, you probably have a leak in the system.

Coolant Hose Leaks

Hoses are the most likely source of leaks because they are structurally the weakest components of the cooling system. Hoses must be flexible to absorb vibration, so they are made of rubber compounds. Rubber, unfortunately, is not as durable as metal.

According to Gates, intense engine heat can harden and crack even the best rubber; oil can soften and swell it; the simple passage of time can break down a hose's internal bonding; and electrochemical degradation can crack the tube.

Four years of field tests on fleet vehicles show that electrochemical degradation of the hose tube is by far the most frequent reason for cooling system hose failure. The condition eventually will produce a pinhole leak or will cause the hose to burst before it has reached its expected service life.

Hose and liquid coolant (water and ethylene-glycol antifreeze) exist in an environment that forms an electrical path between two metal connectors like the engine and the cooling system radiator.

The most common cause of roadside breakdowns is a failed cooling system, according to the nation's motor club companies. Before the summer driving season begins, Gates Rubber Company engineers recommend that the liquid coolant and all engine hoses be inspected to ensure adequate service life.

This causes micro-cracks within the hose tube which allow the coolant to attack the hose reinforcement. It eventually weakens the yarn material. Accelerated by high under-the-hood temperature and constant flexing, the hose could rupture or leak under normal pressure.

Replace Old Hoses

Gates recommends a safe service life of four years for all coolant carrying hoses, especially the upper radiator and bypass hoses.

After four years, Gates explains, the incidence of hose failure increases sharply to the point where motorists should consider having the hoses replaced to avoid highway problems. In many instances, hose leaks occur at faulty connections to the inlet and outlet pipes. Make certain the hose clamps are secure. When replacing a hose, it's also a good idea to replace the clamps. Traditional worm-drive clamps or the new, thermoplastic heat-shrink clamps work best.

While you are having the hoses replaced and the cooling system serviced this spring, ask your technician to check for other coolant leak paths. Fluid-loss problems may also be attributed to leaks at the water pump, radiator assembly, radiator cap, or engine drain plugs.

Maintenance Is Important

"Vehicle maintenance deserves a lot more attention than it gets in most driver education curricula," claims Rich Davis, VP of Marketing for the Car Care Council. He should know. Being responsible for statistical feedback from National Car Care Month check lanes, as well as information accumulated from the Council's Certified Inspection program, Davis finds an alarming number of vehicles that need maintenance and repair.

"Worn or improperly adjusted drive belts are found on one out of four vehicles inspected in National Car Care Month check lanes and in our Certified Inspection results," he says. "Equally high on the failure list are cooling system hoses which, of course, are made of rubber.

"These components can let you down without warning and you're stranded. We believe more attention needs to be directed to these aspects of car care in every type of driver education. Vehicle owners of all ages need to be made more aware of what's going on under the hood and around the vehicle. New drivers, and especially the elderly, whose health could be at risk when stranded in extreme temperatures, need to be more aware of what's at stake when maintenance is neglected.

"Anyone, regardless of age or gender, is in jeopardy in the event of a breakdown on the road, especially in bad weather. We're never too old to learn the practice of good vehicle maintenance."

For this reason, Car Care Council emphasizes the importance of regular checks of those parts which are most susceptible to insidious deterioration, the kind you're unaware of until it's too late. Under-the-hood rubber components such as drive belts and hoses are notorious for sudden, even disastrous, failure on the open road.

"Suddenly you'll see these warning lights turning on and feel a change in the power steering. The air conditioner won't put out cold air and soon the engine will begin overheating.

"It can be scary," warns Davis. "You have no choice but to turn off the ignition key before matters get worse. On most cars the alternator, the power steering pump, the water pump that cools the engine and the air conditioner compressor run off one belt."

The single belt found on later model vehicles runs from pulley to pulley, driving each of these components and more.

Once it fails, you don't go very far.

An engine literally will self destruct when a hose breaks, causing the loss of all coolant. There seldom are warning signs of marginal belts or hoses other than a close visual inspection.

Hoses carry antifreeze-coolant at 17 pounds of pressure and at temperatures far above that of boiling water. Like the arteries leading to our hearts, they've got to be good. When they are not, the stakes are high.

Frequent checking of antifreeze-coolant, engine oil, power steering fluid, transmission fluid and brake fluid should be a car owner's responsibility.

The Council offers a free pamphlet outlining what should be checked when your car is inspected. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. SPE1-XI, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Paying Attention Is Crucial

You're sitting in a restaurant next to someone on a cellular phone. The man is talking to his wife. While annoying, the conversation holds your attention. With the help of her Global Positioning System (GPS) she's on her way to the restaurant.

Even though the conversation is one-sided, you figure out that their kids in the back seat are arguing about whether to watch a DVD on the built-in TV or play computer games. They do both.

The conversation on which you're eavesdropping is interrupted by a call from a secretary who's about to fax him on his other phone. It's a contract to be signed and returned at once. This all happens right there, in the restaurant, while you're eating your salad.

This is not Buck Rogers (circa 1939) in the 25th century. This scenario, or a similar one, may be going on somewhere in the U.S.A. while you're reading this.

Hurrying toward the restaurant, Mom and her kids are endangered by distractions. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety says improper use of the car phone, using the tape deck or eating while driving are common errors. In fact, according to a report from The New England Journal of Medicine, the risk of an accident quadruples when using a car phone.

Some of us spend so much time on the road, our vehicle becomes an extension of our home. We adapt to this lifestyle, which works fine so long as conditions are favorable. Unfortunately, such conditions as heavy traffic or poor visibility can amplify the effects of distractions, warns the Car Care Council. Good lighting and properly adjusted mirrors help reduce the hazard under stressful driving conditions. In rainy weather, when driving is especially dangerous, the importance of optimum vision is critical.

Mom and her passengers arrived safely at the restaurant, but not before distractions in the parking lot almost caused her to back into another car. The collision was averted when her back-up radar alert sounded its warning. Isn't technology grand?

Safety Features Reduce Injuries

Are you getting as much added benefit as you could from your vehicle's air bag or anti-lock brake system? Understanding just a few key points about these popular safety features may reduce the injuries that you and your passengers receive during a collision.

A study by the Highway Loss Data Institute found that many drivers don't know how to use the anti-lock braking systems to reduce the frequency or the costs of vehicle collisions resulting in insurance claims. Before the development of ABS, drivers were taught to "pump" their brakes, especially on wet, icy, or other slippery roads. ABS does the pumping for you. ABS uses electronic controls to maintain wheel rotation under hard braking that would otherwise lock a vehicle's wheels. Keeping the wheels rotating increases the vehicle's steering and braking, especially when tire/roadway friction is reduced, such as when the pavement is wet.

"Do not pump the brakes-pumping the brakes discards all the benefits of ABS," says Dr. Leonard Evans, principal research scientist at General Motors. "The way to avoid traffic crashes is to drive carefully and allow generous safety margins, so that you avoid situations requiring hard or emergency braking.

However, if you are in a situation calling for emergency braking, and your vehicle has ABS, apply firm, steady pressure to the brake pedal, and continue to apply it until the emergency is resolved. The ABS system will pump the brakes for you. This reduces the risk of your vehicle skidding out of control, and it increases your ability to steer the vehicle."

The lifesaving ability of air bags in a collision has been well documented. What many drivers might not think about is the importance of having the air-bag system serviced by properly trained professionals after it has deployed.

An air bag cannot be "repacked" after it has deployed. In fact, the air bag and many of the system's parts are not "repairable" and must be replaced. The parts are designed for each specific vehicle. For the system to function correctly if the vehicle is involved in another collision, the proper parts must be purchased and installed by a qualified technician.

If you are buying a used vehicle that has an air bag, ask if it has ever been deployed and, if so, where the system was replaced. If the air bag in your own vehicle has deployed, make sure it is replaced by qualified technicians.

According to Tom Mack, executive vice president of I-CAR, a not-for-profit international collision repair training organization, "It is necessary to do your homework and locate a collision repair business that has invested in proper training. I-CAR provides certificates of completion to all students who have attended I-CAR courses. We suggest they display the certificates to help consumers choose between repair businesses."

I-CAR offers more than a dozen training courses covering every aspect of the repair process, including air bags, anti-lock brake systems, paint matching, and proper welding techniques. There are nearly 3,000 businesses internationally that have earned the I-CAR Gold Class Professionals™ designation. It signifies that a high percentage of the business' technicians and management are I-CAR trained. I-CAR established the Gold Class designation to help consumers identify businesses that have invested in proper training. By re-qualifying for the Gold Class designation every year, collision repair businesses, insurance claims offices, and other Collision Industry-related businesses demonstrate their commitment to the I-CAR philosophy of restoring vehicles to their pre-accident condition.

To All The Cars I've Loved Before

by David Foster

Dear 1960 Volkswagen bug,

Hello, remember me? I sure remember you and those 33 or 38 horses (they all run together now) you kept under your hood in the back. My aunt brought you in Ethiopia while stationed there in the Army, and loved you so much she shipped you home when transferred back to the states. It sure was something getting you started, going back to the engine and touching two wires together my dad rigged up when your ignition went toes up. Still, you were a blast . . . a blast of hot air on the feet all summer, and cold air all winter. Do you remember when I loaded five or six of us in you during snowstorms and went out to play in parking lots late at night, turning doughnut after doughnut in the falling snow? And the time the cop came upon us, so I turned off the engine and the lights and told everybody to be quiet in an attempt to hide from the law—although the rest of the parking lot was completely deserted? And how about my first girlfriend and I visiting in your comfy confines on New Year's Eve parked under the Whitehurst Freeway in Georgetown all those many years ago? I couldn't be that flexible again if I tried . . . and I don't think my wife would go for that even if I brought up the idea. After you were gone the last time I saw you a young man had jacked up your rear end, presumably to keep it from bouncing off the pavement when he blasted those speakers he had installed that took up the entire passenger compartment.

Dear 1969 Plymouth Valiant,

Yes, you had the look of a "go-to store-and-church-only" senior citizen sedan on the outside (and no radio to boot!), but you purred like a tiger on the highway. Your three-on-a-tree manual transmission was connected to 340-V8, a much larger engine than the standard Slant 6 of your breed. The engine was ordered from the factory by my uncle, who obviously thought my aunt needed to get to and from the store and church in a hurry. And boy, could you hurry! What a mistake to let you go, but my other uncle gave me a Don Corleonesque "offer you can't refuse on my next car, a . . . .

Dear 1986 Ford LTD,

Hey ya tuna boat, how ya doing? Big, battleship gray, and the ultimate in luxury, you were the first car I had with cloth seats; therefore you were also had the first car seat I burned a hole in between my legs as I was trying to look cool smoking a cigar. Cruise control, what a country! You took me on several 1,000-mile drives to the old family farm in Missouri, stopping only for fuel, coffee, and lots of pee breaks. You were quite a sight oozing down the dirt lanes of southeast Missouri, your windshield broken by stones tossed up by pickup trucks that rode by high up out of harm's way. And the jokes—Ford="Fix Or Repair Daily," or "Found On Roadside Dead"—hah! I donated you to the Cancer Society, but by the time I did that you were more suited to medical experiments than for use a mode of transportation.

Dear Japanese-made vehicles,

You are what I drive now, all in the neighborhood of 100,000 miles or more (much more) on the odometers. You are so efficient, and never have any quirks or pose any real problems. I hate you.

Belt Drive Tensioner

There are more than 100 million vehicles using an automatic tensioner on the accessory belt drive system of the modern car engine, estimate engineers at The Gates Rubber Company.

The tensioner is a spring-loaded device that exerts a constant pressure on the serpentine engine belt. Critical accessories like the generator/alternator, power-steering pump and air conditioner are driven off of this belt. The automatic tensioner reduces maintenance because it eliminates the need to periodically retighten the belts and it improves belt life because it assures that the drive has the ideal tension.

Like other engine components, a tensioner will wear or fail. Gates says car owners should listen for symptoms that may indicate impending failure of the tensioner, its pulleys or the serpentine belt. A high-pitched whine, squeal or chirping sound coming from the engine compartment is cause for immediate inspection of the drive system.

There is no need to go to a car dealer for service. Auto repair shops that carry Gates cooling system products can install a new tensioner that is equivalent to the original equipment part in fit and performance. If the belt tensioner has not been serviced since you bought the car, have it inspected this spring before the summer driving season.

High-Visibility Products Protect Against Theft

There is something about the lure of a new car to a prospective buyer. The pristine shine of the paint, the untouched interior and that intoxicating "new" smell are powerful draws. A new vehicle parked in the driveway usually attracts a certain measure of attention from neighbors and passers by, and the car owner feels an inflated sense of pride over having a sparkling new treasure. There are certain responsibilities involved with owning a car that reach beyond the standard upkeep of the vehicle. Protecting it from theft is one of them.

To the eyes of a would-be thief, your new car stands out among all of the other, "slightly-worn" vehicles on the block, and therefore can be a likely target for theft. Foreign cars are among the highest stolen vehicles, due mostly to the higher cost of their parts. If a thief decides to steal an import, the collective gain on selling the parts individually can often result in a sum far greater than the cost of the car. It is therefore important to include an anti-theft device in your list of requirements for new-car accessories.

The Club® Series has long been a popular way to protect your car from break-ins. The anti-theft device is a very visual deterrent that is available at an affordable price. Because of its popularity, the Club® brand has become synonymous with automotive security.

For more than three decades, the Club® vehicle anti-theft devices have brought consumers peace of mind when leaving their vehicles unattended. There are many varieties of the product to fit your needs. Designer Clubs® for Cars and Trucks offer the following features: fashionable pink, purple, white, teal and blue color availability (blue and purple only for trucks); new and improved, solid steel hooks for greater security, cro-moly steel construction to resist sawing, prying, hammering and freon attacks; recommendation by the Fraternal Order of Police; and an anti-theft guarantee for up to $500 (US). The Club® LX, The Sport Utility Club® LX and The Premier Club® offer consumers added security features like specialized keys and locks that further resist picking, glow-in-the-dark features for added visibility and self-locking mechanisms as an added safety precaution.

The company's success has recently provided the opportunity to expand security services and transfer the Club® brand name over to other convenient forms of affordable mechanical security requirements.

Newly launched is the Club® Automotive Security Series™, including The Club® Brand Cable Locks - four security cables made of tough braided steel that is inner woven for superior protection. Whether consumers choose from a cable with combination lock included, a spare tire lock or a heavy-duty security cable, items like bicycles, campers, spare tires, hub caps and the like can also be protected by the company's well-recognized brand. More convenient than steel chains, the conspicuous red vinyl coating deters would-be thieves and protects articles from scratches and scrapes.

Woman Charged With Attempted Murder, Assault

A Swanton woman has been charged with attempted murder and numerous other charges after she allegedly tried to run over her husband Saturday evening, according to the Oakland Police Department.

Marilyn Marie Storey, 46, is also charged with first degree assault, second degree assault, reckless endangerment, malicious destruction of property less than $500, and two counts of malicious destruction of property greater than $500.

Oakland police responded to the parking lot of the Oakland Elks Lodge around 10:05 p.m. to investigate an incident involving Storey and her husband. From information gathered at the scene, police determined that Storey had allegedly struck a 1996 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, which was parked in the parking lot, with her 2001 Jeep.

Her husband was on the motorcycle at the time. According to the report, he dismounted the motorcycle, at which time Storey rammed the motorcycle two more times, breaking a wooden guardrail and pushing the motorcycle through the guardrail.

Storey then allegedly attempted to strike him with the vehicle, police said. He was able to get over the guardrail as the Jeep crashed into and partially through the railing.

Police later located Storey at her residence and arrested her without incident. She was released Sunday on a $5,000 bond.

DNR NABS BEAR NEAR COLLEGE — A Department of Natural Resources crew operating out of the Mt. Nebo Wildlife and Heritage office successfully trapped this 2½-year-old, 233-pound male black bear Tuesday night in the yard of a McHenry-area residence. On Saturday night a bear, possibly this same bruin, pulled out the screen of a window at the home and crawled into the kitchen, apparently attracted by a the scent emanating from a partially opened trash compactor under the sink. The bear broke off the kitchen sink faucet as he crawled through the window, causing the floor to flood, and strewed trash about inside before exiting through the same window. (Luckily, no one was home at the time.) The DNR crew, composed of Clarissa Harris, left, Harry Spiker, and Terry DeWitt (along with not pictured members Larry Crawford and Steve Bittner), set up a bear trap in a side yard and had this anesthetisized prey in hand by yesterday morning. After running a series of medical tests, ear-tagging, and weighing the animal, they released it back into the woods, pelting it with rubber buckshot in an attempt at adverse conditioning. With luck this will convince the bear that this is not a place to go roaming for food. The home is located in the Mosser Road area approximately 2½ miles east of Garrett Community College. More photos with accompanying information will appear in next week's issue of The Republican.

Jurors Exonorate Friendsville Man In Yough Drowning Case

A Friendsville man who faced charges of manslaughter and reckless endangerment in connection with the April 28, 2000, drowning of his fishing partner on the Youghiogheny River Lake was found not guilty by a Garrett County Circuit Court jury Friday.

Mark J. Johnston, 43, had been arrested by Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives in September after a prolonged investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Gary Lee Swift, 49, also of Friendsville. The pair had been on a nighttime fishing excursion together in Swift's boat when Swift, who could not swim, fell from the vessel and drowned.

Not knowing how to swim himself, Johnston failed to locate his partner in the water, returned to shore 20 minutes later, and left the scene without informing authorities that Swift had fallen into the water. Swift's empty boat was found by another angler the next morning on the Selbysport side of the lake, and his body was recovered a week later.

During the initial Natural Resources Police investigation, Johnston claimed that Swift had dropped him off on the shore and gone back out to fish alone.

Johnston eventually told NRP and GBI investigators that he and Swift had been drinking and were intoxicated at the time of Swift's death. He said that as Swift was standing in the stern of the boat, he grabbed a gunwale and windshield and gave the boat a jerk while looking in the other direction. Sometime after that action he heard a splash as Swift fell into the water. Johnston said he tried to rescue Swift but failed.

Charges of second degree homicide, manslaughter, and reckless endangerment were filed against Johnston in late September. The homicide charge was dismissed a month later during a Garrett County District Court preliminary hearing when Judge Ralph Burnett ruled that the accusation lacked probable cause.

During Friday's circuit court trial, State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch's prosecuting argument focused on whether Johnston was conscious of a risk to Swift's life when he shook the boat.

Defense attorney Robert Watson countered that Swift's death was not caused by Johnston and the case should never have been brought to trial, adding that the two men were good friends. Johnston's delay in coming forward with the details of the incident was attributable to his shock at witnessing his friend's death, according to the defense.

It took the jury less than two hours to return its not-guilty verdict on both charges.

"The state's attorney never understood this case, and I don't think it ever should have been brought to trial," Watson commented afterward. "The fact is that two close friends were drinking and fishing on Yough Lake and one fell into the freezing cold water and perished, despite the best efforts of his friend to help him—nothing more.

"Mr. Johnston has suf-

Blooms Festival To Blossom In Oakland May 19

Yard sales throughout the town are a new addition to the annual downtown Oakland Blooms festival, which will be held Saturday, May 19, from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. Besides the mixture of plants, flowers, lawn furniture, birdhouses, and other outdoors-oriented tables and activities, the whole town can participate in a townwide yard sale.

Individuals can have yard sales at their homes, or are welcome to bring a table downtown, said Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

The main activities will be concentrated at the Front Page Stage and parking lot. Yard sale tables, food vendors, and other activities will spread from there throughout the town.

Businesses and civic organizations are welcome to have sale tables. Businesses are encouraged to have specials and themes to complement the spring theme. Some are already making plans, including Water Street Market Place, Rudy's, and the Book Mark'et and Antique Mezzanine.

A number of businesses will be participating in the one-day festival, said Main Street manager Glenn Tolbert. These include Naylor's, Green Acres, Julie's Greenhouse, Susie's Greenhouse, Grand Central Station, Decorator's Nook, Louis DiCarlo Stained Glass, and BumBle Q's.

A group from Brenda's Body Shop will be performing at the train station starting at 10 a.m. A line dancing group will also perform at the station from 11 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

Liz and Jeff Gilbert will provide musical entertainment at the Front Page Stage, from 10 a.m. until noon. Songs from the musi-

Pagenhardt Is Recipient Of Hoffman Award

R. Lamont (Monty) Pagenhardt will be honored this evening in a statewide event for his accomplishments as county administrator for Garrett County. Pagenhardt is this year's recipient of the Janet L. Hoffman Award for Local Public Service. He will be given the citation at the annual award dinner ceremony of the Maryland Chapter of the American Society of Public Administration (ASPA).

The award earned by Pagenhardt was named in honor of Janet L. Hoffman, a charter member of the ASPA and a long-time official in Baltimore City government.

Pagenhardt became the county administrator in November 1995. As noted in the nomination documents for Pagenhardt, the county government was at that time in gridlock, the county's financial situation was "bleak," and there was a lack of standard operating procedures and practices.

"Mr. Pagenhardt quickly assessed the situation, identified problems, established priorities, and implemented a plan of action to restore county affairs and public confidence," an ASPA spokesperson said. "Mr. Pagenhardt took special effort to encourage open government and to improve public and media relations. Over the last five years, Garrett County has gone from a general operating fund deficit of $3 million to a general operating fund surplus of almost $3 million."

Pagenhardt will be accompanied to the awards ceremony by the county commissioners, who on Tuesday commended him for his efforts.

"I try to beat Monty in here in the mornings, but I can't ever seem to do it," said Chairman Fred Holliday. "He works so hard. I don't know what we'd do without him."

Grantsville To Hold Special Council Election

A special election will be held for the town of Grantsville on Tuesday, May 22, from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., after two candidates tied in the council election held earlier this week.

At the recent election, 58 votes were received at the polls and 8 absentee ballots were received. Gerry Beachy received 60 total votes for mayor, and there were two write-in votes, one for Martha Sebold and one for David Truly.

In the council election, Paul Edwards received 49 votes, Ronald Gillum had 52, Joseph McRobie had 56, James Wilburn received 52 votes, and Richard Towers and Brian Tucker (the only newcomer) tied with 46 votes each.

Absentee ballots are available to any town resident who is registered to vote and who is not able to attend the election.

Persons needing a ballot may contact Gloria Martin at 301-895-3144 or apply in person at the town hall.

Health Depart. Recalls Infant Car Safety Seats

The Garrett County Health Department was recently notified that one of the models of infant safety seats it has been using in the Kids in Safety Seats Loaner Program is being recalled.

Evenflo is recalling all Joyride Infant Car Seat/Carriers made from January 1988 through December 1998. When used as an infant carrier, the handle can unexpectedly release, causing the seat to flip forward. When this happens, an infant in the carrier may fall to the ground and possibly suffer injuries.

Parents and caregivers should continue to use these seats as car seats, but should not use the carrying handle until the repair kit has been installed.

Evenflo is offering a free, easy-to-install, repair kit that helps secure the handle. The health department is ordering repair kits for all the seats in their loaner program. Persons possessing one of the Joyride Infant Car Seats from the health department may call 301-334-8122. Callers should have the seat model number and date of manufacture, which are both on a sticker on the bottom of the seat, readily available when calling the health department.

When the repair kit is received, persons will be called to set up an appointment to have the kit installed.

Those wanting more information may contact Diane Lee at 301-533-0113.

Yough River Clean-Up Set For Wednesday

The ninth annual Youghiogheny River clean-up, conducted along the Upper Youghiogheny south of Friendsville, will be held next Wednesday, May 16. Organizers of the effort invite all to volunteer some time and effort that day to remove trash from this section of the river. The work will be done both by water and by land, with kayakers working in the river and on-foot volunteers working along the riverbanks.

The project is once again being coordinated by Mountain Surf Inc. of Friendsville. All wishing to assist should report to the Mountain Surf location just on the west side of the Maple Street bridge in Friendsville at 11 a.m. that day. Persons may telephone Mountain Surf at 301-746-5389 for more information. (See also a letter to the editor in this issue for more information.)

Providing food and beverages for the volunteers will be Lohr Distributors of Oakland, Friendsville Discount Liquors, and S&S Market, also of Friendsville.

Commissioners Announce Fiscal Year 2002 Operating And Capital Budget

$50 million+ plan called "blueprint for progress"

"This county is on the move," said Garrett County Commissioner Wendell Beitzel Tuesday, as the commissioner board presented the county budget for fiscal year 2002. The three members of the fiscal authority were in agreement about the ongoing growth in Garrett County, which is reflected by a budget that shows a $2,557,737 increase over last year. Even with the increased spending, the tax rate remains the same for the citizenry, the men noted.

Capital improvement projects to be funded this year include the continued construction of the Garrett County Health Center (which is to be completed by Oct. 1), renovations to the county courthouse, a number of road and bridge improvements, equipment and vehicle purchases for several departments, and building and infrastructure improvements at the county's three industrial parks. Planning is also in place for the construction of a new detention center and an expansion of the Garrett County Airport.

"This budget is a blueprint for progress," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

The largest portion of the county funding will go toward education. A total of $18,933,953 has been appropriated for the board of education, Garrett Community College, and the Ruth Enlow Library. This allotment constitutes 38% of the total budget.

The board of education is being given enough money in capital to improve the Rt. 40 Elementary School, to put a new roof on the Friendsville Elementary School, and to help build a new planetarium, which will be located at the Hickory Education Center. (About 70% of the funding for the planetarium construction is being covered by the state of Maryland.) A request for $170,000 to renovate Southern High School's library was not funded, however.

In personnel, the fiscal authority has for the second year met Governor Parris Glendening's challenge to provide a compensation increase to all teachers within the public school system.

GCC was appropriated $2,374,166, which includes an increase over last year of $281,666 for operating expenses and capital projects.

The Ruth Enlow Library was appropriated an 18% increase over last year. The total funding allotment for the library system is $573,900. While the funding request included $373,400 in capital outlay money, chiefly for the construction of a library in Grantsville, the commissioners opted to provide just $15,000 in the form of "seed" money for that project. Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, explained that the library board is not ready to engage in construction and the request was somewhat premature.

"The commissioners strongly support the construction of the Grantsville library," Pagenhardt said. "But they want to wait until the project is ready to go before allotting a large sum of money for it."

In the category of general government, the commissioners have approved an increase of 29% over last year. General government includes the offices of the commissioners, finance, economic development, circuit court, tax collection, state's attorney, election board, planning and zoning, building codes office, general services, and the liquor control board.

The foremost increase in funding is for the renovation and restoration of the courthouse. Matching funds have been approved for this project by the Maryland General Assembly. A number of offices will be relocated in an effort to consolidate the circuit court system. Judge James Sherbin has initiated the project to increase efficiency of the system and to provide better security.

A total of 10 new positions are being added to the county payroll, with eight of those joining the general government offices. The positions being filled are one additional assistant state's attorney (at the request of State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch), a family services coordinator for circuit court (at the request of Judge Sherbin), a law clerk, and an administrative assistant for circuit court. In general services, one full-time and two part-time custodians have been hired.

At the recommendation of the Technology Advisory Committee (created by the current county commissioners), funds have been appropriated for a technology coordinator position to help develop comprehensive short- and long-term strategies for information technology.

The sheriff's office will receive funding to hire two new correctional officers and to reassign the Garrett Bureau of Investigation secretary from a grant position to classified service. A part-time animal control officer position will be increased to full-time upon the recommendation of the Garrett County Animal Issues Advisory Committee.

Public works appropriations continue as the second-largest segment of the budget. Twenty-eight percent of the total budget is appropriated for the roads department, the solid waste and recycling office, the sanitary commission, and the airport.

The roads department

TIRE BLOWOUT KILLS PA. TRUCKER — A central Pennsylvania man, 40-year-old Charles Harry Crum III of Duncannon, was pronounced dead at the scene of this single-vehicle accident along Interstate 68 east of Grantsville Monday afternoon. According to Maryland State Police Tpr. M.W. DeValk of the McHenry barrack, Crum was ejected from his 1995 Ford LT 9000 semi cab after the left front tire blew out, causing his westbound crane rig to overturn east of Chestnut Ridge Road after traveling across two traffic lanes and into the median. The fatal crash is still under investigation, but MSP accident reconstruction specialist Sgt. R.S. Farrell of the LaVale barrack said this morning that while the primary cause of the mishap was the tire blowout, a secondary cause may have been speed greater than 65 miles per hour. The investigator added that it appeared that Crum was not wearing a seatbelt. A passenger, Jason Michael McClellan, 30, of Lewistown, Pa., was injured but refused transport to the hospital. Personnel from the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department responded with state troopers to the 1:36 p.m. mishap.

Board Approves Upcoming School Year Positions

Several appointments and transfers were recently approved by the Garrett County Board of Education for the 2001-2002 school term.

Barbara Baker, currently a teacher at Yough Glades Elementary School, has been appointed as the principal of Kitzmiller Elementary.

Y. Michelle Harman, currently a science teacher at Northern High School, has been chosen as the coordinator-administrative assistant at Southern High School.

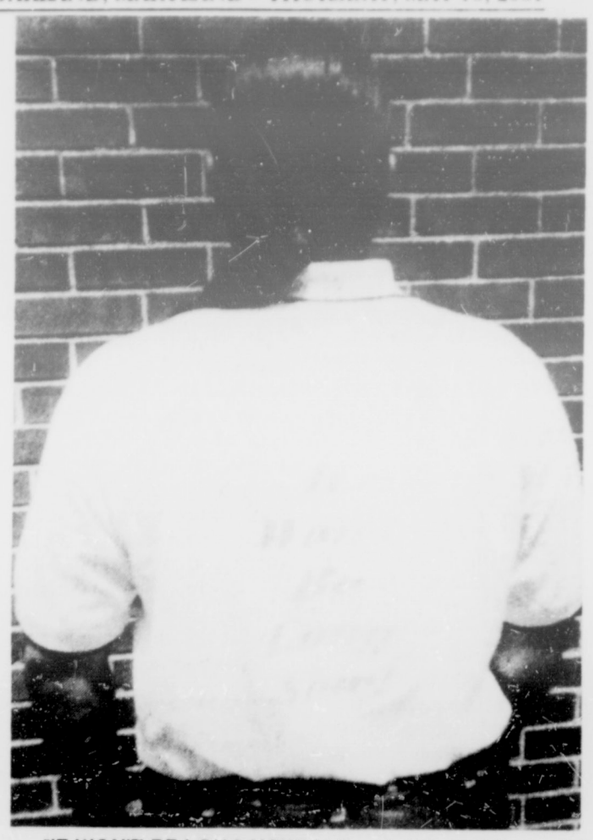
Lois LaSalle has been appointed as the cafeteria assistant for 7.5 hours per day at SHS. She is currently a part-time cafeteria worker at the high school.

In addition to the appointments, the superintendent of schools has transferred three administrative personnel for the upcoming school year.

Holly Diehl will become the principal at Crellin Elementary School. She is currently a curriculum coordinator in the county.

Sheila Miller has been transferred to principal at Friendsville Elementary. She has been the principal at Kitzmiller Elementary for the past three years.

Keith Harvey will be the principal at Yough Glades Elementary for the upcoming school year. He has been the principal at Crellin Elementary for the past nine years.



"IT WON'T BE LONG NOW" is the slogan on this special shirt of Chris Menker, a member of the Oak Park Church of the Brethren Relay for Life team which, like many other local teams, is raising funds to benefit the American Cancer Society. Menker's hair measures 26 inches from scalp to end, and for every $50 pledge he receives for his team, he will cut off an inch of his hair. A total of $1,300, which is his goal, will mean that he will be shaved bald. He is already halfway toward his goal. "A young woman who belongs to our church died of cancer recently," the Southern High School junior said. "It really affected me, and I decided that cutting my hair is the least I could do for her and for the thousands of others who get this disease." A younger Menker is pictured below when his hair was about 25½ inches shorter than it is today. Other fund-raising efforts by the Oak Park Church team are a "Youth Crazy" dinner and silent auction set for Saturday, May 19, at the church, beginning at 5:30 p.m., and a gospel sing, slated for May 26, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The silent auction items are on display and may be viewed today at the church. Persons wishing to make a pledge to Menker may reach him by telephone at 301-334-5906.

AMONG THE SILENT AUCTION ITEMS for this Friday's Amazing Grazing event, the spring fund-raiser for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF), is this Lladro porcelain sculpture donated by Howard and Fran Reynoids. It is among 50 different items donated by Garrett County businesses and individuals. The benefit will be held at the McHenry House at Wisp Resort on Friday, May 11, from 6 until 9:30 p.m. Tickets, which are $35 per person, may be purchased by calling the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Accidents Result In Some Injuries, Pending Charges

Two passengers were injured when the driver lost control of the vehicle he was operating and struck a stone wall around 4 a.m. Friday. Charges are pending against all three occupants of the vehicle, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

William Philip Hebb lost control of the 2001 Oldsmobile along Friendsville Road near Kisner Road. The rear seat passenger was partially ejected, according to the report.

Jeaneen DeWitt was flown by Health Net Helicopter to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., where she was admitted and later released. Jennifer M. McDonnell, 19, Oakland, was first transported by Northern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, where she was treated and later released.

McDonnell was charged by deputies for underage possession of alcohol.

Charges are still pending against Hebb and DeWitt.

The Friendsville and Deep Creek volunteer fire departments also responded to the scene.

An Oakland man was injured in a single vehicle accident around 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Rubben James Everett, 20, was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), negligent driving, violation of an alcohol restriction, and violating a license requirement, when his 1992 Toyota truck crossed the center line and struck a CSX railroad warning bar.

Everett was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to GCMH, where he was treated for his injuries.

Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Deputies made a traffic stop early Wednesday morning and charged a Pittsburgh, Pa., man for DWI and failing to drive right of center.

Henry Joseph Michaels, 48, was released on his own recognizance.

Youth Injured When Rig Strikes Car On Rt. 50

A 17-year-old Oakland youth sustained minor injuries last Thursday when his car was struck by a tractor-trailer rig along Route 50 near Gorman. The truck driver faces charges filed by Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

David A. Pennington was traveling east on Rt. 50 in a 1990 Pontiac Grand Prix at 11:42 a.m. when a 1996 International tractor trailer operated by Roger Lee Sponaugle, 56, Mannington, W.Va., allegedly pulled into his path from Table Rock Road. Pennington's car struck the trailer portion of Sponaugle's rig.

Pennington was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. The Gorman Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the accident scene.

State troopers charged Sponaugle with failure to yield right of way at an intersection.

Subject Sought In Grantsville Auto Theft This A.M.

The Maryland State Police are asking for the public's assistance in locating a subject who may have been involved in a vehicle theft that took place in Grantsville early this morning.

As of noon today, state troopers were still seeking leads that might help locate a white male in his early 30s, approximately 6 feet tall, 180 pounds, with shoulder-length sandy blond hair, and possibly wearing an orange-colored jumpsuit, who was reportedly seen running along westbound National Pike in the area of New Germany Road shortly after the stolen vehicle was wrecked at approximately 5:10 a.m.

According to Tpr. J.B. Schlossnagle's report, he and another trooper arrived in the area of 11900 National Pike shortly after the theft of a pickup truck from the home of Fenton Lowery was reported. The troopers located the truck on its side by the road, where it had rolled after apparently striking a tree.

Lowery reportedly told police that he had started the truck at approximately 5 a.m. to warm it up, gone inside his home, and came out moments later to discover that it had been taken. A passerby told the troopers that he had seen the subject described above running west on Rt. 40 away from the area of the wreck in approximately the same time frame.

The incident is still under investigation, and persons with any information are asked to contact Tpr. Schlossnagle at the McHenry MSP barrack by calling 301-895-1101 or 301-387-1101.

In other state police news, an equipment violation traffic stop resulted in the arrest of a Pittsburgh driver early Saturday morning in McHenry.

Shane S. Kinman, 35, was stopped along Garrett Highway at Mosser Road at 1:59 a.m. by Tpr. Schlossnagle, who subsequently filed charges of driving while intoxicated and driving on a revoked license. Kinman was processed at the McHenry barrack and released from MSP custody there.

fered the fear of this serious prosecution all these months while at the same time suffering the grief he felt at not only losing his friend, but also having to watch him sink below the water and not being able to do anything about it," Watson continued. "I hope that the people of our community will also know that Mr. Johnston was acquitted by a jury of his peers, and I hope that he will be able to go on with his life without any further consequences from this unfortunate and tragic affair."

Ohio Fugitive Arrested After Traffic Stop

A West Virginia man wanted in Ohio on a fugitive charge was apprehended in Garrett County last Thursday after being stopped for speeding along Interstate 68 by Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack.

Billy Paul Burdette, 24, Ripley, W.Va., was stopped on the interstate at the Casselman Bridge shortly before noon when his 1988 Dodge Aries was clocked at 78 miles per hour by Tfc. B. Broadwater. A check of Burdette's driver's license indicated that he was a fugitive from an Ohio jurisdiction that had originally filed drug charges against him.

Following his arrest, Burdette was found to be carrying a small bag of suspected marijuana in his pocket. A vehicle search located a vial of suspected cocaine and a .38-caliber handgun, which was found in a suitcase in the rear of the car. Burdette faces additional charges of possession of marijuana, cocaine, drug paraphernalia, and a handgun.

The passengers in Burdette's vehicle, David Gilbert Shouldis, Creve Coure, Ill., and Derrick Wesley Shaffer, Ripley, both 22, were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after two smoking pipes containing suspected burnt marijuana were located in the car.

Burdette was detained without bond in the Garrett County Detention Center on the fugitive charge. Shouldis and Shaffer were released from custody under unspecified circumstances.

In other state police news, a Pennsylvania man was arrested on drug charges after a traffic stop in the McHenry area late Saturday night.

Richard Edward Perkoski, 33, McKeesport, was stopped for an equipment violation on Garrett Highway south of Friendsville Road at 11:41 p.m. While speaking with Tpr. L.W. Broadwater, Perkoski reportedly admitted to having marijuana in his possession, and was arrested when the suspected drug was located.

Perkoski was arrested for possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and was taken before a district court commissioner. He was released on his own recognizance.

Announce Budget

has projected a 16% increase in comprehensive road repair miles, and an increase over last year's actual repairs of 115 miles to a projected total of 133 miles. This project work will include four bridge replacements. The roads department will receive $1,292,374 for the improvement of eight county bridges and for new equipment. All capital equipment will be purchased with current revenue without incurring additional debt, Pagenhardt noted. Funds have also been allocated for plans to relocate the Grantsville Area Roads Garage.

Federal, state, and county monies have been earmarked for architectural and engineering expenses for an expansion project at the county airport in McHenry.

Operational expenses at the solid waste and recycling office are less than prior fiscal periods because of added tipping fee revenue and an increase in countywide recycling efforts.

The chamber of commerce's request for 530,000 was not fully appropriated. A total of $450,000 has been allotted for the organization, which reflects a $50,000 increase over last year.

The commissioners' allotment to the Garrett County Arts Council doubled this year, providing the council with $4,000. The Garrett County Historical Society's request of $4,000 was met as well. The commissioners have also responded fully to the Garrett County Fair Board's request for $6,000. This funding will be used in furtherance of a plan to construct a state-of-the-art exhibit hall at the McHenry Fairgrounds.

While the towns of Oakland and Mountain Lake Park requested a tax differential again this year to compensate for doubled services, the commissioners instead agreed to a decreased tax rate for the residents of both towns. In Oakland, the tax rate will be $1.018 per $100 of assessed real property, and in Mtn. Lake Park, the rate will be $1.033. In all other jurisdictions, the rate will be $1.036.

The contingency funds for FY 2002 will be in the amount of $57,006. This amount has been reduced based on prior year actual expenditures, projected carryover from FY 2001, and general fund balance projections.

Chairman Fred Holliday expressed gratitude to the county leaders Tuesday for keeping their budget requests reasonable and for working well with the finance office.

"I'm very pleased with how things are going," Holliday said. "This is a good budget plan, and it couldn't have worked out as well without everyone's cooperation."

BREATHING EASIER AT ALLERGY SEMINAR — Lance Rhodes, RPH, and Eric Tribbey, RRT/RCP, of Garrett County Memorial Hospital will host a presentation titled "Helping You Breathe Better During Allergy Season" on Wednesday, May 16, at 2 p.m., at the GCMH Community Services Center. Rhodes and Tribbey will provide participants with a review of various medications used for allergy symptoms. The safety of allergy medications for patients with high blood pressure and glaucoma will be discussed, as well as the proper use and technique of inhaled medications. The program is offered at no charge as part of the ongoing series of presentation and screenings in the "Senior Wellness Program." Attendees are requested to register for the program by calling 301-533-4180. Pictured, from the left, are Rhodes and Tribbey.

Senior Center Fun, Fitness Festival Set

The Area Agency on Aging and the Garrett County Health Department, Outreach Division, are planning their annual Fun and Fitness Festival on May 18 at the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland, and May 22 at the Grantsville Senior Center, to celebrate May as National Older Americans Month.

This year's theme is "99 Ways to Live to 100." The event will start with item #96, "Take a Hike" at 9 a.m. Persons wanting to participate should meet at the centers' parking lot. Some of the other items are #78, "Laugh Out Loud"; #39, "Sing Out Loud"; #30, "Create a Masterpiece"; #38, "Dance to the Beat"; #51, "Play Outdoors"; #82, "Stretch Those Limbs"; #26, "Lift Weights"; #87, "Memorize a Poem"; #46, "Munch on an Apple"; and #43, "Have a Picnic."

Fire and Fall Prevention is a component for high-risk injuries for those over 65. This group is twice as likely to be killed or injured by fires and falls. Diane Lee of the Garrett County Health Department, Highway Safety and Injury Prevention division, said this festival would be an ideal time to present the program, "Remembering When."

"By focusing attention on these two serious issues, I believe we can make a measurable improvement in the health and well-being of older adults — a rapidly growing segment of the population," Lee said.

A continental breakfast will be served at 10 a.m., immediately followed by "Remembering When" and games. Reservations are required for lunch, which is to be served at noon. Door prizes will also be awarded.

Persons wanting more information may call 301-334-9431, ext. 137.

National Nurses Week Under Way

National Nurses Week, being observed this week, May 6-12, is a time for nurses to celebrate their unique profession. More than 2.6 million U.S. nurses will celebrate this week.

In observance of National Nurses Week, Garrett County Memorial Hospital is displaying nursing caps from various schools represented by its nursing staff. These caps will be on view in the glass display case located in the lobby near the registration desk through Sunday. Other highlights for the week include a nursing staff baby picture guessing contest and other games. The nursing staff at GCMH has received doughnuts, cookies, and other gifts throughout this week. The entire staff at GCMH was treated to complimentary "Angel of Mercy" cake on Wednesday.

A 2000 honesty and ethics poll conducted by the Gallop organization showed that for the second year in a row, the American public rated nursing as the field with the highest standards of honesty and ethics. Almost 8 in 10 Americans, or 79%, say nurses have "very high" or "high" ethical standards.

According to the American Nurses Association, there are 2.2 million actively employed registered nurses in the nation. The Bureau of Labor Statistics lists nursing as one of the top 40 growth jobs for the next 10 years, and has projected a need for 2.6 million working registered nurses by 2005, an additional 800,000 above current levels. "I am very proud of the caring and compassionate nursing staff at GCMH," stated Denise Liston, vice president of clinical services.

"Garrett County Memorial Hospital is not experiencing the nursing shortage affecting many other hospitals. I am grateful that we are able to retain quality nurses who provide excellent nursing care to our patients," Liston added.

Award Well Deserved...

The most important, and probably the most difficult, job of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners was completed this week for the year, with the adoption of a county budget for fiscal year 2002. In an initial perusal of the budget, it appears that the county is in good financial condition, and that the commissioners and county administrator Monty Pagenhardt have done an excellent job doling out the limited county funds to the many agencies. Requests, as usual, came in at a level several million dollars above available funds, but many of the agencies saw the majority of their budgets funded, or at least received significant increases.

The board of education and the roads department, the two agencies with the largest budgets, each had virtually 100% of their requests funded. While the Ruth Enlow Library did not receive a huge sum for the capital side of its budget, the operations budget amount was increased by 18%, bringing that agency one more big step forward in its effort to make up for many years of pathetic funding. The amount allocated for the Garrett County Arts Council was less than requested, but double what was given last year. The Garrett County Fair Board requested some financial help for the construction of a new exhibit hall, and the commissioners agreed by fulfilling that request of $6,000. More was allocated for animal control, at the recommendation of the recently formed animal issues advisory committee.

The commissioners also left only about $57,000 in their contingency fund, a sum far less than in the past, indicating that they have faith in the budget enough to take somewhat of a risk by not socking away so much for rainy days.

The aforementioned Monty Pagenhardt, we believe, is the behind-the-scenes catalyst for what we consider to be good planning and a new cooperation that seems to exist between the commissioners and the various agency staffs. In fact, Pagenhardt and his assistants now work directly with the agencies to help them prepare their budget requests and to give them some idea of what they can expect. This effort makes the process far less adversarial, which is what it has been historically. To our knowledge this was never done in the past. As in so many other areas, communication and cooperation are the keys to understanding and resolution.

It was announced this week that Pagenhardt was named the recipient of the Janet L. Hoffman Award for Local Public Service, a state honor that is awarded through a highly competitive process. We wholeheartedly endorse his selection for this honor. The commissioners themselves have said that Pagenhardt is the one primarily responsible for the improvements in county finances and the budget process. During his tenure, the county has progressed from a $3 million deficit in its operating budget in 1996 to a surplus of nearly $3 million.

Thanks, gentlemen, for your hard work and your effort to be as equitable and open-minded as possible in the budgetary process.

FLASHBACK TO THE '80S

by Beth Bowers

Some days I am reminded that I am getting older, and other days I am reminded that I am still (sort of) young. I felt young the other day when I came to work with capri pants on, which sparked discussions of pedal pushers and seersucker shirts. I had heard of pedal pushers, but they lost me at seersucker.

And just as I am feeling young, I am put right back in my age category. I enjoy the weekends when the radio station plays non-stop '80s music. That music transports me back to school, since I graduated from high school in 1990. I was traveling in the car with two of my nieces when one of my favorite songs came across the radio. Instantly, all the lyrics came flooding back and I was back in middle school wearing leg warmers and making up dances at slumber parties. My flashback was instantly cut short when the girls' moaning about how "weird" my music was drowned out Duran Duran.

This started me thinking of all the things that were unique to the '80s and those things that have come full circle. Warning: This list may make you feel really old or really young.

The cool video games were Donkey Kong, Frogger, and Pac-Man. We played the "Big Mac, Filet O Fish, Quarter Pounder, French Fry..." game on the bus.

We wore leg warmers and pulled our socks over our jeans, sometimes wearing two different colored socks on each foot to match the outfit.

We listened to Madonna, Men At Work, and Toni Basil. Who can forget "Hey Mickey, you're so fine, you're so fine you blow my mind...."?

We carried Trapper Keepers to school, and you could never get the straw into your Capri Sun (thankfully, they have remedied that problem).

We made friendship pins and wore our Topsider shoes with the laces twisted so we looked cool and didn't have to tie them.

Fashions and music come and go, but the memories that all those things remind me of will stay with me forever. Maybe that is why I love the '80s so much or maybe it is that I could kick my brother's butt in Donkey Kong, watch Rick Springfield and John Stamos on General Hospital, and dance to Janet and Michael Jackson (when he looked A LOT different and wasn't so scary). Or maybe it is because my only worries were how to answer Becky's note about listing my best friends and secret crushes in order or whether Chad knew I wrote him down as my number one crush, at least for that week.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Mikal McCartney Lee is retiring from the position of GOBA (Greater Oakland Business Association) president, a position she has held since 1995. In the time Mikal served as GOBA's leader, the group has made great strides in defining goals and accomplishing tasks which benefit all who live and work in Oakland. Just prior to Mikal's election to office the group adopted this mission statement: GOBA will promote Oakland locally and regionally as a unique place to live and shop, and will value the region's historic and charming character while fostering a rich cultural environment. GOBA will encourage ownership of its defined goals by a broad segment of the Oakland business and professional community. It will serve as an open forum for communication and will collaborate with other organizations to serve the community.

During her administration, GOBA organized the Downtown Revitalization Committee, a group instrumental in working with the mayor and town council to enable Oakland to become a Main Street community, and the Save Our Station Committee, which has become responsible for the renovation of the Oakland Train Station. The Artist Street Fair was initiated, a downtown event which was sponsored by GOBA two years in a row, and the third year evolved into the Summer Concert Series. Under the direction of Ken Perrin, it is now known as the Little Yough Music Festival. Another offshoot of the Artist Street Fair, in which Mikal was instrumental, was the inception of the Mountain Arts Pavilion, a cooperative for local artisans to showcase their work.

In addition to the accomplishments named above, Mikal's administration fielded many other "firsts" for Oakland. The first charette was held, a brainstorming session to expose the former Fireside Restaurant building and adjacent lot to potential investors. The first public gathering was held on the Courthouse Plaza; a reception to kick off fundraising for the Save Oakland Station campaign. The first "Historic Walking Guide to Downtown Oakland" was published by GOBA. Mikal was instrumental in obtaining funding for and realizing the www.oaklandmd.com website which features participating GOBA member's businesses, along with a directory of services and other tourism information about Oakland.

As GOBA president, Mikal held a seat on the Garrett Chamber and was active on the promotion and tourism committee. She also served on the Main Street board of directors and attended state and national conferences regarding Main Street programs.

Thank you, Mikal, for your thoughtful leadership during the past six years and for helping GOBA carry out its mission. Your creativity and talents have helped us to see that Oakland is indeed a unique place and you have helped us use our resources to promote its charm and significance.

Sincerely,
Amy Rudy, VP
GOBA

To the Editor:

For the past eight years the fine folks of Mountain Surf Inc. of Friendsville have lead the charge on improving our water and land by removing trash from the upper section of the Youghiogheny River. This section of the Youghiogheny drops 1,000 feet from Sang Run to Friendsville. With one rapid after another, this steep class V whitewater makes for dangerous trash removal. Mountain Surf, in cooperation with America Outdoors "National River Cleanup Week," of Knoxville, Tenn., is sponsoring its ninth annual Upper Youghiogheny River clean-up next Wednesday, May 16.

There is a timeless rhythm in these mountains, and anyone wise enough to hear it will realize that we must protect it. For the past eight years a river clean-up has preserved the splendid wondrous beauty that we call home. The positive impact of removing the trash on an annual basis is an accomplishment that will benefit us all for generations to come. Anyone interested in contributing to the clean-up should seize the chance. The meeting place is at Mountain Surf Inc. on the west side of the Maple Street bridge in Friendsville, at 11 a.m. For more information, call Mountain Surf to speak with Chad Ellison or me, Jess Whittemore, at 301-746-5389.

Usually private boaters and river outfitters answer the call of the wild. As a special addition to this year's clean-up, we are asking that on-foot volunteers show up to police the Yough and Bear Creek banks of the Friendsville corporate limits. We love our town and are organizing an assault on riverside garbage this day. It's fun to clean up the woods with friends, and it is especially good exercise. Clean streams, refreshments, and camaraderie are the personal awards of the day. The Mayor and Town Council's clean-up week will be supporting the garbage takeaway for the river clean-up.

For the ninth year, Lohr Distributors of Oakland and Friendsville Discount Liquors are supporting the effort by contributing beverages for the volunteers. A new supporter this year is the S&S Market of Friendsville with the munchie contribution. The drinks and munchies are refreshing and appreciated after making the daring descent and energetic on-foot efforts.

Jess Whittemore,
Friendsville

To the Editor:

Hats off to all the people who work in Maryland hospitals. We salute them during National Hospital Week, May 6-12.

Nurses, doctors, lab techs, physical and occupational therapists, support staff, service workers, managers, and many others play important roles in Maryland's health care. They perform heroic acts 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, saving lives, bringing hope to patients and families, introducing babies to the world, diagnosing illnesses, healing the sick, and comforting the dying. Their mission is to deliver the right care, at the right time, and in the right setting.

I commend these women and men for their tireless efforts in putting patient care first. Their efforts are particularly commendable during this period in our health care history when hospital patients are sicker, record numbers of patients are seeking care in our emergency departments, and a shortage of health care workers — particularly nurses — is increasing the workload for those remaining.

We thank them for all the special things they do. Their dedication is inspiring, and their caring enhances the quality of life for patients during a time of great need.

Sincerely,
Cal Pierson

To the Editor:

May is traditionally designated as Older Americans Month. This year's theme, in recognition of the increasing multi-cultural and multi-generational aging population, is "The Many Faces of Aging." Across the country, Area Agencies on Aging will be celebrating May with programs developed around this theme. Here in Garrett County, Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging (AAA) will celebrate with a program offering information on topics such as the Older Americans Act, mental health and aging, and cultures and traditions of seniors in various Garrett County communities. Additionally, participants will have the opportunity to meet the AAA staff and learn about the programs available to seniors.

The program will be offered at the Mary Browning Senior Center at 104 E. Center St., Oakland, on Tuesday, May 15, from 9 a.m. until noon. The program is open to all senior citizens, as well as caregivers; however, individuals who wish to stay for lunch must call the agency, 301-334-9431, ext. 140, for a reservation.

In 1963, the tradition of setting aside the month of May in honor of the country's older Americans was begun by President John F. Kennedy. The tradition has been continued by every president since this time. May is a time in which the nation comes together to recognize and honor the contributions of older persons, from the past to the present.

In November of 2000, the Older Americans Act Amendments of 2000 were signed into law, following many years of failure to reauthorize the act. Included in the act was a historical milestone: the incorporation of the National Family Caregiver Support Program. This program directly responds to the needs of 7 million+ informal caregivers who give of themselves to care for older loved ones who wish to remain at home. The improved act will enable the Administration on Aging, as well as state units on aging and local area agencies on aging to better serve older Americans and their caregivers.

Garrett County Area Agency on Aging is very proud of the programs and services it is able to provide to the county's seniors. Over the years, the agency has made great strides in enhancing services. This has been accomplished through Older Americans Act, funding provided by the Administration on Aging, as well as state funding from the Maryland Department of Aging, and the financial commitment of the local county government. Additionally, the agency seeks funding from private foundations, companies, and businesses, such as the Senior Helpings grant through Philip Morris Companies and the National Meals on Wheels Association. This type of partnership is necessary to enable the agency to extend programs, like home delivered meals, to a greater number of individuals, as well as to increase available service days. Without the additional funding, programs would be very limited. The agency also encourages contributions from recipients for the services they receive. Client contributions are vital in order to maintain service levels.

Services provided by the agency include: in-home services; assisted living; congregate and home delivered meals; senior centers that offer socialization, recreation, continuing education, health screenings and more; information and assistance; preventive health services; ombudsman (nursing home liaison); health insurance counseling; elder abuse prevention; legal assistance; respite services; guardianship services; and more. The AAA also develops educational programs for professional and paraprofessionals working with the senior population. Many services are made possible through collaborations with other agencies i.e. DSS, Cooperative Extension Service, Health Department, and Mt. Top Mental Health, to name a few.

The Administration on Aging and the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging celebrate the contributions of older Americans every day. We invite Garrett Countians to join us in celebrating their contributions during the month of May. Remember, there are "many faces of aging."

The agency would also like to invite seniors and their caregivers to join us for the informative program on Tuesday, May 15, at the Mary Browning Senior Center. Prior to lunch, the Garrett County commissioners will proclaim May as Older Americans Month in Garrett County. Lunch will be available for persons with reservations. A contribution of $2 is suggested for individuals age 60 and older. Persons under 60 will be charged $3.25.

Sincerely,
Adina Brode
Director, Area Agency on Aging

View From My Window

SPRING DAYS AFIELD

Spring time is game time for most families with children. My son is playing junior varsity volleyball and recreation league soccer. My second daughter is playing soccer (a spring sport for girls at her high school). A nephew is playing recreation baseball. So I have occasion to see a sporting event with a near relative playing almost any evening or afternoon I please.

Volleyball has been a revelation for me. I have always thought about it as a game to be played at the beach or on picnics. My figure is an immediate tip-off that most of my thoughts about any sport are purely imaginary.

Nick attends a high school where volleyball is taken seriously. The head coach for the varsity football team coaches j.v. volleyball in the spring. I'd like to see someone tell him volleyball isn't a real sport. The volleyball championship banners hang on the gym wall by the basketball, football, and baseball.

What I like best about volleyball is the courtesy and elegance with which it is played. The signs given by the referees are ritualized gestures made with an attempt at style. When substitutions are made the player and his replacement shake hands on the sideline until the one referee makes note of the exchange.

One of the principle fouls, by which a team loses a serve or point, is how they hit the ball. Discerning "a lift" is a highly impressionistic thing, more art than science. Similarly, the ref can call a team out of rotation if they have not rotated properly.

Most of the referees are knowledgeable and courteous. Two weeks ago at a tournament the refs on the court where our team played did not know their business. Nick's coach had to help them out a few times. The most embarrassing occasion was when a ref called "out of rotation." The coach said they were not out of rotation. The two refs took five minutes to figure out that the coach was right, and they wrong. The ref who made the original call was still man enough to say in a loud voice, "I was wrong." I can't think when I have ever heard a soccer, basketball, or a baseball umpire admit error.

Meredith's soccer has been fun, but not new. My children and two of my nephews have had me going to soccer games for most of a decade now. I almost understand how "offsides" works.

The great advantage of baseball and soccer over volleyball is the opportunity it gives a person to be outside on a spring afternoon or evening. Not only can one be outdoors — one can do that mowing the yard — but actually to luxuriate in the outdoors. When nature is so busy, what a pleasure it is to be required just to sit there, and to do nothing but take it all in. Even the occasional whiff of paraquat cannot spoil the experience.

I also enjoy the chance to meet the parents of the children that my kids and nephews associate with. A few weeks ago I had the pleasure of assuring parents of two other boys on the volleyball team that Young Life is indeed a wonderful Christian, youth organization. It had seemed all right to them, but they wanted to be sure, given the multiplication of cults in our time.

Another family I have gotten acquainted with, having only ever met them before at a neighborhood snowball stand. The family of my son's best friend I have gotten to know well, and multi-generationally. When I go to my nephews' games I usually see the people I went to school with 30 years ago and whom I see only at community sporting or cultural events.

It is not my wish to kid anybody. I do enjoy these athletic events, but I would be happier if all three youngsters begged me to help in the garden. I wouldn't even mind if they wanted to play sports and help in the garden. The point is not one that I have any basis to push, however. I may have been 25 or 30 before I ever did anything but read a book. I don't really do much else now.

Perhaps one of the tricks to discovering happiness in one's life is learning to appreciate and even to enjoy the things that one would not have chosen and really does not feel much innate interest in. The children in our lives can teach us such things, if we let them.

My Job Description

I have a very important job, perhaps even the most important job anyone can have. Yet most people are not impressed when I tell them what I do. I have not earned a degree to prepare me for this job. You see, I have never seen a course listed in a college catalogue. Yet the demands of the job have taxed all the skills I have acquired throughout a lifetime.

This is a constant, unending job. There are no days off or paid vacation. I'm on call 24 hours a day. In spite of my long hours and working seven days a week, I am accumulating nothing in my bank account for my efforts.

Although I have signed no worker's contract and don't have a supervisor inspecting my work, I take my job very seriously and feel the weight of my responsibility very keenly. Although I'm not a union member and have no one fighting for my rights, I have no fear of being fired, even for poor job performance. In fact, there have been days when I have had fleeting thoughts of resigning, but in my job, there are no provisions for that!

But in spite of the long hours, poor financial compensation, negative public image, and at times stressful personal demands of the job, I wouldn't trade it for any other occupation. The rewards cannot be measured by our monetary system. Although the final pay day is in the future with rewards of eternal magnitude, the many tokens I receive every day are enough to cause me to rate my job satisfaction at the top of the scale. You see, I am a mother.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

CHICKEN BARBECUE

The first chicken barbecue of the season will be held this Saturday beginning at 4 p.m. at the Bittinger fire hall. It will end at 7 p.m., so be sure to get your chicken early before they run out.

Before I start, I want to apologize to the person who gave my mother news at the pig roast. She seems to have misplaced it. She was so interested in eating that she must have misplaced it somewhere. Please call and give it to me again so I can put it in next week's items. Sorry.

I am too exhausted after last weekend to write a decent column, at least up to the expectation that everyone has for "Notes from Bittinger." So many people told me at the Mother-Daughter Banquet and at the pig roast how much the column means to them. Someone said it gives a picture of something fast disappearing from the life of a community. Yes, it is true that family values still count in Bittinger, but not always in a perfect way. We still have problems here as anywhere else, that I do know.

My nephews, Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, have thrown themselves into a business of selling night crawlers. They collected quite a few after a recent rain and decided to make themselves a little spending money. They put out two signs at the end of their lane. They will be quite enterprising young men.

They have also been busy playing baseball for their team, the Cubs, and are undefeated so far this season. The team beat the Braves Sunday afternoon that delayed the birthday party for their big brother, Robbie, who turned 15. The game made it a little hectic to get ready for, as their aunt, Carol Bass, was busy at the concession booth and their mother Marci had to work. Grandmother Ruth was in such a rush home that she forget to bring her little dog Sassy along. Sassy is the Cubs' mascot, and I made her a little shirt to wear last year. She does love to go to the ballfield. Sassy waited patiently until her mistress returned for her. But by 7 o'clock, all the cousins assembled to pig out on pizza, two cakes, and ice cream.

The twins and Scotty showed off their new lambs to the crowd, which included Great Uncle Dale, and Aunt Betty and her husband Ralph, from Olympia, Wash., who are making their annual visit. Since it has been two years since they were here, they were very surprised to see how much their great nieces and nephews had grown up, especially the biggest and oldest like the birthday boy, Robbie, who is almost as big as his father, Rodney. Aunt Betty also noticed that Claire is now as tall as I, as she helped me into the house.

Robbie and his sister Blakely, Matthew Bass, and Claire hardly had time to catch their breath after a busy weekend at a statewide 4-H leadership camp at Camp Hickory, which was held to train the older kids to be tribe leaders and counselors for 4-H camps. Claire enjoyed sharing a cabin with Blakely and her good buddy from the southern part of the county, Shar Hollingsworth, who also has shared 4-H camp, and been on swimming and soccer teams with Claire. They also renewed some friendships with kids from other counties, as well as making some new friends. For some reason a mix-up about cabin assignments happened, so Claire and her bunk mates moved into their cabins in the middle of a downpour. She slipped in the mud and got covered with the mud and got her sleeping bag and pillow soaking wet, as well as her only sweatshirt she had along, which was not good, since after weeks of unseasonable hot weather last weekend was downright chilly.

In spite of the chilly weather, I was delighted to see our barn swallows back from their winter trip to South America. Our lines were crowded with those spunky little guys. Plus, we even got our hummingbird feeders up, in spite of the timing, and just in time to see the littlest birds' homecoming. I can't remember a year that they returned this early in the month of May. It also seems quite early for the first flush of new leaves on our maple trees. But, in spite of the lovely blue sky this Monday morning, it is too chilly to enjoy the outside.

Last week during the hot spell I couldn't resist the beautiful red and purple shades of petunias and snapdragons, which joined my pansies in my flower bed. It is not too early for the pansies, as they are happy to winter over, but now I must cover the other blooming flowers every evening, and of course the impatiens that everyone who attended the Mother-Daughter banquet brings home. That means about eight dozen of impatiens plants were spread around since there were about 80-plus mothers and daughters in attendance. Winners of two of the door prizes were Amy Shaffer, daughter of Beth Shaffer, and Margaret Hershberger's aunt Ferne Myers from Rawlings, who was accompanied by her daughter Brenda, who also won one of my little nature dolls. My complete collection of the nature dolls were on display at the dinner. Ellen Housley made it back in time for the dinner after she had to run down to Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Va., to collect some belongings of her daughter Michele prior to her finishing her junior year.

One of the highlights at the pig roast on Saturday was a karaoke performance. Jimmy Beitzel was in charge of the entertainment, which also included a performance by Lowell Leitzel and the Lowellettes, which included Susan and Jackie Brenneman (their maiden name) and Jenny Knox. One of their songs, "Blowing in the Wind," made me shed a few tears. Larry Roby was in charge of roasting the pig.

I enjoyed a reunion with my second cousin, Peggy Heslip, and her mother, Jean Cope, also from Cumberland. Jean is the daughter of Herbert and Lenora Buckel. Peg and her sister, Margaret Cope, used to come up to their grandparents for Bible school. Peg is the same age as I am, so I was astonished to learn that the baby she was holding was her granddaughter! Also along with them was her daughter-in-law. Either she grew up early or else I grew up late; probably both. I used to be very confused by her name and her sister's name. I am still confused which is which. I think her sister lives in Northern Virginia. When I was a little girl I always thought that my cousins from the "big" city (like Cumberland or Westminster) were very much more sophisticated than the kids from Bittinger. Anyway, they were different. That was good, because any small, closed community like Bittinger needs some fresh air.

It was certainly good to see Betty and Ralph. Aunt "Boo" told me that when she saw a small patch of bluets that I had transplanted, it reminded her when she and my dad, Bob, were little and had picked some of those tiny blue flowers. My dad told his mother, "There is a zillion of them!"

Our old apple tree is still here and is in full blossom, right on schedule for Mother's Day. I know that from a dozen or so years ago when Claire was a tiny little thing and Caitlin was a baby, I put them on the bottom branch and stood behind them, and got Lloyd to take a picture of us all dressed up for the Mother-Daughter Banquet. It is one of the nicest pictures of my girls that I have. Maybe I will get a new one this year. The one tough thing is the large number of bumble bees hanging around.

Ethel Buckel dropped by with some dead daffodils and a few live paper whites from the garden of her daughter Judy. Judy attended the Mother-Daughter Banquet with her mother, and she and her husband, Jack Perkins, from Fayetteville, Ark., are visiting with her parents, Ralph and Ethel, for a week. Dr. Ralph Buckel and wife Sara from Chestertown also visited with the family over the weekend. Other visitors at the Buckels' were Mike and Eleanor Winter, Karen Clevenger, Beth Bicker, and Barbara Butler and her daughter Evie.

JoEllen Graham, St. Albans, W.Va., is visiting her sister, Beulah Moon, for several days. They visited Ruby and Pete Orendorf in LaVale.

Ruth Beachy from Hesston, Pa., visited Ferne Beachy and the Stantons for a week. They visited Gary and Kathleen Fratz, Accident, and Rogers and Elizabeth Fike, Oakland.

Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky visited Lenny's parents, Mary and Andy Salik, in New Kensington, Pa., on Sunday.

OUGABUS SOCIETY MEETS AT MELANIE'S

The annual meeting of the Ougabus Society was held April 28 at Melanie's Restaurant, Aurora. An invention of the name during a moment of anxiety created a bogus society, but continues a very real relationship by the means of these annual reunions, according to an Ougabus spokesperson.

President Ed Husenhaymer (another invention of name by Mike Teets) called the meeting to order and introduced the 2001 hat, official membership cards, and key chains. Routine items of business were conducted and a time for reflection for "Bugs" Layman and the playing of the Ougabus anthem.

Those attending were Pat Adams, Ron Paugh, John Adams, Paul Stemple, Fred Tichnell, Jim Teets, Everett Selders, Jeff Roberson, Jim Winters, Jim Stanton, Phil Stemple, Larry Bolyard, Mike Teets, Bucky Bolyard, Ron Wotring, Guy Halbritter, Wendell Teets, and Tom Adams. Jack Adams and John Myers were unable to attend.

Next year's meeting will be held at Melanie's on April 27, 2002.

Wilda Stemple provided devotions for the April 17 meeting of Aurora CEOS, held in the Union ambulance squad hall. Nine members were present.

"Making Your Life Healthier" was the subject of the lesson by Martha Bolyard, who stated that one in three American adults is overweight. She used a video to lead the group in "Exercises for Over 60's," most of which can be done from a chair. She concluded by reading, "Just for Today."

The plans for the Sept. 9, 75th anniversary celebration of the Farm Women's Club, which became Extension Homemakers prior to CEOS, are proceeding well, according to committee chair, Virginia Martin. The Continuing Education Committee asked for the collection of pill bottles and pop can tabs to continue. Marketing and Membership chair, Opal Myers, reported on the success of "Show How Day" on April 29. The Family Life committee reported the purchase of a book, "Cats' Heaven," by a West Virginia author for the Aurora School library. A repeat request for help with the nutrition of the summer reading program at the school was made by Ressie Conrad.

Several of the CEOS members were in attendance at the April meeting of Union Seniors to hear from Oakland funeral director Mark Durst speak concerning pre-planning of funerals and other matters concerning death.

The NVON Conference will be held in Parkersburg on July 17-19, and for this national event the state is asking for craft items to be provided for sale. National CEOS Week is May 20-26.

Alice Penzo, vice president, read about the use of color on interior spaces. Deloris Slawter showed a stuffed and quilted wall hanging made by Mary Wotring for Edna Slawter, and for which the frame was formed from boards from the Orval Lantz barn.

Kathy Hardesty was winner of the pig-in-the-poke. The next meeting is May 18, and each member is asked to bring along any kind of plant for an exchange.

Wilda Stemple will lead the lesson and Kathy Hardesty is to provide the special feature. The club will also have a team at the June 16 Relay for Life in Kingwood.

On Mother's Day
Jan. 26, 1919 - Sept. 30, 2000

God saw you growing tired,
And getting better was not to be.
So he put his arms around you,
And whispered, "Come with me."
With tearful eyes we watched you suffer,
And saw you fade away.
Although we couldn't bear to lose you,
We could not ask you to stay.
A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands laid to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

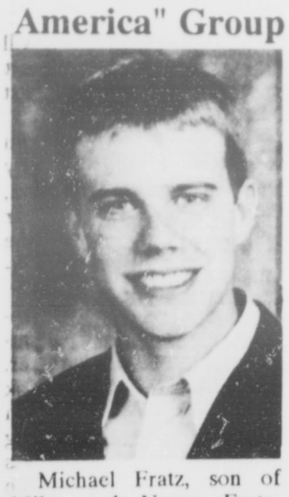
Fratz Selected For "Sound Of America" Group



Michael Fratz, son of Mike and Nancy Fratz, Deep Creek Lake, has qualified for membership in the Sound of America Band and Chorus, a national performance organization. He was selected through a juried process to be a part of the group, and now has the opportunity to join other accomplished music students from across the country to tour Europe this summer.

Acceptance for membership into the performing organization is a distinguished honor, according to Clyde M. Barr, tour coordinator and past state president of the Pennsylvania Music Educators Association and president of the North American Music Festivals. Each applicant is screened and is chosen only after a "rigid character and musical evaluation," Barr said.

A senior at Northern High School, Fratz has been involved in a number of musical endeavors. He is the drum major for this year's award-winning Northern Garrett Marching Band, and was chosen to sing with the Maryland All-State Choir this spring. Fratz has studied voice with Allen Emerick at Frostburg State University for three years. He recently performed in FSU's opera workshop.

Fratz has performed with the Garrett Choral Society for four years, and has been in Our Town Theatre productions. He has been a featured soloist at Brenda's Body Shop's annual recitals, and he is a member of the a cappella choir at Northern. He will appear next month in the choral society's production of Annie, Get Your Gun.

Fratz is involved in several extracurricular activities in addition to his work in music. He is the senior class president at Northern, and serves as a peer mediator and the chairperson of the Teaching Tolerance Committee. He is a member of the high school's Safety Committee, and has served as a class representative in the student government. Fratz is also a member of the Zion Lutheran Church in Accident.

Michael has been accepted to attend Point Park College in Pittsburgh, where he will be in the musical theatre program.

All student performers of Sound of America will meet on the campus of Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., on June 29. After four days of intensive rehearsal and orientation, the group will depart via jet from the John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York for Frankfurt, Germany. The group is scheduled to present eight shows in six countries during its 25-day concert tour.

The countries to be visited by the students are Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Luxembourg. Among the cities on the schedule are Paris, Interlaken, Cortina, Strasbourg, Venice, Verona, Dijon, Innsbruck, and several others.

Barr will conduct the honor band, and the honor chorus will be under the direction of Dr. Stephen W. Ausmann, associate professor of music at the Dana School of Music at Youngstown State University.

Fratz is responsible for all costs involved with the trip and will only be able to take part in Sound of America with the financial help of the community. Donations toward his trip would be greatly appreciated, Michael said, and can be mailed to him at P.O. Box 129, Accident, MD 21520.

Highland Festival Line-Up Includes Scotland Native Christina Harrison

This year's McHenry Highland Festival, slated for Saturday, June 2, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds, will include concert performances by Christina Harrison, a native of Glasgow, Scotland. Harrison, who now makes her home in northeastern Maryland, will perform on the concert stage during the day and at the ceilidh later that evening.

With "a voice capable of warming an iceberg," according to reviewer John O'Regan of Ireland's Limerick, Harrison's versatile repertoire features original, contemporary, and traditional folk songs from Scotland, Ireland, and America. Among her specialties are children's selections, and she has also performed in the classical, jazz, country, bluegrass, and pop genres.

A stage performer since childhood, Harrison has appeared on BBC television, on international radio broadcasts, and in concerts around the world. She produced, directed, and played the lead role in an original musical, Sitting on the Fence, which toured theaters and schools around the U.K. She has also appeared in musicals at the famous Royal Albert Hall in London.

Since moving to the U.S., Harrison has performed at concerts and festivals throughout America and Canada. She has also released three recordings that have garnered high praise: Exiles, a compilation of original folk, Celtic, and country songs; Bonnie Scotland I Adore Thee, an acoustic rendition of all-time favorite Scottish and Irish ballads; and Wee Folk Songs, selections of original and traditional songs for children.

The daylong Highland Festival will also include a family-oriented celebration of the heritage of Scotland, Ireland, Wales, England, and Britanny through music, games, food, storytelling, and cultural demonstrations. Admission to the festival is $10 for anyone 12 and over, and readers of this newspaper can take advantage of a discount coupon that appears elsewhere in this issue. Tickets will only be available at the gate on the day of the festival.

The ceilidh is slated for 7 p.m. to midnight Saturday evening at the fairgrounds. That event will feature Scottish and Celtic fiddle playing, harp and vocal entertainment, appetizers and a cash bar. Ceilidh admis-

SERVING FROM THE LADLE

Give, give, give, cheerfully she gives
To four children plus the twins who need her.
There seems to never be a moment for her,
Only more laundry and more sewing and sweeping.
There are dishes to be washed; more chores to be done,
And yet she is longsuffering
And she reminds the children to be kind.
She may be tired, but tirelessly she ensures that the girls are happy.
She sits in the rocking chair just to say a prayer,
And within her a well serenely fills up with joy.
Just ready for dipping.

A variety show will be held at the Flowery Vale Senior Center in Accident this Saturday, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. This event is being co-sponsored by the Accident Cultural and Historical Society and the Aid Association for Lutherans Branch #585.

Emcee for this event will be Carson "The Trucker" Yoder of WFRB radio.

Among those performing in the show will be the Glade Players, a group of friends who play at Saturday night "jams" using hammered dulcimers, guitars, and upright bass. They have performed at the Meyersdale Maple Festival, the Garrett Community College Galaxy of Stars, and other community events. Members of the group are Matt Eary, Peggy Carr, Catherine Smith, Pat Morfoot, June Holman, Ken Ream, Bonnie Friend, and Connie Skipper.

The Jim Beitzel family from the Accident area will be performing as well. Jim, Jennifer (seventh grade), Chelsie (first grade), and Adam (third grade) will each do country western solos.

Also appearing will be Jessica and Summer Sines of Friendsville, who will present a song and dance routine, "Everybody Wants to be a Cat," from The Aristocats. Jessica is a third grader at Friendsville Elementary School. Summer, who will also perform a solo, "One Voice," is a seventh grade student at Northern Middle School. The girls are the daughters of Marvin and Kimberly Sines.

Kristen DeWitt, daughter of Shari and Rick DeWitt, Accident, and a fourth grade student at Accident Elementary School, will sing the solo "Blessed."

Angela Maust, Accident, will be playing a hammered dulcimer. Ellinor Benedict, who resides in the Grantsville area, will be playing several tunes on the fiddle.

Admission to this event is free; however, donations will be accepted to help support various activities of the Accident Cultural and Historical Society. Free refreshments will be provided by AAL Branch #585.

KEEPSAKES VI SLATED NEXT WEEK — The Southern High School Department of Theatre will present another installment of Keepsakes, a program that has become a tradition for the students studying with teacher/director Jane Avery. The program consists of a series of monologues presented by the students, based on historic people of Garrett County. Several students will portray their own ancestors, Avery noted. The program will take place at Our Town Theatre in Oakland on May 15 and 16, with both shows beginning at 8 p.m. Admission will be $3 per person, with all proceeds going to the high school's Relay for Life team. The cast members, dressed in their character costumes, are pictured above. Homeschoolers To Perform Play At Garrett CC

The senior drama class of the Tree of Life Home Schooling Support Group is making final preparations to perform Snapshots and Portraits. The two-act play will be presented at 7:30 p.m. each evening Thursday through Saturday, May 17-19, in the Garrett Community College auditorium with a cast and crew composed of approximately 25 local home-schooling students from ages 12 to 18. The public is invited and there is no admission charge; however, donation boxes will be available for those who wish to help cover the cost of production. All proceeds received beyond cost will benefit the Tree of Life program.

Snapshots and Portraits is a "humorous look at the struggles families often face in our contemporary society," according to its author, Paul McCusker, who is best known for his work on Adventures in Odyssey. The play is produced under the direction of class instructor Darrell Yoder and by special arrangements with Lillenas Publishing Company. The students have been participating in Tree of Life, a local home-schooling support group which currently involves 43 families. The group offers various classes for home-schooled children and youth on Thursday afternoons at the Springs Mennonite Church, Springs, Pa. Those participating also enjoy field trips and group picnics.

For more information about Tree of Life, persons may contact Karen Skidmore at 301-895-4461. For more information concerning the upcoming play, individuals may contact Yoder at 301-895-3269.

Annie, Get Your Gun

by Bill Grant
Garrett Choral Society

In less than a month, the Garrett Choral Society will present Irving Berlin's Annie Get Your Gun. Over the next few weeks, we will acquaint you with the story and cast behind this famous musical.

The story is based on the real life of Phoebe Ann Mosey, who was born in Darke County, Ohio, in 1860. By the age of 8, she had already learned how to fire a gun, and within a few years, became the main provider for her family, both in terms of food and money, as she sold game to a local hotel. Her fame as a marksman spread throughout the Midwest.

Just as in the musical, Annie defeated vaudeville champion Frank Butler in a trick shooting and marksman competition. The two were married less than a year later. They decided to take their talents on the road, but Frank realized that Annie should have a show name. It was then that she selected the name Annie Oakley, Oakley being the name of an individual who had shown her a kindness years earlier. Over time, Annie's popularity grew to the point that Frank retired from competition and focused his efforts on promoting Annie's career. Annie was recruited to perform for Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

The show traveled to Europe, where Annie performed twice for Queen Victoria in England. She competed with and defeated Russia's Grand Duke Michael. In an incredible exhibition, Annie shot a cigarette from the lips of Kaiser Wilhelm. She remained with the show for a number of years, and her status as a marksman grew to legendary proportions. Annie died in 1926, and, not surprisingly, Frank Butler passed on 18 days later.

In the Garrett Choral Society production of Annie Get Your Gun, Annie will be portrayed by Southern High School sophomore Abigail Getty. Abigail is no stranger to the stage, having performed there many times, and most recently in Our Town Theatre's Fools. The role of Frank Butler goes to area favorite David Callis. Dave has had a long and illustrious career on stage, in concert, and singing barber shoppers. When he is not doing that, he spends time with Beitzel Corporation and his family.

Annie Get Your Gun will be performed in the Mountain Fresh Pavilion in Oakland from June 1 through June 6. Tickets are $8 for adults and $4 for children, and are available at Gregg's Pharmacy or from any cast member. The performances are funded in part by grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and Maryland State Arts Council.

Be on the lookout for more about Annie Get Your Gun in future weeks!

THE WMIL TRACK AND FIELD CHAMPIONSHIPS were hosted last Thursday by Southern High School, a multiple-team event in which the host boys' and girls' teams both finished in second place, while the Northern Huskies finished in fourth (girls) and fifth (boys) places. The photo above left is of the boys' 300 intermediate hurdle final, which was won by Northern's Andy Bowser in 42.72 seconds. Bowser is pictured fourth from left. At far left is his teammate Andy Fike. Above right, Southern sophomore Matt Stephens soars to first place in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 3 inches. Below left, Ram Kyle Snyder heaves the discus for a first-place distance of 123 feet, 5 inches. Below center, Northern's Ashley Elliott leaves the ground in the triple jump competition. A THREE-RUN HOMER is blasted by Southern High School's Ricky Reams in a game against visiting Bishop Walsh on Tuesday, a contest that was won by the Rams, 7-5, giving them their 19th straight win without a defeat. Below, winning pitcher Bryson Meyers attempts to connect with first baseman Jared Fike to pick off the BW runner. The Rams lost their first game of the year yesterday to Fort Hill. See story. Perfect Season For Rams Is Dashed By Fort Hill

A perfect regular season in any sport is rare, and the Southern Rams were within one game of recording one in baseball, but that dream was dashed yesterday by the Fort Hill Sentinels, who handed the Rams an 11-9 defeat after they had amassed 19 straight victories. It was the final regular-season contest for Coach Jim Bosley and his team.

The Rams came into the contest having posted a 6-0 defeat of host Beall on Friday, a 15-3 whipping of Preston in Kingwood on Saturday, and a 7-5 defeat of visiting Bishop Walsh on Tuesday.

Despite yesterday's loss, Southern won the Western Maryland Interscholastic League this week, will most likely be declared the Area champion, and will go into next week's Region I playoffs as the top-seeded team.

The Rams wasted no time taking control of Friday's WMIL game against Beall, as they erupted for four runs in the first inning. A triple by Ricky Reams brought home Chad Panther, who had singled. After Joel Helbig drew a walk, Steve Eiswert, Kevin Goralski, and Brad Palmer all hit back-to-back RBI singles to give Southern its 4-0 advantage.

Both teams went scoreless for the next 3½ innings. Southern added an insurance run in the fifth and one in the seventh.

The Rams finished with 10 hits, with Goralski rapping a double and a single for one RBI, Palmer getting two singles for two RBI, and Panther also contributing two singles.

Justin DiSimone earned the win on the mound, going the distance, striking out seven, and walking only one. The victory upped DiSimone's personal season mark to 6-0.

Getting two singles each for the Mountaineers were Ryan Harper and Jim Taylor.

The Ram bats ripped the Preston defense on Saturday for 18 hits, while Southern pitchers Josh Fitzwater and Brian Hauser allowed a total of only four hits by the Knights.

Preston did hold a brief 3-2 lead after the first inning was completed, but the Rams put six runs on the board in the second to regain the lead for good. They added one run in the third and three each in the fourth and sixth innings.

DiSimone and Tobi Stoner each had two doubles and a single for two RBI apiece, Jared Fike and Ryan Ewing each had a triple and a single, and Goralski provided a pair of singles for three RBI.

Fitzwater, who pitched into the final inning, was awarded the win on the mound, his fourth of the season.

The Rams also had to play catch-up ball against Bishop Walsh on Tuesday, as the Spartans took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Southern rallied for two runs in the bottom of that inning, but the Spartans regained the lead with two runs in the top of the fourth. The Rams finally took the lead for good with three runs in the bottom of the fourth, added two runs in the fifth, and held on for the win after giving up one run to BW in the final frame.

The Spartans took their 2-0 lead in the first on a two-run homer by Aaron Wagner.

The Rams tied it at 2-2 as, with two outs, DiSimone singled, Helbig reached on an error, Palmer brought home DiSimone with a double, and Helbig scored on a wild pitch.

Wagner singled home Brett Seifarth and then scored on an error to give Bishop Walsh its 4-2 lead in the top of the fourth. But a three-run homer by Ricky Reams put the Rams back on top, 5-4.

Jared Fike smacked a two-run homer for Southern in the fifth to ultimately secure the win.

Ryan Ewing had two singles in the Rams' seven-hit effort, while Wagner finished with a homer and a single to account for half of the Spartans' four hits.

Bryson Meyers upped his personal record on the mound to 6-0 by going the distance, fanning eight batters, and walking only one.

The Rams clinched the WMIL title when Fort Hill lost to Westmar, 4-2, on Tuesday. But the Sentineis wasted no time yesterday in their quest to prove that the Rams are indeed fallible, as they put seven runs on the board in the top of the first inning.

The Rams and starting pitcher Justin DiSimone finally regained their composure and rallied with three runs in the bottom of the first, three in the second, and two in the third while holding the Sentinels scoreless to take an 8-7 advantage.

However, in their worst defensive effort of the season, the Rams committed a number of crucial errors, allowing the Sentinels to regain the lead in the top of the fourth, and finally break a 9-9 tie with two runs in the sixth for the win. In fact, only the first four runs of the Sentinels were earned.

"They hit the ball very well," Coach Bosley said, "so they deserve the credit for the win. But they also made far fewer mistakes than we did."

The Rams recorded an unprecedented six errors for the game, having come into the contest averaging just one error per outing.

Bosley said last week that he was wary of the Rams' final two outings, and almost predicted a breakdown. "I kept telling our players that they had to be sharp and focused every single game, because it would take only a few mistakes to lose one," he said. "I knew that it could happen against either one of our final opponents (Bishop Walsh or Fort Hill)."

The first pitch of the game by DiSimone was prophetic and an ominous sign for the Rams, as Fort Hill catcher Mario Bascelli smacked the ball over the fence to give the Sentinels a 1-0 lead.

With two outs, Fort Hill proceeded to add six more

Huskies Swat Hornets, Fall To Alco; On Road For 1A Playoffs

Northern High School's varsity softball team ended its regular season this week after opening by throttling Hyndman Monday 11-4, then closed out on the receiving end of an 11-2 Allegany thumping Tuesday. The Huskies recorded a 4-14 mark on the year (0-10 WMIL) and are slated to open the Maryland Class 1A West Region playoffs Monday afternoon at Clear Spring. NHS goes into playoff competition seeded fourth, while Clear Spring comes in as the fifth seed.

Junior pitcher Jolene Brenneman turned in a fine seven-inning complete game performance Monday, striking out six Hornets and scattering just six hits along the way.

Hyndman got the scoring started in the third inning with a single run. Northern responded in kind with one fourth inning score by Brenneman, who walked, stole second, advanced on a fielder's choice, then stole home.

The speedy Huskies then rumbled to a three-run fifth with the help of base pilfery. Tabitha Beitzel struck out but reached first on a passed ball by the Hornets' catcher. Beitzel stole second and third, then she and Kristie Johnson, who had walked and stolen second, both came home on Brooke Butler's two-RBI single. Butler then stole second and third, and scored on another passed ball. The Hornets scored once in the bottom of the stanza.

NHS scored twice in the sixth after Amanda Frantz and Brandi Perez singled and executed a perfect double steal to land in scoring position on second and third. Both runners then scored on consecutive passed balls. Northern exploded for five runs in the seventh, as a Frantz basehit drove home Autumn Kitchen and Lyndsi Butler, a Johnson basehit scored Frantz, and Johnson scored on a Hyndman error.

The Huskies rapped out a number of hits on the day, and the sophomore trio of left fielder Johnson, third baseman Perez, and catcher Frantz each tallied two hits and two RBI. Beitzel's baserunning complemented her excellent day at shortstop, where she had been moved to from the outfield to fill in for an injured Bridget Frazee. Hyndman's fielders did what damage NHS's hitters didn't do by committing four errors in the field. The Hornets' record fell to 2-16.

NORTHERN (2)

Allegany	342	002	0	-	11	5	1

Jen Cook, Lacy Smith (3) and Shannae Proud; Jolene Brenneman, Brandi Perez (2) and Amanda Frantz, Lyndsi Butler (5).

Tuesday's season closer against Allegany, played in weather better suited to football than softball, featured a strong batting performance by freshman Lyndsi Butler, who ripped a triple and a double to drive in both of Northern's runs. After Frantz whacked a run-scoring fourth-inning triple and sustained an ankle injury on the play, Butler was called in from the outfield to assume catching duties.

Brenneman got off to a rocky pitching start and was lifted for Perez in the second. Perez came to the mound with the bases loaded and two outs, and tossed one pitch that came back at her as a soft ground ball, then she tossed the Camper hitter out at first to get out of the jam. The sophomore gave up only two hits over the remaining five full innings of work. Allegany lifted its record to 11-3 with the win.

AN NHS PICK-OFF ATTEMPT by Northern High varsity baseball relief pitcher Greg Whittemore came up just short yesterday when the Allegany baserunner got back to first base just under the tag of first baseman Trey Brenneman. The reliever had come to the mound in the fifth to spell starting NHS pitcher Dan Vagnetti, pictured below uncorking a curveball—Note the position of his hand as he has just snapped his wrist over in releasing the ball. The game ended in a 7-2 Northern defeat, and the Huskies are taking a 7-13 season mark into Monday's Maryland Class 1A West Region playoff opener at Clear Spring.

Huskies Close With Losses To Fort Hill, Alco; Playoffs Ahead

Northern High School's varsity baseball team fell at home to a pair of powerful Cumberland-based squads this week, dropping a 12-1 contest to Fort Hill Thursday and a 7-2 outing against Allegany yesterday. NHS closes the regular season at 7-13 (2-8 WMIL), and the Huskies are the seventh seed in Monday's opening round of the Maryland Class 1A West Region playoffs. Northern travels to Clear Spring to take on the second-seeded hosts there.

Fort Hill's scoring Thursday came fast and furious, as the Sentinels scored three times in the first, five runs in the second, and added four scores in the third. The Sentinels' outbursts were sparked by a Ryan Shope three-run home run and a Tony Fetters solo homer. The action lifted Fort Hill's record to 14-4.

Northern, which scored once in the second inning was held to three hits on the day. Two of those hits were supplied by senior third baseman Mark Wolf, who doubled and singled.

Yesterday against Alco the Huskies rapped out seven basehits overall, but the Campers had jumped out to a two-run first inning lead and never looked back. Northern cut the margin in half in the bottom of the first inning, then Allegany scored once in the second and once in the fourth to make the score 4-1.

Sophomore Landon Southerly singled in a run in the bottom of the fourth to pull the Huskies to within two. The Campers scored three times in the top of the sixth, then NHS let a rally opportunity slip away in the bottom of the closing stanza. With men on second and third and one out, Alco complete-game pitcher Matt Miller got one batter to pop out and then whiffed the next batter to finish off his victory and take the Campers' record to 12-7.

Junior catcher Bryan Lenhart doubled and singled for the Huskies, and Wolf added a double of his own.

NHS JVs Take Two, Drop Four On Diamond

The junior varsity baseball squad of Northern High School had a packed week of action over the last six days, and are slated to go at it again this afternoon. The 3-11 Huskies recorded two of the three wins on season this week by downing Beall Friday and Turkeyfoot yesterday, but lost four in the process.

Last Thursday NHS fell by a 3-0 score at Allegany. Although the Huskies' offense managed just three singles, NHS complete-game pitcher Jason Rice had a fine day on the mound. The sophomore struck out six Campers and allowed just seven hits.

Northern rebounded to take a 7-6 nailbiter over Beall the following day in Accident. With the score knotted at six in the bottom of the second, Billy Jones came to the plate for NHS and stroked the game-winning single that scored a speedy Danny Ellis from second. In addition to Jones's clutch hit, the Huskies got a two-run double from Derrell Smith, an RBI double from Chad Carr, two singles from Ellis, and an additional single from Jones.

Northern dropped a twinbill to Southern Saturday, 15-5 and 19-2. (See SHS junior varsity account for details.)

NHS dropped a 5-2 contest at Fort Hill Tuesday, garnering just five hits off the Sentinel pitcher. Ellis blasted a two-run home run in the final inning to account for the Huskies' scores, but his shot was the only Northern extra-base hit on the day.

The Huskies rebounded yesterday to take a 5-4 win over Turkeyfoot in Confluence, Pa. Carr ripped an RBI double, and Derek Workman stroked an RBI single for NHS, while Torrey Poholsky and Alan King added doubles of their own.

Northern's jayvees are slated to travel to Cumberland today to take on the Bishop Walsh Spartans.

Bosley Perfect In Beall Victory; Rams Roll Over Westmar, Alco

It was three up, three down for five straight innings Friday as Southern High School varsity softball pitching sensation Jennifer Bosley notched a 10-0 perfect game win over Beall before a delighted home crowd. The junior hurler struck out 12 of the 15 Mountaineer batters she faced in the week's opener, then followed up perfection with near-perfection as she tossed a one-hitter Tuesday to down visiting Westmar 17-0. Yesterday Bosley had a no-hitter going into the final inning of a 12-1 Rams' victory over second-ranked Allegany before surrendering three singles in the Campers' final gasps at the plate.

The Rams conclude their regular season with a 17-2 record (9-0 WMIL), and the league and Area champs are ready to get on with the hunt as they enter the Maryland Class 1A Region playoffs seeded at the top of the pack. Southern is slated to host eighth seed Hancock in a 4:30 p.m. playoff opener Monday in Oakland.

Friday's victory over the Mountaineers clinched the WMIL title for Southern. Bosley's perfect game, her third no-hitter of the year, included two flyball outs and one ground out in addition to her dozen strikeouts. She was perfect at the plate as well, going 3 for 3 with a triple, double, and single.

SHS opened up with one run in the first inning, then exploded for a five-run third. Junior outfielder Megan Burner ripped a two-run double during the flurry, and Bosley and catcher Gina Reeves contributed back-to-back singles before coming home on a sacrifice fly and a fielder's choice. Four more Southern runs crossed the plate in the fifth inning, with junior shortstop Ashley Liller's bases-loaded single putting the final nails in Beall's coffin.

For the day, Burner added a single to her two-RBI double, junior third baseman Autumn Uphold added a double and a single, and Reeves and Liller each had a pair of singles and one RBI. Southern pelted the Mounties' pitcher for 13 hits overall.

Westmar opened Tuesday's contest with a leadoff single, but the hit was just a blip on the radar as Bosley went to work and didn't allow another basehit over the remainder of the contest. She fanned 10 Wildcats in the five-inning, complete game effort, and slugged a two-run home run to boot.

Erica Green, a junior infielder, stoked the Rams to an early lead by ripping a two-out double that drove three runs across the plate. Southern's leading hitter and lone senior, outfielder Stacy Scripp, came to the plate in the second inning with the bases loaded and knocked a single that scored three runs.

Liller centerpieced a seven-run Ram third inning with a three-run double, followed by Bosley's two-run shot in the fourth. Four of SHS's seven hits during the slugfest were doubles, including freshman Jenna Rush's two-bagger.

Yesterday against visiting Allegany, the Rams opened with two runs in the first inning, then scored three runs in the second, four in the third, and three more in their final at-bats in the fourth. They cracked 11 basehits off the Campers' pitching staff.

Third baseman Autumn Uphold had a big day at the plate, whacking a double and a single to drive in one run and score four more herself. Liller doubled once and singled twice for two RBI, and Bosley doubled and singled twice.

Bosley worked all five innings on the mound, striking out six and walking two. She gave up all three of Alco's singles in the final inning, and her jitters (relatively speaking) were compounded by an SHS fielding error.

The Rams' 4 p.m. playoff opener Monday afternoon against Hancock is tentatively slated for radio broadcast on 92.3-FM "The Train" and 1050-AM WMSG. Tune in to those stations over the weekend for further details.

Lakers Roll Over Essex, 12-0, In Playoff Opener

The baseball team of Garrett Community College advanced in the Region XX JUCO Conference tournament this week by ripping visiting Essex CC on Tuesday, 12-0. The victory sent the fourth-seeded Lakers into a 1 p.m. game this Friday against top-seeded Potomac State College.

Garrett put three runs on the board in the first inning against Essex, doubled that total in the third frame, and then put the game away with six runs in the fourth. The contest was called after 4½ innings because of the 10-run rule.

Jason DiAngelo went the distance on the mound for the Lakers, allowing just three hits, striking out six, and allowing only one walk. He aided his own cause at the plate by smacking a two-run homer in the first inning.

Chad Cooper led off Garrett's half of the first with a triple, and came home on a single by Matt Mills. DiAngelo followed with his home run to put the Lakers up 3-0.

Ryan Wetzel led off the Lakers' three-run third with a single. He later scored on a double by Brandon Stewart. Josh Bosley followed with a walk, Tim Casey hit an RBI single to score Stewart, and Bosley came home when Cooper hit into a fielder's choice.

Garrett's six-run fourth began when Dan Kochenderfer singled and Wetzel walked to set up an RBI single by Craig Barkey. Stewart and Bosley were then each hit by a pitch to bring Barkey home for a run. Casey followed with a walk that also plated a run, and Mills followed with a three-run double to complete the scoring.

Mills finished with four RBI with his double and single, while Casey also had a double and a single, and Kochenderfer contributed two singles.

The victory upped the Lakers' overall mark to 20-20.

Allegany College of Maryland is seeded second in the tournament, which is being hosted by the Lakers. Hagerstown is third, Essex was fifth, and Anne Arundel is seeded sixth. Potomac State and Allegany each received byes in the first round.

Potomac State (29-7) ended the Lakers' season last year in the playoffs, handing them 5-0 and 18-17 defeats.

The Garrett-Potomac State game will get under way Friday at 1 p.m. Allegany, ranked 19th in the nation, will face Hagerstown CC at 10 a.m. Hagerstown defeated the Trojans three times during the regular season.

WRAPPING UP THEIR REGULAR SEASON with a victory over Dundalk on Friday were the Garrett Community College Lakers, who also won their first Region XX playoff contest Monday against Essex, 12-0. Starting pitcher against Dundalk was Nathan Gayman, pictured above left, who was relieved by former Southern High School standout Josh Bosley, above right. runs to that total, as Matt Dicks rapped a two-run shot to make it 3-0. Justin Mallow followed with an RBI single. An error put the next Fort Hill batter on base, and Nathan Wigger followed with a three-run homer to put the visitors up 7-0.

Southern's rally began in the bottom of the first when Ricky Reams and Joel Helbig hit back-to-back singles, Brad Palmer walked to load the bases, and Jared Fike followed with a double to plate three runs.

The Rams cut the Fort Hill lead to one with three more runs in the second inning, as DiSimone hit an RBI single and Palmer brought home two more runs with a single.

A double by Reams in the third plated a pair of runs to give Southern its first and only lead of the game at 8-7.

A run-producing single by Fort Hill's Chad Keller in the top of the fourth knotted the score at 8-8, and an error led to another run to put the Sentinels up 9-8.

An RBI single by Southern's Chad Panther in the bottom of the fifth tied the score once again at 9-9.

Fort Hill won the game in the top of the sixth when a pair of wild pitches led to two runs, as one runner had reached base on an error and the second with a single.

The Rams finished with a 14-9 lead in hits, with DiSimone and Tony Fetters each going the distance.

The Rams will begin their final quest for a state championship on Monday when they host eighth-seeded Beall in a 4:45 Region I playoff contest. Clear Spring is seeded second and will face number seven Northern, while third-seeded Hancock will play sixth-seeded Williamsport, and Allegany, ranked fourth, will take on fifth-seeded Westmar.

In Memory of Our Mothers
Mary Werdebaugh May 8, 1907 - Feb. 21, 1990
Edith Friend June 30, 1898 - April 1, 1977

If roses bloom in heaven, Lord
Please pick a bunch for us.
Place them in our Mothers' arms
And tell them they're from us.
Tell them we love and miss them
And when they turn to smile,
Place a kiss upon their cheek
And hold them for awhile.
Remembering them is easy,
We do it every day.
There's an ache within our hearts
That will never go away.

Until we meet in Heaven some beautiful day,
The Werdebaugh Family

Almost 15 years ago, I graduated from cosmetology school and got my first job on Water Street. Barbara Jo McCrobie hired me, knowing that I was as green as they come. With her help and the help of my co-workers, Deb Raynovich and Belinda Landon, I not only learned the mechanics of this business, I also learned what customers are all about.
After making a few poor decisions in life (I got married to a jerk and moved away), I found my way back home to Oakland.
I worked for Phyliss Trickett on Second Street a few years, and then eventually she retired and my mother bought the business. The fire of 1994 forced us to relocate to Mtn. Lake Park. Through it all my customers were there.
Recently I had to have some major surgery, and like always, my customers, who have grown over the years to be called friends, were there....Thank you! All the flowers, cards, food, the phone calls—You went beyond the call of duty and did for me what a family does in a time of crisis. You truly touched my heart, and I will be forever grateful.
Now, almost 7 years after moving, I've decided to come back home to Second Street in downtown Oakland. The new shop will open May 15, 2001. I want to personally thank Ed and Sheila Garland, Mikey Nazelrod, Rose Ann Riley, Susan Liller and Barbara Jo McCrobie, but most of all, I want to thank my Mom and Dad. Their love and support is what gave me the strength I needed to finally spread my wings and grow. And to my husband Craig, thank you for being the wind beneath my wings....

Ram Jayvees Finish With 12-4 Record

The junior varsity baseball team of Southern High School concluded its 2001 campaign this week by winning four games and posting a record of 12-4 under Coach Tom Bosley. The Rams rolled over the visiting Keyser jayvees last Thursday, 11-3, swept the Northern Huskies in Oakland on Saturday, 15-5 and 19-2, and rallied from a four-run deficit to defeat host Fort Hill on Monday, 10-8.

Southern wasted no time taking control of Keyser last Thursday, by scoring five runs in the first inning behind run-producing singles by Jason Weeks and Dennis Tressler to wipe out a brief 1-0 lead by the Golden Tornadoes.

Corey Szaphran gave Keyser that 1-0 lead with a solo homer in the first inning.

Tressler led the Rams' offense with three singles for three RBI, while Weeks recorded three RBI on two singles. Nathan Fitzwater also singled twice for two RBI.

Jake Everline and Brian Wilson each finished with two singles for Keyser.

Tressler struck out eight Northern batters in the opening game of Saturday's doubleheader, while Andrew Feather and Billy Reams paced the Rams' hitting. Feather stroked two doubles for a pair of RBI, and Reams hit a double and a single for three RBI. Corey Burrell and Curt Taylor each hit two singles for two RBI, and Taylor also scored twice.

The Huskies' offensive effort was led by Allen King with a double and a single for two RBI, and Jason Rice with two singles and two runs scored.

Reams fired a no-hitter in the second game, striking out seven in the process.

Jay Tressler finished with a double and three RBI for the Rams, Weeks added a double and three RBI, and Tressler recorded a double and two RBI, and also scored three times.

The Rams put six runs on the board in the final inning of Monday's game against Fort Hill, after allowing the Sentinels to build an 8-4 lead.

Busy Week Of Tennis Action Includes NHS/SHS Showdown

Despite the balmy temperatures, winter struck with a vengeance again this week as both the Northern and Southern high school varsity tennis squads had full slates on the courts, compounded by weather delayed make-up matches. Once the dust finally settled, the week's scorecard read as follows: on Thursday, the SHS girls downed Frankfort 5-2; on Monday the NHS girls swept Southern 7-0, while the Ram boys downed the Huskies 4-3; and yesterday, the Northern girls thumped Bishop Walsh 6-1 while the Husky boys fell to the Spartans by a 6-1 tally, and the Ram girls fell to Fort Hill 5-2, while the SHS boys fell to the Sentinels by a narrow 4-3 margin.

Thursday's contest between the Southern girls and the Falcons at Frankfort opened with Britney Ashby's 8-1 top-seed singles victory. The Rams dropped the Number 2 match 8-2 before third seed Tasha Seilhamer downed her opponent 8-6. Kristin Stanton played to an 8-8 deadlock with her Falcon counterpart before retiring. The Rams swept the doubles action, beginning with an 8-5 victory of top seeded team of Ashby/Sarah Teets; Stephanie Smith/Marla Watkins then took a 7-5, 9-8 win, and Mayjel Skeweris and Ann Johnson closed out with an 8-6 triumph.

Monday's showdown in the Cove between Northern and Southern opened with the Huskies' 7-0 girls' sweep. NHS's Heather Lander opened with a 10-8 win over Teets, Ashley Robinson downed Ashby 10-6, Renee Myers knocked off Seilhamer 10-4, and Christie Flockhart took a 10-7 win over Skeweris before Miriah Fletcher capped singles play with a 10-0 sweep of Ann Johnson. Doubles play was much tighter competition throughout, as Lander/Flockhart had to play to an 11-9 score to down the Teets/Ashby team, and Rachel Bruch/Andrea Green took a 10-8 squeaker over Smith/Watkins.

Boys' play featured some powerful individual performances. SHS's Josh Stephens opened singles competition with an 8-0 sweep of Mike Fletcher, then the Huskies' Woody Kenner knotted the standings with an 8-2 triumph over Dustin Slider. Northern's Mark Bergstrom took the third seed match with an 8-0 sweep over Willie Davis, and teammate Martin Scholze downed Jeremy Durst 8-2. Kody Morfoot put the Rams back into the win column with an 8-4 victory over Mike Yommer. Southern needed a pair of doubles victories to take the match, and barely got the first one as Stephens/Slider took a narrow 9-8 win over Fletcher/Kenner. With the match hanging in the balance at 3-all, the Rams' Nick Perry/Nathan Gregg duo mounted a scathing attack to claim an 8-1 victory and put Southern on top with the win.

Yesterday's NHS/Bishop Walsh match closed the regular season for the Huskies with a split, as the girls won and the boys lost, both by identical 6-1 tallies.

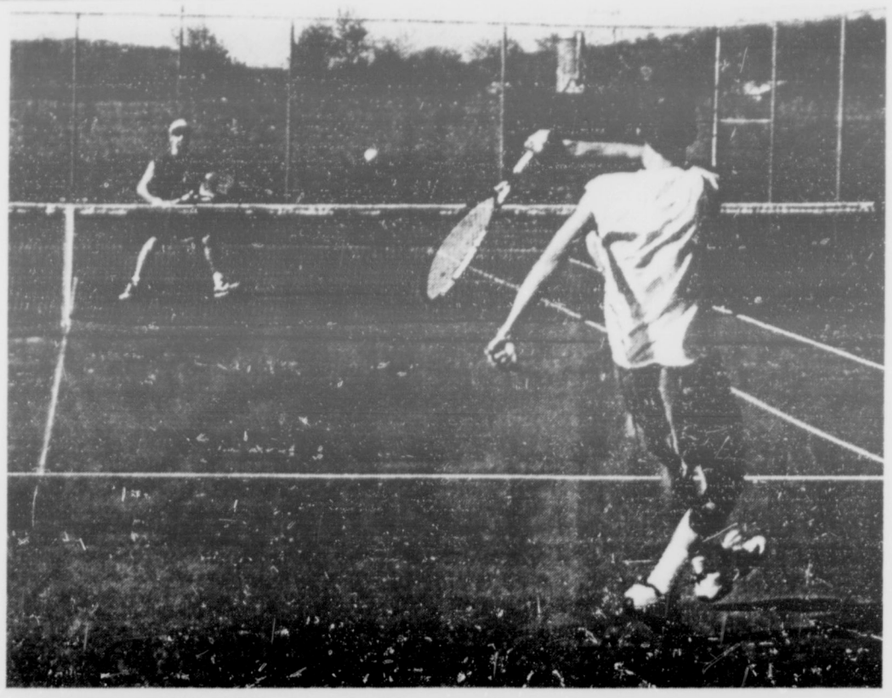
Girls' singles play opened with NHS's Ashley Robinson dropping a 10-4 decision, but the Huskies went on a tear from then on: Meyers took a 10-6 win; Flockhart netted a 10-0 sweep; Fletcher won 10-4; and Katie Larkin closed singles competition with a 10-0 sweep of her own. The Northern juggernaut continued steaming along in doubles play, as Green/Nicole Sisler took a 10-2 triumph, and Emily Downton/Annie Donaldson won 10-4.

The boys had a tougher go of things, as Bishop Walsh reeled off consecutive singles wins over Fletcher, Kenner, Bergstrom, Scholze, and Yommer, as well as a doubles win over Fletcher/Kenner, before Colleen DuBose/Adam Brenneman staved off a full sweep with an 8-6 win in the finale.

Southern's home outing against Fort Hill found the Rams not at the top of their game as well. Fort Hill took each of the five singles matches as Ashby, Teets, Johnson, Seilhamer, and Skeweris each went down swinging. The Ram girls rebounded to take both doubles matches behind an 8-0 sweep by Seilhamer/Ashby, and an 8-5 victory netted by Smith/Watkins.

Stephens got the boys' squad off on the right foot by recording an 8-2 win in the top seed singles match, but the Sentinels roared back with consecutive wins over Slider, Davis, and Durst. Morfoot closed out singles play with a hard-earned 7-2, 9-8 victory in the fifth flight match. Doubles play resulted in a split, as Stephens/ Slider opened with an 8-0 sweep, then Perry/Gregg fell by an 8-2 margin.

Southern's boys and girls take to their home court today against Bishop Walsh, with first service slated for 4:30 p.m. Northern's program has concluded for the regular season with the girls standing at an excellent 9-4, and the boys mark at 4-7. The Huskies are slated to take part in the Bi-County Tournament this weekend.



HUSKIES, RAMS MEET ON COURTS - The Northern Huskies and Southern Rams met on the tennis courts at the Cove this week, with the Rams edging the Huskies by a 4-3 margin. Doing battle in the photo above are Northern's Mike Fletcher, in the foreground, and Southern's Josh Stephens. Stephens, who is undefeated this season, won the match. Below are Ram Dustin Slider, left, and Husky Woody Kenner, who emerged as the victor in that match. See story for details. Photos by John McEwen.

an error and then came home on a double by Reams. The bases were then loaded and the Rams picked up runs on squeeze plays. On the third bunt, the ball got away from the Sentinel catcher to allow what would be the winning runs to score.

Weeks and Rodney Baker each recorded two singles for the Rams, and Burrell went the distance on the mound for the win.

Austin Williams hit a two-run homer for Fort Hill, Jimmy Taylor provided a triple and a single, and Ryne Garver hit two singles. The loss dropped Fort Hill to 8-5.

THE MUMMY RETURNS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:08 - Released 5/4/01

It seems as though the film industry never tires of selling its soul for money. At the onset of each summer's blockbuster season, we are reminded how much progress has been made in the field of computer-generated effects and to what extent they are substituted for meaningful screenplays. No wonder there's an impending writer's strike. Don't get me wrong — The Mummy Returns, like its 1999 predecessor The Mummy, is no doubt a fun movie to watch, jam-packed full of exciting action sequences and tongue-in-cheek humor. But also like The Mummy, it has about as much intelligence as a video game. Again we see a total dispensation of logic in favor of awesome CGI effects, colorful scenery, and loud, loud, loud sounds. And again we see Brendan Fraser camping it up as a younger, sillier version of Indiana Jones, and failing to create the slightest romantic spark with Rachel Weisz.

Returning to what has obviously become his signature role, Fraser's hesitant explorer Rick O'Connell is found once again prowling around in the dank depths of Egyptian property in 1933 with his now wife Evie (Weisz), but this time they are accompanied by their precocious son Alex (Freddie Boath). Following the hunches of the seemingly clairvoyant Evie, who claims to have been an ancient Egyptian in a former life, the pair comes upon a scorpion-shaped gold bracelet which, when activated, will supposedly re-awaken the legendary scorpion king (played at first by WWF star "The Rock" and then later by a group of computer pixels fashioned in such a way as to resemble the head, shoulders, and torso of WWF star "The Rock" attached to the body of a large scorpion) who will then wreak havoc on the known world. If only I had my RAID. And, of course, the bracelet is activated by none other than little Alex, who, while surprisingly intelligent despite his apparent exemption from school, suffers from the common young boy malady of curiousness compounded by a lust for adventure.

As if the danger inherent in this scenario weren't enough, Rick and Evie are also once again pursued by their old gauze-clad foe Imhotep (Arnold Vosloo), who has been re-awakened because "he's the only one tough enough to take on the scorpion king," and accompanied by Evie's wimpy but occasionally useful brother Jonathan (John Hannah). But Imhotep also has an ally in his 3000-year-old but surprisingly fit for her age girlfriend Anck-Su-Namun (Patricia Velazquez), who seems to have it in for Evie because of some ancient jealousy. This not only adds another dimension to the story but provides ample opportunity for plenty of girl-fight action. Yay.

Writer/director Stephen Sommers stays faithful to the stylistic precepts he established with the '99 movie but makes the necessary forward movements, complementing the returning cast with some shiny new effects technology. It's like a roller-coaster ride: gut-churningly fun and exciting unless it goes on too long, in which case your ass starts to hurt. Designed to be of maximum interest to those fascinated by bright, shiny objects, the film is filled with discrepancies that would make even entry-level Egyptologists gag, like mistaking a common black snake for a deadly Egyptian asp and transplanting the pyramids from Giza to Cairo (imagine passing that "Wide Load" truck on the highway). The humor is clever on about an 8th-grade level and the personal relationships achingly impersonal, especially between the married couple and their child, all three of whom act affectionate only when some specific plot element requires that they do so. But hey, we're not here to see human interaction, are we? Welcome to blockbuster season, folks. ★★★★

CARMAN: THE CHAMPION

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:22 - Released 3/2/01

I have to admit that Lee Stanley's Carman: The Champion, the film project of the popular contemporary Christian singer/TV evangelist known as "Carman," is not as terrible as I expected. That's not to say that it's terrifically good. But when I read of the man's desire to incorporate his film into what he calls "the largest evangelism effort of the new millennium," I thought, oh no — the film would be little more than a feature-length religious pitch with no technique or production value. I was pleasantly surprised to see that it is merely a lower-quality, spiritually charged version of Rocky about a former champion boxer who returns to the ring in order to secure the ownership of a ministry formerly run by his deceased father. The script (penned by Carman with help from director Stanley and others) is a heavy-handed, overwrought affair, featuring things like surly mafia men who control the fights and murder people but are never prosecuted, cars that burst into huge fireballs when they have a collision just like on The Simpsons, and (get this) a fighter with a brain injury called "Radical Parkinsonism," the effect of which is that if he gets hit in the head, he'll die. Talk about a bad career choice. There is, however, very little preaching going on in this movie at all, unless you count the suggestion of such by the fact that its writer and star is an evangelist trying to spread the Word — a factor that by itself has a tendency to color the whole experience.

Carman, whose name is apparently only in the title for marketing purposes, plays former cruiserweight champion Orlando Leone, who left the fighting game in disgrace after a losing season followed by his father's mysterious death. Having taken over the old man's L. A. ministry 10 years ago (in addition to his day job as a hotel security guard), he finds that dwindling membership and the threat of foreclosure are forcing him to consider abandoning his dream of a beautiful new youth center. Meanwhile we are introduced to Keshon Banks (Jeremy Williams), the spoiled current champ who lives a decadent life of women, drink, and parties. When one of Banks's indiscretions happens in the hotel guarded by Orlando, he is called to the scene where a fistfight makes headlines. Soon Orlando's sinister brother Freddie (Michael Nouri), who works ostensibly as Banks's manager but really has ties to the mob, offers to pay off the mortgage on the ministry if Orlando meets up with Banks for one fight.

Alongside the boxing scenario we have a sub plot about a young boy named Cesar (Romeo Fabian), pestered by a gang of drug-running teens. Orlando befriends him and puts him to work at the ministry, thereby meeting the boy's sultry, sexy señorita of a mother Allia (Mexican actress Patricia Manterola, making her first appearance in an American film), who is at first dubious because she had a bad experience with a church man in the past, but soon accepts her role as Orlando's version of Rocky's Adrian.

Those who are followers of Carman will probably enjoy this film, and those who are not will probably never see it. While its star has charm and good looks, as an actor he is little more than adequate. Moreover, his screenplay, with its maudlin, oversimplified character interaction and after-school-special tone, has little to recommend it to anyone other than his fans (even die-hard boxing devotees would have to be pretty hard up to seek this out at the video store). So in effect, one could say that Carman is literally preaching to the choir. But if his movie has the ability to sucker-punch a couple more souls into salvation, then more power to him. ★★½

To our dear mother,
Inez Kitzmiller,
on Mother's Day with love and gratitude for all you've given and all you are. From your children...

Then in my mind I see her hands again...chapped, red and rough from doing the family laundry and hanging the clothes to dry in freezing weather; blistered from long hours of hoeing in the garden; scarred with burns from cooking prodigious meals on a woodburning stove and canning fruits and vegetables in the summer so that her large family would have them to eat in the winter. These were the same hands that bathed and dressed her babies and fastened a myriad of tiny buttons; that brought a soothing coolness to youngsters abed with fever; that gathered bouquets to gladden the house; and dried the tears of her children when they were hurt. These were gentle hands, gentler than any I've ever known.

Beachy's Pharmacy

SUE AND GERRY BEACHY

Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville, has undergone major changes in its design to make access to the pharmacist easier. With the advent of newer, more complicated medications, it is important for patients to have better access to drug information. The pharmacy has installed a new, private consulting area to allow the pharmacist to better answer questions from concerned patients. To make shopping more convenient, a new drive-up window is now open.

Beachy's is a member of Epic Pharmacies, and its new web site offers a wealth of information for the web savvy patient. Prescriptions can be transferred to Beachy's with a few simple entries by the patient after logging on to the site. Refills can also be ordered easily from the same location at beachyspharmacy.com.

A renovation celebration will be held May 14-18, and patients will have the opportunity to see Beachy's new look firsthand. Prizes to be given away during the renovation celebration week will include a TV/VCR and a free Dish Network satellite TV system. All Valu-Rite store brands will be on sale, and many items will be 50% off. There will be free refreshments all week.

In these days of super stores, it's becoming harder and harder to find a business with personal service directly from the owners. Family-owned by Gerry and Sue Beachy, Beachy's Pharmacy caters to its clients with convenient front and rear parking that includes a hitching post for Amish customers.

The pharmacy, located at 149 Main Street in the center of Grantsville, offers complete prescription service, including free pick-up and delivery in Grantsville. Beachy's pharmacy computer helps to maintain prescription records and, more importantly, performs harmful drug-drug interaction checks, protecting patients for over 15 years. The service has been updated many times, now providing easy-to-read drug information for the patient every time a new prescription is filled. Beachy's now has its own web site — beachys pharmacy.com — and prescription refills and drug information can be ordered directly from the site. The e-mail address is: fillrx@qcol.net. Patients can always speak directly to the pharmacist by calling 301-895-5177 without having to travel through the push button maze of recorded messages.

Available are a variety of sundry and hard-to-find, over-the-counter drug items. Unlike the super stores, Beachy's will stock and special order items for the customer, available usually in 24 hours.

One can find a wide variety of everyday cards in Beachy's Carlton greeting cards department. There is a complete section for holiday greetings, and Russell Stover and Whitman's candies are stocked at the pharmacy.

Other services available at the pharmacy include UPS package shipping, public fax service, Western Union money transfers, Greyhound bus tickets, copier service, Konica film developing, dry cleaning drop-off, and emergency after-hours prescription service.

Gerry Beachy is full-time pharmacist, and his wife Sue is store manager. They have owned and operated the business since 1979. Krystal Eggleston and Nancy Turner are drug clerks.

Beachy is a fellow of the American Society of Consultant Pharmacists and is consultant pharmacist at Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home in Grantsville. He is also a member of the National Community Pharmacists Association and the Maryland Pharmacy Association. Both he and his wife are very active in the community. He serves as secretary/newsletter editor of the Grantsville Lions Club, has served over five terms on the Grantsville Town Council, and is presently mayor of Grantsville. Sue has served as the charter president of the Grantsville Lioness Club and is a member of the Garrett Community College board of trustees.

R
Echinacea
May Ward Off Infection

Echinacea is an extract of the common coneflower. The herb was used by American Indians for a variety of health purposes and was used in mainstream medicine in the U.S. from the 1880s until the 1930s when sulfonamide anti-microbial agents became available. There is evidence that some flower species may stimulate the body's immune system, helping it to ward off infections or speed recovery from infections.

Times of Change

Mom

A new life is born and our lives change. In the first year, along with diaper changes, and schedule changes, something changes in a mother's heart.

A mother's heart swells with pride in her new child, certainly the cutest and the smartest. Her heart softens with a mother's love and patience. As her heart softens, it stretches with a capacity for love larger than life. Lastly, a mother's heart becomes warmer with each bubbly baby kiss and "coo".

As the Creator sends us the infant that transforms the heart, He can send us His love that will transform our soul with a faith, peace, and joy that we have never known. The best skills for parenthood are learned through the Word of God.

As we worship and honor motherhood on this Mother's Day Sabbath, remember to "...be renewed in the spirit of your minds, and put on the new nature, created after the likeness of God." (Ephesians 4:23-24). Yes, a child can change your life but God can change your soul.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT IS 'NECESSARY'?
May 13, 2001

Background Scripture:
Acts 15:1-35
Devotional Reading:
Romans 3:21-26

The Church had barely begun when that question of questions reared its head for the first time: "What is necessary to follow Jesus Christ?" That his followers have rarely, if ever, agreed upon this is most apparent from the history of the Church, even in the earliest New Testament times.

No sooner had Paul and Barnabas returned from their first missionary journey and exulted in "all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles," then "some men came down from Judea and were teaching the brethren, 'Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved'" (Acts 15:1). Did it not matter to them that God had opened Gentile doors, that the Holy Spirit had lead Paul and Barnabas forth, nor that the number of those who wanted to follow Jesus had been increased?

If these men from Judea had come saying, we rejoice with you in becoming a follower of The Way, but we think you ought also to be circumcised, their intervention might be more easily tolerated. But, regardless of how sincere they may have been, there is no humility in them, but outrageous arrogance that denies Peter's rooftop experience: "What God has cleansed, you must not call common." (Acts 10:15)

Defenders of the Faith?

I'm sure these men were sincere and thought of themselves as defenders of the faith, but they were nonetheless substituting their judgment for the Lord's. Peter correctly admonished them: "Now therefore why do you make trial of God by putting a yoke upon the neck of the disciples...?" (15:10). They are not defenders of the faith, but rebels against God!

The Jerusalem Church resolved this question of "What is necessary?" at least temporarily—by instructing Antioch Christians that "It has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things." (1) abstaining from food sacrificed to idols, (2) from blood and stronghold animals, and (3) unchastity. This was a compromise. Gentiles would be accepted (a big victory for the liberal church at Antioch) so long as they refrained from unchastity and food sacrificed to idols (a smaller victory for the conservatives in Jerusalem).

"Good to the Holy Spirt"?

Yet, although we admire this compromise, there is one idea in it that lies as the ground for most conflicts among Christians: "It seemed good to the Holy Spirit and us." (15:25). If the Jerusalem Church meant, As we interpreted the guidance of the Holy Spirit... there is room for those who do not so interpret the Holy Spirit. It is more likely, however, that the Jerusalem Church meant that the Holy Spirit gave them the specific stipulations for their decree. And that is the tragedy of Christian history: so many people believing that, when they have spoken, it is the voice of the Holy Spirit.

What is necessary then? I can give you my personal answer and I can attribute that answer to the Holy Spirit, but I must not, will not assume what is the prerogative of the Lord. I do not believe I am called—nor any of us—to defend the faith, but to live it. Instead of deciding for others 'what is necessary,' it is enough for me to find the answers to that question while I seek day by day to follow the Lord Jesus Christ. If I do that, I will be 'defending the faith' in the same way Jesus did.

Electric Choice and the environment.

Do you know the difference between Renewable, Green and Clean energy? As Maryland's market for Electric Choice develops, many residents and businesses will want to look closely at how the electricity is generated by the electricity suppliers they choose. Generating electricity affects the environment in different ways, and each supplier can provide you with a disclosure label that identifies the sources of energy used and the emissions levels produced. Renewable energy sources can be replenished in a fairly short period of time. Green describes energy considered less harmful to the environment. And clean refers to energy generated from sources that produce less emissions, but may have other environmental impacts. To find out more, simply call our Answer Center, toll-free, or visit our Web Site. Then, ask for your free Consumer Guide to Electric Choice, plus our free brochure on Electric Choice and the Environment.

Kitzmiller After-School Program Honors Seniors

The "Kitzmiller Kids" after-school program honored the senior citizens of Kitzmiller recently with a catered dinner attended by over 100 guests. The children entertained the seniors with a program of 1950s music and delivered short speeches outlining their appreciation of their elders. The children also designed the invitations and made flowers and placemats for the occasion. The program was made possible by funding from the Governor's Office on Service and Volunteerism and the Garrett Partnership for Children and Families Inc.

Sponsored by the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group, the after-school program is offered bi-weekly from 3 to 6 p.m. The approximately 45 participants take part in a variety of programs, including crafts, games, and recreation, and also receive assistance with their homework.

The Kitzmiller Empowerment Group sponsors a variety of activities for all ages, including Family Fun Night, an Easter egg hunt, family basketball, cheerleading, and Red Cross bloodmobile visits.

HEAD START CHILDREN LEARN FIRE SAFETY — The children at Garrett County Community Action Head Start have been learning about fire safety. The children of Kitzmiller were recently visited by Kitzmiller firefighters Jim Browning and Shawn Nesselrodt. The children explored a fire truck and learned about firefighters' equipment. The Oakland Room 2 children visited the Oakland fire hall to see where the fire trucks are kept and met volunteer personnel Tom and Deb Swiger. Tom demonstrated the fire safety uniform and explained the importance of the children not being afraid when they see a firefighter. The children from Kitzmiller are pictured in the top photo, left to right. They are firefighter Browning, Melissa Cooper, Sierra Stiles, Dereck Gank, Olivia Berg, Shannon Harvey, Melanie Wilson, Destiny Lee, and firefighter Nesselrodt. In the front row, from the left, are Tiffany Gank, Logan Tichinel, and Selena Tichinel. The children of Oakland Room 2 are in the bottom photo. Biography sheds light on Teri Garr

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Teri Garr

Q: I am a huge fan of Teri Garr, but the last few times I have seen her on TV, she seems to have a distinct limp. Was she injured? –Rebecca in Atlanta.

A: In a profile of Garr airing Friday, May 18, A&E Network's Biography sheds light on a topic that has puzzled and worried fans for years. According to the program, in the late 1980s, Garr began to notice a physical problem that occasionally caused her to trip and stumble.

Her friend Patricia Heaton (Everybody Loves Raymond) tells Biography that in 1994 Garr decided to seek medical help, visiting several doctors and trying various treatments. She was told, however, that she had sustained lasting nerve damage.

Garr continues to work when she chooses (among other things, she's a regular panelist on the Oxygen game show I've Got a Secret) and is raising her daughter, Molly, whom she adopted in 1993.

Q: What can you tell us about William Snow, who stars in the syndicated series The Lost World? –Carol Ann Dolan via e-mail.

A: Formerly one of Australia's top male models, Snow appeared in several commercials in Australia, Italy and Britain before beginning acting studies in Sydney and Los Angeles. He made his first TV appearance in a series called Pacific Drive, then starred in the Franco-Australian series Tales of the South Seas. He also starred in the 1999 Aussie thriller Dead End.

Q: Is that Martha Plimpton, who starred several years ago in The River Rat with Tommy Lee Jones, playing Phyllis on The Young and the Restless? I am almost sure I recognize her from that movie when she was a little girl. –Mrs. Phyllis Gattshall, Jackson, Mich.

A: That's Michelle Stafford playing Phyllis, but your mistake is understandable. The resemblance between the two actresses is truly remarkable.

Q: Why did Pernell Roberts leave Bonanza? How did the show's plotline account for his departure? –M.T.H. via e-mail.

A: A classically trained actor, Roberts publicly dismissed the formulaic Western as "pap" and left after six seasons, saying he was tired of the role (he had threatened to leave earlier).

Adam Cartwright was simply "away" starting the next season, although the character occasionally interacted with the family via letters. Bonanza patriarch Lorne Greene said later they just "took a chair from the table and went on."

The sole surviving Cartwright, Roberts – who turns 73 on Friday, May 18 – is semiretired and lives in Malibu, Calif.

WEDNESDAY

Sam (Rob Lowe) juggles a crisis in Haiti and a campaign against the tobacco industry in The West Wing Wednesday on NBC.

IN FOCUS

Rupert Graves and Sienna Guillory star in the Masterpiece Theatre presentation Take a Girl Like You, based on a comic novel by Kingsley Amis. The two-part production begins Sunday, May 13, on PBS (check local listings).

Guillory plays Jenny, a naive young schoolteacher navigating the rough waters of relationships in 1950s England. Graves' character, Patrick, is a local lothario who relentlessly pursues her ... and several others.

Robert Daws and Ian Driver also star.

Most Alcohol-Related Crashes In Maryland Occur On Rural Roads

by Jonathan Sheir
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Alcohol-related fatal accidents are more likely to occur on rural roads in Maryland than on urban roads, according to a Capital News Service analysis of fatal crash statistics from 1995 to 1999.

Of the 725 alcohol-related fatalities in which police noted a road type, 379, or 52.3 percent, were on rural roads. The higher number of alcohol-related deaths on rural roads came even though those roads carried less than half of the traffic of urban roads in 1999.

The U.S. Department of Transportation statistics came as no surprise to traffic experts, who point to the poor design, higher speeds, and lack of enforcement on rural roads. Lack of alternative transportation and longer response times for emergency medical services also were factors mentioned by experts.

"This is the typical pattern we've seen for decades," said John V. Moulden, the president of the National Commission Against Drunk Driving. "People might think the accidents happen in the more heavily populated areas, but the worst accidents often occur in rural ones."

Jackie Gillan, the vice president of Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety, said rural roads are "poorly designed...windy with narrow lanes, no shoulders, and poor lighting."

Conversely, cities tend to have safer roads than rural areas, said a spokeswoman for the Mid-Atlantic chapter of the American Automobile Association.

"The urban areas have straighter roads that are less hazardous," said Myra Wieman, the AAA spokeswoman. "Many rural roads are not easy to navigate in the best of conditions when the driver has not been drinking."

The data also showed that rural counties had a disproportionate share of fatal alcohol-related accidents.

Baltimore City had 12.3 percent of the state's population, according to the 2000 census, but had only 6.5 percent of the state's fatal alcohol-related accidents. Montgomery County, with 16.5 percent of the population, also had only 6.5 percent of the accidents.

In contrast, Caroline County, with only 0.6 percent of the state's population, had 2.4 percent of the state's fatal alcohol-related accidents. Charles County, with 2.3 percent of the population, had 5.2 percent of the fatal alcohol-related accidents.

This trend was not universal. Prince George's County, with 15.1 percent of the state's population, had 17.4 percent of the alcohol-related accidents, and Allegany County had only 1 percent of the fatalities with 1.4 percent of the population.

Allegany County highway safety coordinator Janie Hutcherson credited the efforts of government officials for keeping alcohol-related accidents relatively low in her county.

"We've actually had years with no fatalities," Hutcherson said. "I think the reason is because we do a lot of education and we use grant money for overtime for police officers to do enforcement."

Wieman said lax enforcement in many rural areas was one of the problems.

"People in cities take more precautions because they fear getting caught," she said. "Urban areas have a much higher level of enforcement, including more DUI checkpoints."

Hutcherson said one of the reasons for this is lack of resources. "Perhaps some of these other counties just don't have the funding," she said.

Moulden agreed, saying the lack of funding and resources in rural areas contributes to their problems with creating deterrence.

"To be effective, you have to do [sobriety checkpoints and other enforcement] on a regular and routine basis, and many small departments don't have the resources or the manpower," he said.

He said that's why it's important that the state work with local authorities to help provide the equipment and other resources they might need.

Maryland State Police spokesman Lt. Bud Frank said his agency does work with local authorities to identify "problem areas."

"We aggressively patrol the roadways that we find are more prone to having alcohol problems," he said.

The question that remains is what can be done next to work on the problem of rural alcohol-impaired driving, said Moulden.

He suggested toughening laws for repeat offenders and innovative ideas such as North Carolina's "batmobile," what he described as a mobile testing and processing sobriety checkpoint center.

"This is an issue that really needs to be raised," Moulden said. "We want people to know that rural DWIs are a big problem."

Gillan called it "a real public health problem, and there's no magic bullet."

Battle Against Rural Road Carnage Focuses On Drivers, Not Roads

by Jonathan Sheir
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Road design is only partly to blame for the relatively high number of alcohol-related fatalities on the state's rural roads. The other part of the problem is the driver who is drunk behind the wheel.

Highway safety officials and traffic experts, noting the cost and the impracticality of rebuilding 15,846 miles of rural roads, have concentrated their efforts on discouraging people from drinking and driving.

"You combine the [two-lane roads] with the higher speeds people go on rural roads and slow reaction time due to the alcohol, and a mistake is more likely to become a fatal one," said Jackie Gillan, the vice president of Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety.

She said the "answer isn't going to be to go out there and rebuild all these roads," but to go after the problem by focusing on the drivers.

Since there is no way to patrol every road — stretches of over 50 miles sometimes go without an officer — deterrence is the goal, said John V. Moulden, president of the National Commission Against Drunk Driving.

"Recognizing you can't arrest every drunk driver... you want to make the drunk drivers think the police are everywhere," Moulden said.

Sobriety checkpoints are becoming more common in rural areas as a means to create this deterrence, he said.

Individual counties may not have the manpower or the equipment, so they work with other authorities and jurisdictions. When a popular Solomons Island bar held its annual spring opening last week, for example, sheriff's deputies from St. Mary's and Calvert counties worked with state police and Natural Resources Police to cope.

"This is one of those special events where excessive use of alcohol is known to occur," said Jackie Beckman, St. Mary's County highway safety coordinator.

Another strategy is the use of "joint-saturation patrols," said State Police spokesman Lt. Bud Frank. Police and sheriffs' departments identify areas that are particularly problematic and then work together to catch drunken drivers in those areas.

In Garrett County — which has 1.7 percent of the state's alcohol-related fatalities and 0.6 percent of the state's population — part of the problem is the volume of tourists coming to Deep Creek Lake, said Diane Lee, Garrett County highway safety coordinator.

One way the county tries to deal with the problem is by addressing the alcohol supply side, she said.

"We've done a lot of work on the issue of carding," for underage drinkers, Lee said. "We're also helping provide training because they need to know when to cut people off."

In neighboring Allegany County, highway safety coordinator Janie Hutcherson calls underage drinking and driving by Frostburg State University students "the county's biggest challenge." She said many of the county's resources are tied up by that problem.

Highway safety officials cite limited resources as the No.1 impediment to fighting drinking and driving. A number said they rely on state and federal grant money to help fund enforcement, education, and other programs.

The money can be used for billboards and educational outreach programs, or it can be used to buy equipment, pay for police overtime, and set up highway safety teams, as Cecil and St. Mary's counties have done.

Wendy Hamilton, public policy liaison for the Maryland chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said the state does not do enough to reach problem drivers, but she credited rural authorities for doing their best. "I commend state police and sheriff's departments for their work," she said. "Also, judges often are tougher in rural areas."

Rural areas have other advantages. While traffic volume in urban areas may hamper police, for example, rural officers do not face that challenge, Frank said.

Relatively low rural crime rates also allow police and the courts to be more active, said Betty Malkus, program director for the Caroline County Health Department.

"You have to drive to go anywhere here, so the courts and the police are more vigilant on the Shore," she said.

Landowners Urged To Practice Safe Outdoor Burning

Spring is the time of the year when many property owners are burning leaves and other debris outdoors; however, wildfires can result if some simple guidelines for safe burning aren't followed. Spring is traditionally a time of high forest fire danger in Maryland, and this spring has been drier than usual, with the recorded rainfall at the Mt. Nebo station to date measured at almost four inches below the five-year average.

Last year there were 129 natural fuels fires in western Maryland that burned 103.6 acres. Garrett County's Emergency Management office received 26 natural fuels or woods fire calls in 2000, which burned 10.9 acres. Sixtyeight percent of the natural fuels fires in Garrett County in 2000 were caused by unsafe debris burning. So far this year, Garrett County has had 14 fires on approximately 11 acres, and 78 percent of this spring's fires resulted from debris burning.

"When conducting open air burning, it is the landowner's responsibility to make sure the fire doesn't escape, and to make sure the fire is out cold before leaving it," said a spokesperson for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo.

Open-air burning regulations, which apply to burning in woodlands and within 200 feet of woodlands, or burns adjacent to or within an area where flammable materials could ignite and carry fire to woodlands, are listed below. Open-air burning of any type not in accordance with these regulations is subject to citations and fines ranging from $70 to $260.

- A natural or constructed fire break at least ten feet wide must completely surround the material to be burned.
- Adequate personnel and equipment must be present to prevent the fire from escaping.
- At least one responsible person must remain at the burning location until the last spark is out.
- Permissible burning hours through Oct. 27 (the last full day of daylight saving time) are 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. After the time change, the burning period will be 4 p.m. to midnight Eastern Standard Time.
- All open-air burning requires a permit from the county health department. Open-air burning prior to 5 p.m. DST also requires a burning permit from DNR.

Landowners interested in conducting open-air burning are encouraged to burn after 5 p.m. when a burning permit from the DNR Forest Service is not required, and the air is generally moister and calmer, reducing the chances of the fire escaping.

If a landowner wishes to burn before 5 p.m., the Garrett County Health Department and the Forest Service have entered into a cooperative agreement to issue a combined burning permit. The landowner should contact the Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays at 301-334-3296. Landowners are encouraged to contact the office several days before they plan on burning to arrange a site visit with one of the forest rangers.

Prior to doing any open-air burning, the landowner should contact Garrett County Emergency Management at 301-334-1929 to inform the dispatcher of the controlled burning. This reduces the chances of the local volunteer fire department being dispatched on a false alarm.

BLOOMINGTON SCHOOL REPRESENTED AT EXPO — Bloomington School was represented by 10 middle school students at the Western Maryland Regional Science Expo at Frostburg State University recently. The expo is sponsored by RESA (Regional Education Service Agency of Appalachian Maryland). After the judging was completed, six of the students received recognition awards. Chelsea Wassell finished first in the microbiology category with a project titled "Yeast Powdered Balloons." Chelsea was also nominated for the national "Discovery Young Scientist Challenge" award in which she is eligible for a $10,000 scholarship. Spenser Barnard finished second in the mathematics category with a project titled "Ammunition Efficiency II," a continuation of a project from last year. Ashley Metcalfe finished second in the biochemistry category, with a project titled "What is the Most Common Color of Hair in My Family?" Bobby Hutton received third place honors in the mathematics category with a project named "Muzzleloader Accuracy." Drew Taylor and Kirstin Brashear both received honorable mention certificates. Drew's project was in the earth and space category titled "Solar Energy for the Future." Kirstin's project was a math project called "What is the Most Common Color of Skittles?" Pictured above are the award recipients. In the front row, from the left, are Chelsea Wassell and Ashley Metcalfe. MCEA Offers Scholarship

The Maryland Classified Employees Association (MCEA) is making college scholarships available through the Wallace F. Smith Scholarship Fund. Each year MCEA awards scholarships to individuals representing each of the association's five geographical areas based on financial need and other criteria.

"The difference between a job and a rewarding career is a good education, and the MCEA believes wholeheartedly that the key to success is higher education," according to local MCEA Chapter 76 member Linda Moe. Last year the Wallace F. Smith Scholarship Committee granted nine scholarships to recipients, including first-time college students and public employees who chose to go back to college.

The deadline for MCEA scholarship applications is Wednesday, May 30. For information on the scholarship and application procedures, interested persons may call the union's Cumberland office at 301-724-8770 or 1-888-614-6232.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On May 14, 1796, Edward Jenner, an English country doctor from Gloucestershire, administered the world's first vaccination for smallpox, a disease that had killed millions of people over the centuries. In the 19th and 20th centuries, scientists developed new vaccines to fight smallpox, and by 1970, international vaccination programs had eliminated the disease worldwide.

• On May 17, 1932, in a victory for Puerto Rican nationalists, the U.S. Congress officially changed the name of the U.S. protectorate of Porto Rico to Puerto Rico, restoring the original non-Anglicized spelling of the Caribbean island's name.

• On May 15, 1972, during an outdoor rally in Laurel, Md., George Wallace, the governor of Alabama and a presidential candidate, was shot by 21-year-old Arthur Bremer. Three others were wounded, and Wallace was permanently paralyzed from the waist down.

• On May 16, 1975, via the South-East ridge route, Japanese mountaineer Junko Tabei became the first woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest, the tallest mountain in the world.

• On May 18, 1980, Mount St. Helens, a volcano in southwestern Washington state, suffered a massive eruption, killing or fatally wounding 61 people and leveling some 150 square miles of wilderness. The blast blew the volcano's top into the stratosphere.

• On May 20, 1996, in a historic victory for the gay and lesbian civil-rights movement, the U.S. Supreme Court voted 6-3 to strike down an amendment to Colorado's state constitution that would have prevented any city, town or county from taking any legislative, executive or judicial action to protect the rights of homosexuals.

• On May 19, 1998, the Justice Department filed an antitrust suit against Microsoft, alleging that the company's business practices crushed competition and stifled innovation.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Automatic Teller Machines (better known as ATMs) are big business today, but that wasn't always true. The first ATM failed and its maker went out of business.

• Hawaii has the only royal palace in the United States, although there is a Spanish Viceroy's palace in New Mexico.

• The African nation of Tanzania was formed in 1964 when two other nations merged. The name of the new country is a combination of the names of the two original countries — Tanganyika and Zanzibar.

• If you want to own a true piece of literary history, keep an eye out for "First Folio: Mr. William Shakespeare's Comedies, Histories & Tragedies," the first publication of Shakespeare's plays. Be prepared to shell out big bucks, though; a copy is worth about $10,000 today.

• "Here's looking at you, kid," from "Casablanca," is one of the most well-known movie lines in film history. In Germany, though, the line is translated as, "I look into your eyes, little one."

• The word "polish," with a lowercase "p," is one of the few (and perhaps the only) words in the English language that is pronounced differently when it is capitalized.

• The design of the original Volkswagen Beetle was inspired by an egg.

• The original Murphy of Murphy's Law fame was a test pilot of early U.S. fighter jets.

• Diamonds come in many colors, blue and pink being the most rare (and therefore, of course, the most expensive).

• In 1972 in Tasmania, William Charlton walked 15 miles, 1,738 yards with an empty pint milk bottle on his head. Maybe there's nothing else to do in Tasmania.

Q. I bought an oblong, ceramic dish with a cover about 30 years ago. The cover has a round central handle. Inside the 8-1/2-inch-long dish are two raised ridges. The mark on the bottom is a small round globe with the word "Minton" in the center. What was this dish used for, and how old is it?

A. Your dish is a Victorian toothbrush holder. It was a standard part of ceramic toilet sets of the 19th century. The ridges held a toothbrush or two above the bottom of the dish. Some collectors mistakenly call the pieces soap dishes, which are smaller. The Minton mark on the bottom dates your dish to about 1863-1872. It was made by the famous Minton pottery, which has worked in Staffordshire, England, since 1793. Minton became part of the Royal Doulton Tableware Group in 1968.

Q. I have an unusual electric fan that once hung on a ceiling. It is shaped like an airplane, and the single propeller at the front is the fan. Of course, the fan's air is always directed sideways, not downward like today's ceiling fans. Have you ever seen one like it?

A. We have seen old ads for fans like the one you described. We have never seen a real fan shaped like an airplane. The fans were produced by at least two U.S. companies during the 1920s. They were marketed mainly to commercial customers, like retail stores and factories, to cool showrooms and lunchrooms. One airplane-shaped ceiling fan was called the "Wind Berg." It was obviously named for aviator Charles Lindbergh.

Grooming Tips

Q. Is it easier to brush the knots and burrs out of my dog's coat before or after his bath?

A. Brushing out your pet's coat after a bath is much, much harder than detangling it beforehand. Wet fur can get more matted and tangled than dry fur, and since I know of no "conditioner" on the market for pets (and please don't use human shampoo/conditioner on your pet!), your task will be difficult. Also, many dogs and cats are less-than-happy after a soaking, so you'd have to struggle with a wriggling pet that just wants to go and dry off.

So, what is the best way to remove those tangles before a bath? Having more than one type of brush onhand can make your task much easier. (Thanks to the Iams Company for the information.)

Use a slicker brush, with closely spaced, hooked wires, to remove mats and dirt from the top of your dog or cat's coat. (For long-haired dogs, a pin brush may be more effective.) Follow up with a rake comb, a metal-toothed brush that you can work gently through the entire coat. Brush one small section at a time.

Once you've bathed and towel-dried your pet, run the rake comb through its coat one more time. Gently work out any remaining mats.

A bristle brush will create a nice, shiny coat on pets with slick fur (it won't work well on curly-haired pets, like poodles). Perform this final step when your pet's coat has completely dried.

Census Says Diversity, Like Change, Comes Slowly To Garrett County

by Greg Lamm
Capital News Service

GRANTSVILLE — It's early May, and the tulips are out, but spring has yet to arrive in full bloom in Garrett County. Bare branches and swaths of ashen gray still mark the rolling hills and mountains.

Folks in Maryland's western highlands are used to change coming more slowly here than elsewhere. And that fact is evident in the 2000 Census.

Maryland, like the nation, is becoming more diverse, more multilingual, fueled by an influx of people of Hispanic and Asian origin. But Grantsville and the rest of Garrett County remain overwhelmingly white, at nearly 99 percent.

It's even higher in the county's Census Tract 2, where 3,846 of the 3,877 residents — 99.2 percent — are white. That makes it the highest concentration of whites anywhere in Maryland.

The lack of racial diversity is not an everyday topic here, says Gerry Beachy, a Grantsville pharmacist who doubles as mayor. But Beachy said change is coming that will likely attract more people with different ethnic backgrounds.

Florida-based Closet-Maid plans to open a local plant that could bring as many as 800 jobs over the next five years, a big deal for a county with nearly 12 percent unemployment. Beachy said workers have also installed fiber-optic lines as part of an effort by community leaders to bring in new businesses that will offer a future for the area's young people.

"We're holding on to the tail of the horse and we better hold on, because it's taking off," Beachy said of the coming change.

Beachy's wife Sue said she looks forward to the change, but she hopes it doesn't spoil the slower, neighborly pace of life.

"It would be nice to keep it the same," she said. "But we have to think of the future. Really right now there is no future for our kids."

She said the potential exposure to different people will be healthy for an area that is mostly white and isolated.

To that end, the Beachys have been involved in an exchange program with towns in Estonia, in which Garrett County schoolchildren have become penpals with children in that Baltic country. The children quickly learned that they were more alike than different, especially when it comes to universal things such as Pokemon.

"There's a big, wide, wonderful world out there and I think that the children need to know about it," Sue Beachy said.

Today, Garrett County remains a rural outpost in westernmost Maryland. Much of the county is covered in trees, including the 53,000-acre Savage River State Forest, which makes up a large portion of tract 2.

Interstate 68, the four-lane National Freeway, dips and curves its way across the top of the county. But signs on many other county roads caution drivers to watch for deer and bears. Drivers may have to hit the brakes to avoid a wild turkey lingering on a side road.

Garrett County's population grew by about 6 percent in the past 10 years, to 29,846 in 2000, well under Maryland's growth rate of almost 11 percent.

Much of the growth has been around Oakland, the county seat. A new Wal-Mart sits on a hill just outside town. Upscale summer vacation houses are replacing the modest A-frames on the shores of Deep Creek Lake.

But in the northern part of the county, Grantsville, population 600, is a rare sign of town life along I-68.

Main Street is a mile-long stretch of Alternate U.S. 40, lined with wood-framed houses with sagging porches and a handful of businesses, including Betty Jo's Fashion Beauty Lounge, the Grantsville Market, and Beachy's Pharmacy, which also offers Western Union and United Parcel Service and is a Greyhound bus stop.

A few miles south of the Mason-Dixon line, Grantsville has a long history of Amish influences. Road signs warn motorists to watch for horse-drawn buggies and businesses have hitching posts out front.

On the outskirts of town, near Yoders Meat Packers, is a former brick church now home to "He's Alive Radio." WAIJ-FM — which stands for "We're Alive in Jesus" — beams 10,000 watts of gospel singing, praying, and preaching from 5:30 a.m. to midnight, and is accessible around the clock on the Internet.

The listener-supported station is affiliated with World Lighthouse Worship Center, which draws 150 worshipers — including whites, African-Americans, and Mexicans, mostly from outside of the county, said WAIJ program director Scott Reppert.

"We will welcome everyone," said Reppert of the Pentecostal church, which has a red and white lighthouse overlooking I-68.

Reppert concedes that not everyone in the area is so accepting — just like many other parts of the country, both rural and urban, he said. He said that people think of Garrett County, with its almost all-white population, and they might be left with an image of intolerance that keeps some people away.

The area's lack of diversity is not lost on Morris Johnson, one of only 128 African-Americans living in the county.

Johnson, a retired Air Force colonel, did a tour in Italy at the end of World War II and later served in Korea and Vietnam. Six years ago he and his wife moved to Oakland to escape the crime and bustle of Pittsburgh.

While most people in Garrett County are friendly, Johnson said he and his wife were confronted with intolerance when they first went to worship at a local church and a woman in the congregation loudly protested their presence. Now, the Johnsons attend church in Frederick, more than 100 miles away from their home in Oakland.

"I haven't had any incidents as far as moving into the neighborhood. Nobody was burning crosses," Johnson said. "But it's still a tough town to live in."

Johnson had just gotten off the Greyhound bus at Beachy's Pharmacy on Sunday, carrying a red tote and walking stiffly after enduring a 12-hour ride from Philadelphia, where a granddaughter ran in the Penn Relays track meet.

He said he spends much of his time out of the area, traveling to sporting events. Still, he chooses to live in Garrett County because he likes to hunt and fish and he enjoys the area's natural beauty and easier lifestyle.

"This is good country," said Johnson, whose trim, athletic frame belies his 76 years. "If you like a nice, quiet life to get away from the fast and furious, why this is a good place to be."

New Majors At Frostburg State Are Announced

Frostburg State University has added three new majors to the 34 undergraduate degree programs it offers currently. Starting in the fall of 2001, students will be able to major in dance, exercise and sport science, and theatre.

Dance and theatre were previously offered as minors. Theatre was also available as a major concentration in the Speech Communication and Theatre degree program, now called Communication Studies.

Exercise and sport science grew out of a number of changes in the department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, many resulting from adjustments made in the application process for National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) approval, according to an FSU spokesperson.

Previously, students in the department had a choice of recreation or health and physical education. Health and physical education majors then would choose a track among teacher education, athletic training, health fitness, and coaching. As the major evolved, the department found it was serving two very different audiences, those who planned to teach and those who didn't, according to the department chair, Dr. Kurt Wolfe Jr.

As the program stands now, a major in exercise and sport science can choose a concentration from among health fitness, athletic training, and health promotions.

Minors of business for science and technology majors, forestry, and leadership studies have also been added, bringing the total number of minors available to 34.

FSU has also added several concentrations and tracks within majors. A concentration requires at least 25 credits of specialized coursework, while a track requires somewhat less.

In biology, concentrations have been added in biotechnology and environmental science. Chemistry has added biochemistry and professional chemistry. Earth science also has added an environmental science concentration. In English, concentrations have been added in literature, creative writing, and professional writing.

History has added concentrations in international history, history of the Americas, and public history. Music has added vocal performance and music management, and recreation and parks management now has concentrations in adventure sports, community program delivery, hospitality management, and tourism.

Tracks of instrumental and piano performance have been added to music. Traditional physics and engineering physics tracks have been added to physics. Sociology has added general sociology and applied sociology tracks.

Please be advised that all persons holding hunting permits giving rights and access to the properties owned by BTC Developments and Tri-Star Mining, Inc., for the 2000-2001 hunting season are to consider these authorizations "null and void," effective immediately. We find this action is necessary due to the recent case of vandalism this company has experienced, and while we are in no way blaming those who have hunted this property, we feel this decision is necessary until we can get to the bottom of this extreme amount of destruction. It's our belief that by revoking these permits, innocent persons will not be in the wrong place at the wrong time and be unjustly blamed and the authorities will have a better chance of finding the actual culprits without interference.

We apologize for any inconvenience and hope those who may hold such permission slips will understand our need to regulate traffic on mining property. But please understand also, there will be no exceptions to this decision. No trespassing means no trespassing and anyone caught on mine property will be prosecuted.

State, County Jobless Rates Fall In March

According to state figures released this week, Maryland's unemployment rate fell from 4.1 percent in February to 3.5 percent for the month of March. Maryland's unemployment rate is now more than a full percentage point below the national average of 4.6 percent. Employment rose for the third consecutive month, continuing its pattern of monthly record levels, as job seekers took advantage of the growing number of seasonal opportunities.

Meanwhile, in Garrett County the jobless rate dropped from 11.3 percent in February to 9.9 percent in March. The rate for March of 2000 was 10.0 percent.

"Maryland's healthy economy is a direct result of our fiscally responsible investments in our infrastructure and our people," said Governor Parris Glendening. "More Marylanders are working, and enjoying greater opportunities and a better quality of life as a result of the state's continued prosperity."

Declining unemployment figures were seen across the state, with some of the most noticeable improvements occurring in the western Maryland and Eastern Shore areas. Twelve local jurisdictions recorded unemployment rates below the statewide average during March.

"We are experiencing success through our initiatives to make Maryland the best place to live, work, and do business," said Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. "As we move forward in the 21st century, Maryland is preparing educationally and technologically to be a solid competitor in the global economy."

Job seekers entered the labor market in fewer numbers during March, following an unusually large increase in February. Since the labor force level was virtually unchanged, February's employment increase of nearly 17,100 people helped to lighten the monthly unemployment rolls considerably, from 116,863 in February to 101,069 in March.

During March, recall activity in education, coupled with hiring in almost every major business sector, helped to lift Maryland's labor market. The services sector was the top industry performer, with upturns in health, agricultural, educational, and amusement/recreation services making the largest contributions. Job gains were also reported in retail trade, particularly in restaurants and building material/garden supply stores, plus construction and state/local education.

GCC Healing Scars To Environment Through Kempton Mine Restoration

by Joan Crawford

A major effort to restore wetlands in Garrett County where years of mining have taken their toll has involved Garrett Community College faculty and students in the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program (NRWT). Peter Skylstad, assistant director of the program, is serving as grant coordinator of the Acid Mine Drainage (AMD) Project (Kempton Mine Restoration Initiative) and supervising students working on the project. NRWT program director Kevin Dodge serves as a consultant by providing valuable expertise on a variety of subjects.

The NRWT program received a $223,000 from the Maryland Environmental Trust as a result of a grant application written by Skylstad. Dr. Peter Dunbar, director of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Power Plant Research Program (PPRP), administrates the Kempton project, and Paul Petzrick, an Energy Resources Administrator for the PPRP, serves as liaison for the project. The grant will cover expenses associated with the project for the next five years.

According to Skylstad, who wrote the grant application, the five-year project will include monitoring and restoration of the headwaters wetland at Laurel Run and monitoring of the headwaters wetland on the North Branch of the Potomac. At Laurel Run, students are monitoring wetland soil and water chemistry, plant and animal communities, and microbial activity. They are also involved in a restoration effort to accelerate recolonization of the wetland by planting native vegetation that can tolerate soil with low pH.

GCC STUDENTS RESTORING WETLANDS — A team of Garrett Community College Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology (NRWT) students have been working to restore the once-pristine wetlands located in the headwaters of Laurel Run and North Branch of the Potomac River that have been severely damaged by acid mine drainage (AMD) from the old Kempton coal mine. Pictured directly above are two students on the NRWT team, Josh Frick, left, and Kris DeWitt, as they prepare to map vegetation transects and measure oxide deposition in the wetland headwaters of Laurel Run. The pair are shown below using foot ramps to "leapfrog" across the wetland as they map vegetation transects. The foot ramps are necessary because the oxides deposited in the wetland have the consistency of thick oatmeal and make working in the wetland a difficult and time-consuming task. Project coordinator Peter Skylstad, NRWT Program assistant director, is shown at the right above preparing to set a benchmark stake for the first vegetation transect at the Laurel Run site. Skylstad wrote the successful grant application for the comprehensive five-year research and restoration project, which will include mapping, replanting, and monitoring activities, as well as efforts to address AMD's root causes within the mine itself. "What we are doing at Kempton is the same thing many of these students will do when they take jobs after graduation," commented Skylstad.

On the North Branch of the Potomac the students will monitor the wetland for any changes that may result when grout formed from coal combustion byproducts is injected into the mines. These treatments will be an attempt to reduce, and possibly to eliminate, the infiltration and acidification of water associated with the Kempton Mine complex. Under Skylstad's direction, students in the NRWT program have used GPS (global positioning system) technology to map the wetlands, and in addition, they will measure and analyze water factors, organic matter content, oxide deposition, and other environmental variables over the next five years.

The project is "part of a huge private sector (including related industries), state, and federal effort to address the environmental problems associated with extracting and burning coal," Skylstad said. "Historical accounts indicate that Laurel Run was once a pristine trout stream. Today, the water quality is so poor that nothing can live there, with the exception of a few hardy species of plants.

"This is a great project for the college and for students in the NRWT program. Our students are able to participate and learn in a real-world hands-on environment. This is one of the many unique aspects of our program. What we are doing at Kempton is the same thing many of these students will do when they take jobs after graduation.

"There is an additional ongoing monumental engineering effort to address subsidence in the bedrock underlying the North Branch of the Potomac," Skylstad said in describing the broader scope of the challenges posed by the environmental damage. "Subsidence has probably allowed clean water from the North Branch to leak into the Kempton Mine complex, further exacerbating the problem. On another front, there will be an effort to address the chemical processes that produce AMD within the mine itself before it gets to the surface.

"Today, we treat this problem with lime dosers. This is fairly effective, but it's like taking an antacid for heartburn. This is treating the problem after the fact. We hope to treat this problem within the mine itself. This is a new, innovative and exciting approach to the problem of AMD. I know that my students and I are very excited about the next five years."

Many governmental and academic agencies and nonprofit organizations have partnered with the college in this effort. They are: DNR's Power Plant Research Program; the Md. Department of the Environment; the Mining Program of the Bureau of Mines; the U.S. Department of Energy (National Energy Technology Laboratory); the Western Maryland Conservation and Development Council; the West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection; the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; Frostburg State University's Geospatial Research Group; the Appalachian Environmental Laboratory; the Office of Surface Mining; and the Maryland Environmental Trust.

Private interests that have donated land, money and equipment or given access to locations are Buffalo Coal, Mettiki Coal, Western Pocahontas Properties, Virginia Electric Power Co., Maryland Coal Association, AES Warrior Run, and Patriot Mining.

Persons interested in further information about these wetlands restoration projects may contact Skylstad by calling 301-387-3334 or via e-mail pskylstad@gcc.cc.md.us.

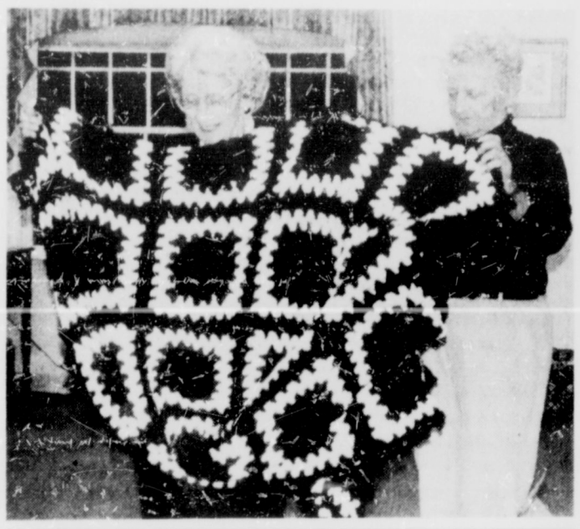
NAMED REPUBLICAN OF THE YEAR — Wilma Calhoun has been named the Republican of the Year by the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club. The surprise honor was announced at a recent club dinner, where Calhoun was presented with several gifts. Calhoun is pictured above, at left, as SGCRWC president Bea Crosco presents her with a certificate signed by Del. George Edwards. "Wilma is an excellent person who has been very active in the community for many years," Edwards commented recently. "She's helped build the Republican party in Garrett County." Calhoun also received the gift of a handmade burgundy-colored rose pattern afghan from her fellow club member and close friend, JoAnn Glotfelty, who is pictured below with the honoree. "The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club members are proud to have worked and played with Wilma Calhoun," said Crosco. "She is a leader who has introduced many younger women to the political arena and guided them to maturity. We are proud to honor Wilma Calhoun as the Republican of the Year 2001."



Calhoun Named Republican Of Year By SGCRW

The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club has recognized Oakland resident Wilma Calhoun as its Republican of the Year. Calhoun's honor came as a surprise announcement at a recent SGCRWC covered dish dinner, where she was recognized for her contribution to the club and to the entire community.

Calhoun was presented a special plaque from the SGCRWC and a certificate of recognition from the office of Del. George Edwards, as well as a handmade afghan crafted especially for her by her close friend, JoAnn Glotfelty. A covered dish dinner prepared by club members and a cake, baked and decorated for the special event by a club member, were served in her honor.

As club president Bea Crosco handed out the awards, approximately 40 guests were on hand including Calhoun's family members, fellow SGCRWC members, and county commissioners Fred Holliday, Wendell Beitzel, and Ernie Gregg, and their wives.

Calhoun's longtime friend, Mary Lyle Gnegy, regaled the audience with anecdotes about their drive to Oregon a few years ago.

A native of Garrett County, Calhoun and her late husband, Art Calhoun, along with Wilma's sister, Glenna DeWitt, owned and operated the Cee Dee Restaurant from the 1940s until they retired. The building was located along Oak Street where the Burger King restaurant now stands.

Calhoun is the mother of two daughters, Sue Pagenhardt of Oakland and Pat Bell of Utah. She has five grandchildren, two of whom, Steve and Monty Pagenhardt, reside in Oakland, and seven great-grandchildren. Still quite active, she donates her time to many community clubs and charity organizations, including the SGCRWC, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and card clubs. She is a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland.

The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club is very important her, Calhoun said. She has served the club in several officer positions and has chaired a number of committees. For many years, she hosted the club's annual summer Patio Picnic, which was attended by local and state elected officials.

In her ninth decade, Calhoun has just recently opted for a slightly slower pace. A longtime SGCRWC member, she now attends the club's special events and leaves the club responsibilities to the younger generation, a club spokesperson said, adding that Calhoun visits local restaurants with friends and enjoys time spent with family. She also runs her own home, enjoys cooking and baking, tends to her flower gardens, and is "very proud" of her new cat, Star Kist, a gift from her grandchildren.

Mother's Day Service Set By HiWay Assembly

The church is located along Rt. 38 near Kitzmiller. The service is open to the public, and persons may call Pastor Gail Hixon at 301-387-9417 for further information.

THE "I DARE YOU" AWARD - The I Dare You Award was first offered in 1941 by William H. Danforth, one of the founders of the American Youth Foundation. Mr. Danforth was a successful businessman who dared young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through lives of leadership and service. Each year deserving 4-H members are presented this award at the annual 4-H Achievement Program. Winners for the year 2000 are Arthur Pysell of the Country Kids 4-H Club and Susan Mayfield of the Trailblazers 4-H Club. These two members were selected because they both have exhibited personal integrity, balanced living, and leadership potential.

THE OUTSTANDING GARRETT COUNTY 4-H CLUB - This award is based on the Maryland 4-H Achievement Program and the 4-H Club's secretary's book. Ryan's Glade 4-H Club was the recipient of the award for the 2000 4-H year, which was presented at the recent annual 4-H Achievement Program. Both Shane and Shonna have been very activ as 4-H members and have been involved in large an small animal projects as well as many other projects. Shan is most recently remembered for his success in the marke swine project as well as many other areas at the Garret County Fair. Connie has been a loyal 4-H supporter fo many years. He has been a 4-H volunteer for the pas 13 years and also served with his wife as an organizationa leader for several years. Oakland postmaster Ken Perrin was recently nominated by the Baltimore District of the U.S. Postal Service for an Excellence in Federal Career Award, sponsored by the Federal Executive Board. The awards luncheon was held last Friday in Baltimore, where Perrin was awarded a silver medal for his community service activities while serving as Oakland postmaster.

Fletcher, on the above right, presents Johnson with a desk clock inscribed "With grateful appreciation for your dedicated service to youth." County's Victim Advocates Noted By State Program

Two Garrett County women who have dedicated themselves to serving local victims of domestic violence, Linda Spassil and Brenda LeMay, were among the 24 honorees from across the state recognized recently at the 2001 Governor's Victim Assistance Awards Luncheon at Baltimore's Inner Harbor. Spassil is the executive director of the Dove Center, the county's domestic violence and sexual assault awareness resource center, and LeMay is the domestic violence advocate, counselor, and investigator for the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Spassil received recognition for her efforts in expanding the Dove Center's facilities, increasing emergency shelter space for victims, and expanding the program's services to include counseling for children and batterers. The additional services resulted in an increase of bed nights from 377 in 1998 to 1,042 in 2000, a 64 percent increase.

LeMay was recognized for her services to victims of domestic abuse through the court systems, shelter, and administrative offices, where she serves as a counselor and victim's advocate. She also actively participates in training seminars for police and makes public awareness presentations for civic groups and other organizations.

The Governor's Victim Assistance Awards program is designed to show appreciation and recognition to those individuals who have exhibited meritorious work on behalf of crime victims or in furtherance of the victims' movement in Maryland. Presented by Roberta Roper, chair of the State Board of Victim Services, the awards recognize "outstanding work done in the area of victim advocacy that exceeds the expected; work that exemplifies a high level of commitment and dedication."

Pollination Requirements for Fruits

Pollination involves the transfer of pollen from the anthers to the stigmas of flowers. Depending on the type of plant, pollination can occur when pollen is transferred from the anthers to the stigmas of the same flower, to stigmas of different flowers on the same plant, or to the stigmas of flowers on different plants. If the flower is not satisfactorily pollinated, fruit may drop or be malformed. Some fruit crops are self-pollinated, which means that pollen from the same cultivar is effective for fertilization and fruit growth. Other fruits are not self-pollinators, which means the pollen from flowers of the same cultivar is not suitable for fertilization. For these latter fruits to bear well, pollen from other cultivated varieties that bloom at the same time must be available.

Examples of self-pollinated crops are peach (except J.H. Hale) nectarine, apricot, grape, brambles, strawberry, sour cherry, currant, gooseberry, and jostaberry. These crops do not require cross-pollination, but do require bee activity for the best fruit set. Many of the European and Japanese plum cultivars are self-pollinators. Consult catalogs and reference books for information on specific cultivars.

Examples of crops that are not self-pollinators include apples, pears (Asian and European), and most sweet cherries. These crops require pollen from another variety within 100 feet to produce a good crop. Ornamental flowering fruit trees may provide needed pollen for good fruit set if their bloom period overlaps with the fruit trees. For example, crabapple trees are excellent pollinators for fruiting apples. Blueberries will yield more fruit and larger fruit if two cultivars are planted together.

Somerset County Wool Pool Information

Wool has been consigned to Mid-States Wool Growers Cooperative in Columbus, Ohio, and will be weighed and graded in their warehouse. If you consign your wool, a payment will be sent to each consignor less marketing costs and a Somerset County association fee of $2.00 at the end of the year. A second option is selling at current market and payment for the entire amount within 30 days: price would be based on grade and yield of the wool.

Listed below is the information concerning this year's pool:

Date: Tuesday, June 5, 2001. Where: Walker's Farm Service, Somerset. Time: 9 a.m. to noon. Who: Pool is open to anyone regardless of residence. Procedure: When you shear, keep good, clean wool of one grade separate from that of another grade or quality. Place wool in clean plastic wool bags (do not use plastic feed bags) or in clean boxes. Do not tie fleeces. If you do, the twine will have to be removed at the pool.

If your wool is in plastic wool bags, you will be given a free replacement bag for each of yours. Those who pack quality wool will receive a better price than those who pack the "junk" with the good wool. Skirt the belly wool, head caps, and tags and put it in a reject bag. Also, bag lamb wool and black fiber wool separately. Each pooler will receive a complete grade report for his/her wool, which will enable you to develop better management practices. Wools free of excessive chaff, burrs, and mud will gain a better return, as will 12-month staple wools.

If you have any questions concerning the pool, contact Dave Eckman at 814-798-3881 or Scott Baer at 814-443-2462.

Barley — A Cheap Feed Source

Barley production has been growing in acres for grain in Garrett County. Barley is considered a good feed source for all classes of livestock. Barley is now mainly used in the dairy, beef, horse, and sheep industries. The amount of barley needed by livestock industries other than poultry and swine is not adequate to assure that barley will be priced relative to its value in the animal's diet. Good barley has an energy value of 1,350 kcal/pound compared to 1,550 kcal/pound for corn (0.87%). A bushel of barley weighs 48 lbs or .86% of a bushel of corn. Considering the higher protein levels of barley, it should be priced in the range of 75-85% of a bushel of corn. However, without demand by the poultry and swine industries or export demand, barley will be marketed at "bargain basement prices." The economic law of supply and demand works!

New To The Area: CSA Organic Farms

Local Farmer Grows Produce The Natural, Organic Way

by Beth Bowers

With the beautiful backdrop of Backbone Mountain and Allegany Heights, a local farmer and his wife grow acres of produce with a lot of hard work and some help from mother nature and work horses.

Max and Katharine Dubansky are entering their third season operating the Backbone Organic Produce CSA (Community Supported Agriculture) along Lynndale Road, south of Oakland. They sell shares, or "subscriptions," based on their anticipated end product each year. The shareholders support the farm throughout the season and share some of the risks and costs of growing the food.

This season they have 18 members, who will receive a box each week of what is produced. Four of the members are also "work" sharers, who work in the gardens in exchange for produce. The Dubanskys are the caretakers for the 540 acres called Three Graces Farm; approximately three acres is used for produce, 60 acres is in fields, and the rest is wooded. Max got his start in organic farming growing up on his parents' farm near Grantsville.

"My dad was an organic gardener," Max said. "I have been around it pretty much my whole life. One of my pet peeves it that a lot of organic produce is expensive. We try to keep it affordable. We like the fact that we can do this locally."

They are in the process of becoming certified organic producers through the Mountain State Organic Growers and Buyers Association (MSOGBA), for which Katharine is secretary. If the farm passes inspection this summer, it will be certified in the fall. The process involves a lengthy application, soil tests, water tests, and an inspection.

According to Katharine, the National Organic Program will take effect in 2002. They said they are hoping this will not null their certification. They have been told by the MSOGBA that its standards are as high as, if not higher than, the new national standards.

For legitimate business purposes, they need to be certified to be able to call their produce truly organic. A business also must be certified if it sells more than $5,000 of produce each year.

"We don't believe we need the stamp of approval to know we are doing things the 'right way'; however, the process has been informative and we have learned a lot," Katharine said.

"We are striving to operate in a whole-farm cycle, giving and taking from the land to provide ourselves with fertilizer, feed, and hay for the animals, and good food for ourselves and others. In return, we hope to improve the quality of the land here and those lives who touch it," Katharine added.

They grow approximately 30 different types of vegetables; cut flowers, ranging from strawflowers to cosmos; and shiitake mushrooms, which they say have become quite popular. In addition to the mushrooms, Max said basil and salad mix are very popular.

This spring they inoculated 400 new shiitake mushroom logs. They drilled and stuffed many small holes in oak logs that will begin producing next spring. With the addition of these new logs, the total number of logs will be approximately 680.

Max hopes to have produce ready the beginning of June. The greenhouse is full and heated with a wood stove instead of electric heaters. Once the seedlings grow, they are moved to a hardening off table so the plants can acclimate to the weather before being planted in the ground.

To continue in the organic way of farming, Max does most of the fieldwork with his teams of workhorses. His teams consist of Percheron and Belgian horses.

"We believe that healthy living soil makes healthy living people," Max said. According to Max, very few young people like himself work with horses. He said a few families in the Pleasant Valley area farm with horses, which is a very economical and organic way to farm.

His desire to work with horses also stems back to his parents' Grantsville area farm. He had an older neighbor who taught him what to do, and he said he has done it that way ever since.

In addition to the horses, the farm houses Jersey cows, dogs, chickens, and cats. The chickens sometimes lay four dozen eggs a day, which are also available for sale.

In addition to maintaining the farm in the winter, Max operates Meadow Mountain Cross-Country Ski Rental near New Germany State Park.

Cross-country skiing is another love he learned from his mother, who is from Finland.

The Dubanskys said they truly enjoy what they do and are glad to be able to raise their two young children in such a wonderful and healthy area. They are presently looking for an intern who wants to learn about organic farming and will work in exchange for room and board.

The Dubanskys' produce can be purchased at the Mountain Fresh Tailgate Market every Wednesday and Saturday at the Mountain Fresh Pavilion in the Oakland town parking lot. The market runs from mid July through the end of October, from 10 a.m. until noon.

They can also be found at the tailgate market in Frostburg, along Main Street, on Fridays from 10 a.m. until noon. An Open Farm Day will be held at Three Graces Farm on Sunday, June 3, from noon until 5 p.m.

They added that anyone interested may call 301-334-5633 and come directly to the farm anytime after the first of June when the first crops are available.

THE ORGANIC WAY OF PLOWING — Max Dubansky is shown above working the fields with a team of horses. He said he finds this to be a very economical and organic way to farm. Below is a photo of the greenhouse, heated by a wood stove, which houses the early seedlings of the vegetables and flowers Max and his wife Katharine produce each year.

Agricultural Prices

Winter wheat and barley prices in Maryland improved slightly during March as soybean prices slipped further. Corn was 43 cents below 2000 and soybeans 68 cents per bu. lower.

Livestock prices continued their gains as cattle prices continued to strengthen and hog prices turned around.

Neighboring W.Va. Farm Owner Operates Unique Organic Venture

by Dr. Richard Zimmerman, WVU Extension Center Director, Agricultural and Natural Resources Development

As concerns about food safety grow because of various diseases, consumers increasingly want to know where their food comes from and how it is raised.

Organic farming is one way that people can know both of those things and a lot more. Some organic farmers provide consumers "food with a story to tell" and give those who use their products a way to watch how their vegetables are grown without chemical fertilizers. This national trend is an unmet need in West Virginia.

Helping to meet that need is Susan Sauter, co-owner of Flying Ewe Farm in Bruceton Mills (Preston County), W.Va., who operates her business through a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) approach. She sells shares or "subscriptions" based on her anticipated end product each year. The shareholders commit to support the organic farm throughout the season and assume some of the risks and costs of growing the food.

Seven of Sauter's 118 acres are arable or cultivable. Growing her vegetables and herbs on only one-half acre, she serves 20 families each year during a 23-week period. Each shareholder currently pays $400 a year.

To understand the CSA model better, Susan and her husband Don received a Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) grant to attend the Northeast Community Supported Agriculture Conference in New York state two years ago. The West Virginia University Extension Service helped them obtain that U.S. Department of Agriculture grant.

"The CSA model lets me concentrate on growing food, not marketing it. It establishes a link between the consumer, food, farmer, and the land," Sauter said. "That is the heart of what consumers are looking for."

To her knowledge, she is the only person in the state operating a CSA. Sauter believes that West Virginia's proximity to many of the nation's population centers makes it a prime area to start such a business.

"The people in those population centers want the organically raised food. They want food with a story to tell, which is connected to a place; and they are willing to pay for it. West Virginia farmers can make that connection for this large consumer group," said Sauter, who is president of the Mountain State Organic Growers and Buyers Association.

Although the organic food industry has experienced more than 20 percent growth for the past nine years, the demand for organic food is largely going unmet. Sauter has a two-year waiting list of families who want to purchase a share of her farm's yearly harvest, which shows the demand for organically grown food.

"Everyone needs to know where their food comes from. I really believe in growing in-season food locally so that people understand the whole food cycle and what it means to be on the land," she said.

Sauter grows between 50 and 70 different crops. Last year, she harvested salad greens for 20 consecutive weeks. She also grows hard-to-find heirloom varieties of vegetables.

"The WVU Extension Service has historically supported the traditional methods of food production, which utilize chemical fertilizers and pesticides. More recently, WVU Extension has moved to a philosophy of recognizing and supporting food production using organic methods and recommending alternative production systems to those still using traditional production methods," said Dr. Richard Zimmerman, director of the Extension's Agricultural and Natural Resources Development Center.

Sauter's farm is a Certified Organic Farm. This type of farming requires the producer to raise everything under a definitive plan for soil health that precludes using pesticides, herbicides, or synthetic fertilizers. Organic farmers manage that by using a mix of cover crops, compost, and mined soil ingredients with the goal of increasing life in the soil.

Certified organic farmers must be able to document that they are growing their products using official organic standards. The farm is inspected to make sure that it is operating by the rules and following the steps.

Sauter said that the state averages about 20 certified organic farms. Some become certified once but don't renew the next year. Nine new growers were certified last year.

Other farmers growing and processing organic food include: Spring Creek Natural Foods, Spencer (Roane County), which specializes in making tofu; Rolling Thunder Farm, Montrose (Tucker County); New Vrindaban Organic Gardens, Moundsville (Marshall County); Lightstone Foundation Farm Center, Moyers (Pendleton County); and Healing Hills Herb Farm, Ellenboro (Ritchie County).

Sauter recently received a $2,707 grant from the Northeast SARE Farmer/Grower program for a research project titled "Two Approaches to Farm-Grown Nitrogen."

Since starting her organic farming business virtually from scratch, Sauter has worked to find the most effective ways to grow new products and improve soil fertility on her land. In addition to reading books and searching the Internet, she has made many contacts with knowledgeable Extension professionals like Tom McConnell, a WVU Extension specialist in farm management.

"McConnell is someone we have turned to for help in figuring out how to manage our farm resources to support this CSA model. Everyone knows that he is a gold mine of information," Sauter said. "He's marketed and grown acres of vegetables, sunflowers, grain, and forage crops, and raised every kind of livestock imaginable. Tom helps us understand the big picture of everything we do on the farm," she said.

Sauter invites others to join her as organic CSA farmers. They must have an intense desire to work hard, the ability to learn how to grow vegetables, herbs, fruits, or other food products using organic methods, and own some farmable land.

Editor's Note: There will be an "Organic Day" at Flying Ewe Farm on Sat., June 9, beginning at 10 a.m. Workshops on organic composting, an intro to organic gardening, and seedbed preparation will be held at a cost of $8 each or $20 for all. In the afternoon there will be tours of the farm every hour. Sauter suggests that participants bring a bagged lunch, a water bottle, and wear appropriate clothing. Those interested in attending may call Sauter for directions at 304-379-7800, or e-mail her at ssauter2@wvu.edu.

Dr. Richard Zimmerman can be reached with questions on the CSA program at 304-293-6131, ext. 4206, or by e-mail at rzimmerm@wvu.edu.

ORGANIC LETTUCE AND GREENS, which grew in the garden at Flying Ewe Farm near Bruceton Mills, W.Va., last spring and summer, are only some of the organic vegetables of the 50 to 70 varieties she grows, including some hard-to-find heirloom varieties. Owner Susan Sauter said she harvested salad green for 20 consecutive weeks last year.

Society Breaks Ground For Museum Addition

The Springs Historical Society hosted a groundbreaking last Wednesday for a 48'x60' addition to the main Springs Museum building, located along Springs Road in Springs, Pa. (See photo)

A substantial portion of the funding for this building is from the bequest of the late Lura Folk of Springs, a founding member of the Springs Historical Society and the Springs Museum, and a faithful supporter until her death at the age of 100. Both she and her husband Cleman helped to collect many items on display since the museum founding in 1957.

The addition will house such items as agricultural equipment and an 1822 Conestoga wagon, and will facilitate the return of the steam engine designed and built by Gideon Miller of Springs.

The Springs Museum depicts the life of the early settlers of the Casselman Valley through such displays as an early church, school room, post office, country store, and kitchen. Also an exhibit on coal mining in the area has been added in recent years.

The museum will open May 26 for its 2001 season. Hours are Wednesday through Friday, 1-5 p.m. and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Springs Historical Society also hosts a farmer's market, now in its 10th season. The market showcases local produce, flea market items, plants, baked goods, and a food counter offering breakfast, lunch, and funnel cakes. Opening day is also May 26, and it will be open every Saturday through September 22 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Funds obtained through the Farmer's Market and the Springs Folk Festival, to be held this year on October 5 and 6, help support the museum.

A window replacement campaign is also an ongoing project. All have the opportunity to sponsor a window at the cost of $365 each. A small plate will be attached with the name of the individual for whom the window is dedicated.

Contributions may be made payable to the Springs Historical Society, P.O. Box 62, Springs, PA 15562. For further information, persons may contact Joe Bender, president, at 814-662-4366 or Lois Oester, treasurer, at 814-662-4158.

Route 50 Yard Sale Slated In Garrett County

The multi-state Great U.S. Route 50 Yard Sale is set for Friday through Sunday, May 18-20. The Garrett County portion of the event will take place along George Washington Highway. Since its inception in 1999, the annual yard sale serves to promote tourism along Rt. 50, to unite communities, to provide opportunities for fund-raising by civic organizations, and to aid the environment through recycling.

"The yard sale is a good way for individuals living along U.S. 50 to make some extra money, as well as an opportunity for businesses and communities to have special promotions," said Tom Taylor of Indiana, the event's overall coordinator. "A school or Lions Club could organize a flea market along U.S. 50 and charge for booth space. It is a way for an organization to make some quick money and have 100 percent of those funds stay in the community."

The local portion of the three-day sale is being coordinated by Stacy Taylor, Frostburg State University intern to the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, and local resident Linda Skeweris. Persons with outdoor space to rent along U.S. 50 or those looking for set-up space should contact Taylor at the Chamber of Commerce. Out-of-town dealers, including antique and craft vendors, may also participate. There is no parking or selling allowed on the state right-of-way, and all participants are encouraged to abide by all local safety laws.

For more information regarding the Great U.S. 50 Yard Sale, interested persons may contact the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386 or consult the yard sale's web site at www.route50.com.

May is Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month

Talking Back:
Ten Things Teens Want Parents to Know About Teen Pregnancy

1. We really care what you think, even if we don't always act like it.
When we don't end up doing exactly what you tell us to, don't think that you've failed to reach us.

2. Show us what good, responsible relationships look like.
We're as influenced by what you do as by what you say.

3. Pay attention to us before we get into trouble.
Reward us for doing the right thing—even when it seems like no big thing.

4. Talk to us honestly about love, sex, and relationships.
Just because we're young doesn't mean that we can't fall in love or be deeply interested in sex. These feelings are very real and powerful to us. Help us to handle the feelings in a safe way—without getting hurt or hurting others.

5. Telling us not to have sex is not enough.
Explain why you feel that way, and ask us what we think. Listen to us and take our opinions seriously. And no lectures, please.

6. Whether we're having sex or not, we need to be prepared.
We need to know how to avoid pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases.

7. If we ask you about sex or birth control, don't assume we are already having sex.
And don't think giving us information about sex and birth control will encourage us to have sex.

8. Show us why teen pregnancy is such a bad idea.
For instance, let us hear directly from teen mothers and fathers about how hard it has been for them.

9. Sometimes, all it takes not to have sex is not to have the opportunity.
If you can't be home with us after school, make sure we have something to do that we really like, where there are other kids and some adults who are comfortable with kids our age. Often we have sex because there's not much else to do. Don't leave us alone so much.

10. We hate "The Talk" as much as you do.
Instead, start talking with us about sex and responsibility when we're young, and keep the conversation going as we grow older.

If you want to know more about these issues, plan to attend the Family Chat on Saturday, May 19, at GCC Continuing Education Building from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.
To register, call 301-334-8122.
Sponsored by the Garrett Youth Council and the Teen Pregnancy Prevention Coalition.

Each sealed envelope containing a BID must be plainly marked on the outside as BID for Meadow Mountain Sewer Project and the envelope should bear on the outside the BIDDER'S name, address, and license number if applicable, and the name of the project for which the BID is submitted. If forwarded by mail, the sealed envelope containing the BID must be enclosed in another envelope addressed to the OWNER at

313 East Alder Street
Old Courthouse Room 200
Oakland, Maryland 21550

All BIDS must be made on the required BID form. All blank spaces for BID prices must be filled in, in ink or typewritten, and the BID form must be fully completed and executed when submitted. Only one copy of the BID form is required.

The OWNER may waive any informalities or minor defects or reject any and all BIDS. Any BID may be withdrawn prior to the above scheduled time for the opening of BIDS or authorized postponement thereof. Any BID received after the time and date specified shall not be considered. No BIDDER may withdraw a BID within 60 days after the actual date of the opening thereof. Should there be reasons why the contract cannot be awarded within the specified period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the OWNER and the BIDDER.

BIDDERS must satisfy themselves of the accuracy of the estimated quantities in the BID Schedule by examination of the site and a review of the drawings and specifications including ADDENDA. After BIDS have been submitted, the BIDDER shall not assert that there was a misunderstanding concerning the quantities of WORK or of the nature of the WORK to be done.

The OWNER shall provide to BIDDERS prior to BIDDING, all information which is pertinent to, and delineates and describes, the land owned and rights-of-way acquired or to be acquired.

The CONTRACT DOCUMENTS contain the provisions required for the construction of the PROJECT. Information obtained from an officer, agent, or employee of the OWNER or any other person shall not affect the risks or obligations assumed by the CONTRACTOR or relieve the contractor from fulfilling any of the conditions of the contract.

Each BID must be accompanied by a BID bond payable to the OWNER for five percent of the total amount of the BID. As soon as the BID prices have been compared, the OWNER will return the BONDS of all except the three lowest responsible BIDDERS. When the Agreement is executed the bonds of the two remaining unsuccessful BIDDERS will be returned. The BID BOND of the successful BIDDER will be retained until the payment BOND and performance BOND have been executed and approved, after which it will be returned. A certified check may be used in lieu of a BID BOND.

A performance BOND and a payment BOND each in the amount of 100 percent of the CONTRACT PRICE, with a corporate surety approved by the OWNER, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract.

Attorneys-in-fact who sign BID BONDS or payment BONDS and performance BONDS must file with each BOND a certified and effective dated copy of their power of attorney.

The party to whom the contract is awarded will be required to execute the Agreement and obtain the performance BOND and payment BOND within ten (10) calendar days from the date when NOTICE OF AWARD is delivered to the BIDDER. The NOTICE OF AWARD shall be accompanied by the necessary Agreement and BOND forms. In case of failure of the BIDDER to execute the Agreement, the OWNER may consider the BIDDER in default, in which case the BID BOND accompanying the proposal shall become the Property of the OWNER.

The OWNER within ten (10) days of receipt of acceptable performance BOND, payment BOND and Agreement signed by the party to whom the Agreement was awarded shall sign the Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the OWNER not execute the Agreement within such period, the BIDDER may by WRITTEN NOTICE withdraw the signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of the notice by the OWNER.

The NOTICE TO PROCEED shall be issued within ten (10) days of the execution of the Agreement by the OWNER. Should there be reasons why the NOTICE TO PROCEED cannot be issued within such period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the OWNER AND CONTRACTOR. If the NOTICE TO PROCEED has not been issued within the ten (10) day period or within the period mutually agreed upon, the CONTRACTOR may terminate the Agreement without further liability on the part of either party.

The OWNER may make such investigations as deemed necessary to determine the ability of the BIDDER to perform the WORK, and the BIDDER shall furnish to the OWNER all such information and data for this purpose as the OWNER may request. The OWNER reserves the right to reject any BID if the evidence submitted by, or investigation of, such BIDDER fails to satisfy the OWNER that such BIDDER is properly qualified to carry out the obligations of the Agreement and to complete the WORK contemplated therein.

A conditional or qualified BID will not be accepted.

Award will be made to the lowest responsible BIDDER.

All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over construction of the PROJECT shall apply to the contract throughout.

Each BIDDER is responsible for inspecting the site and for reading and being thoroughly familiar with the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS. The failure or omission of any BIDDER to do any of the foregoing shall in no way relieve any BIDDER from any obligation in respect to its BID.

Further, the BIDDER agrees to abide by the requirements under Executive Order No. 11246, as amended, including specifically the provisions of the equal opportunity clause set forth in the SUPPLEMENTAL GENERAL CONDITIONS.

The low BIDDER shall supply the names and addresses of major material SUPPLIERS and SUBCONTRACTORS when required to do so by the OWNER.

Several After-School Programs Funded By Grants

The Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. was awarded a two-year Maryland After-School Opportunity Fund Grant last year for $142,000 annually from the Department of Human Resources. The programs currently being funded by the fund grant are the Loch Lynn After-School Program, the Northern and Southern Middle School After-School Programs, and the Mini-Grant Program.

The grant was an initiative through the Governor's Subcabinet for Children and Families with the purpose of developing and/or enhancing after-school programs in the state.

Research indicates that children and youth are more likely to engage in high-risk behavior between the hours of 3:30 and 7 p.m. Unsupervised after-school hours are the most common time for youth to use alcohol and drugs, have sex, and commit crimes. The purpose of the After-School Opportunity Fund Grant was to provide structured and positive activities/programs for children and youth during these high-risk hours.

During the planning phase of the project, dozens of community members — key staff from the board of education, Child Care Administration, Community Action Committee, Department of Social Services, health department, Partnership for Children and Families, state's attorney office,

Promotion Pooch Gets Clearance From Pentagon

Luna, a tourism-promoting French bull dog, earned clearance from Pentagon officials to participate in last week's travel show in the highly restricted military complex near Washington, D.C. Luna, though less than a year old, has accompanied her human, Deb Clatterbuck, to represent the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at this season's travel shows from Boston to Cleveland.

Dubbed the "potential tourist magnet," Luna reportedly attracts hundreds of travel show visitors to the Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake displays. A shorthaired buff-colored pooch, she has been mistaken for a piglet when seen tail first. Her manners,

BLAZE DESTROYS BUILDING - A large two-story building in Loch Lynn, which at one time housed Kelly's Appliance and Furniture store, was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon after a candle that was left burning in an upstairs apartment set fire to some curtains. Volunteer firefighters from numerous local departments responded to the 2:35 p.m. blaze, which consumed the four apartments on the second floor in a matter of minutes. Two Oakland firefighters were transported to the hospital for treatment of heat exhaustion and/or minor injury. New lawn tractors and various other lawn and garden equipment stored on the first floor were saved. The property is owned by Frank Mattingly. The loss was estimated to be $250,000. See story. Edwards Reports On Results Of 2001 General Assembly

Delegate George Edwards said in an interview last week that he was not happy about what he considered "liberal spending" on the part of Maryland Governor Parris Glendening and his supporters at this year's General Assembly, but that he was pleased with some individual goals met this year.

"This was personally one of my better years," Edwards said. "This was the first time I made some very strong requests." The delegate said he is especially pleased with a development along Rt. 42 near Friendsville. "I told the transportation people that we in Garrett County have not had a major road improvement or project since 1977 and it's about time we had some attention up here."

One project he has apparently won approval for from the Maryland Department of Transportation is passing lanes along Rt. 42 on Elder Hill. Intersection improvements along Rt. 40 in Grantsville have also been selected. Both projects are to be included in the Consolidated Transportation Program. The SHA is also developing solutions to correct the truck-turning problems that exist where U.S. Rt. 40 intersects at routes 495 and 669. Field surveys are apparently under way and concept plans will be developed this summer.

Local bills requested by the commissioners this year were all passed. They included the "right to farm" legislation that allows the commissioners to adopt an ordinance or regulation to protect a citizen's right to pursue agricultural practices without being hampered by undue interference and over-regulation by the government. House bill 376 also passed, which concerned the rights of a land-

Accidental Blaze Destroys Large Building In Loch Lynn Friday

A burning candle is believed to have been the cause of a multiple-alarm blaze that destroyed a large, two-story wood and block commercial/residential building in Loch Lynn Friday afternoon. Volunteer firefighters from seven Garrett County departments either sent units and personnel to the scene or stood by at other stations during the fire, which was reported at 2:35 p.m.

The 86-by-90-foot building, which at one time housed Kelly's Appliance and Furniture Store, was located at 104 Alderson Street. It was owned by Frank Mattingly, owner of Manor Home Center, who used the first floor for storage of furnaces, tractors, and lawn equipment. The second floor housed four apartments, and it was in apartment #2 that the fire originated.

According to Steve Wendling, deputy state fire marshal who investigated the incident, the occupant of the apartment saw burning curtains in the master bedroom. She told her two daughters, one son, and another adult in her apartment to get out of the building, and then warned the occupants of the other three apartments. Her daughter called 911 from a cellular telephone.

Wendling himself was in the area at the time and saw the smoke coming from the building. He also called 911, and, after making sure all of the occupants were out of the building, he began his investigation. He later determined that a candle left burning in the bedroom is what ignited the curtains. Flames quickly spread to other combustibles.

Performance Schedule For Music At Penn Alps '01 Is Announced

Music at Penn Alps will return this summer to the Great Hall at Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop in Grantsville for a ninth season of musical programs.

All performances will take place at 7:30 p.m. on selected Saturday evenings, beginning June 2 and ending September 15. A reception to honor the musicians will follow each performance.

The season will open June 2 with the Coolidge String Quartet. The ensemble returns to Penn Alps from the University of Maryland College Park campus, where the members are Guameri Fellowship recipients. This prize-winning quartet formed in 1997 under the guidance of the Emerson Quartet at the Hartt School of Music in Hartford, Conn., and has performed extensively abroad and throughout the United States. Sponsored by the Casselman Inn, their program includes selections by Haydn, Webern, and Bartok.

Pianist Eric Himy will come to Penn Alps on June 9 with an array of critically acclaimed performances in five continents. Considered one of the rising stars of his generation, Himy's appearances include Carnegie Recital Hall, Lincoln Center, and the Kennedy Center. Critics have praised his interpretations of such Spanish and French masters as Albeniz, DeFalla, Debussy, Poulenc, and Ravel. His performance will consist of his own transcriptions of works by well-known composers. Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, is the concert sponsor.

Violinist Theophanos Dymiotis and pianist Katherine Jacobson will join forces June 16 to perform works by Mozart, Bach, Scriabin, and Grieg. An award-winning composer, Dymiotis performs regularly with the Rossetti String

FAA Approves $225,000 Grant For Airport

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett announced yesterday that the United States Department of Transportation's Federal Aviation Administration has approved an airport improvement program grant of $225,000 for the Garrett County Airport.

"This is great news," Bartlett said. "This grant will be used to pay for the required environmental impact study for the airport's 5-year development plan."

An expansion project at the airport was recently approved by the Garrett County commissioners.

Woman Flown To Baltimore After Accident

A Garrett County woman was seriously injured in a Sunday morning single-vehicle accident caused when a small herd of deer ran in front the vehicle in which she was a passenger on Green Lantern Road south of the National Pike, according to the Maryland State Police, McHenry barrack.

April Virginia Garlitz, 20, a Blocher Road resident of the Frostburg area, was listed in serious but stable condition as of yesterday evening by the University of Maryland Medical Center's Shock Trauma Unit. She had been flown to the Baltimore facility by MSP helicopter after an initial transport to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Garlitz was injured shortly after 4 a.m. Sunday morning, when four deer reportedly ran across the southbound lane of Green Lantern Road in front of a 1998 Ford F-150 operated by Michael Eugene Garlitz, 19, Frostburg. The driver hit the brakes, causing the pickup truck to go into a skid and slide off the north side of the road; the truck then bounded back across the roadway and hit a small embankment on the other side, causing it to roll over several times.

April Garlitz and a second passenger, Ashley Erin Warnick, 16, Lonaconing, were both injured and transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, and Garlitz was subsequently flown on to Baltimore. Warnick was hospitalized at Cumberland Memorial, where as of yesterday evening she was listed in stable condition. Michael Garlitz sustained minor injuries that were treated at the scene.

No charges were filed by investigating officer Trp. M. DeValk.

NGCRS Reverses Decision To Close Friendsville Station

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad announced last week that its Friendsville station will remain in operation, a move that reversed an earlier decision by the squad's board of directors to consolidate its Friendsville and Accident presence into a single McHenry-based facility.

Approximately 60 persons were on hand when the decision of the squad's board of directors was announced during a NGCRS general membership meeting last Thursday. The move does not cancel the squad's earlier decision to establish a McHenry station, according to Cheryl Rexrode, vice chair of the board of directors.

The squad's Operational Review Committee, chaired by operations chief Mary Yoder with the assistance of a representative from each of the three NGCRS stations in Friendsville, Accident, and Grantsville, added that both the Friendsville and Grantsville stations, and, for the forseeable future, the Accident station, will remain in operation subject to a stipulation that there were less than 25 percent missed or delayed calls.

"If any of the three stations fail to meet that target in the span of any given month, the ORC will review that particular situation and make its own recommendation to the general membership," Rexrode said.

The Accident station will be subject to the same criteria, but its final future status remains unresolved. Should the squad open a McHenry station, the Accident station could be closed. There has not been the general outcry over the possibility of Accident's station closing that was precipitated when the initial decision to close Friendsville's station was first announced.

Convicted Robber Sentenced To 20 Years In Dept. Of Corrections

Robert Glenn Kennedy, 25, Dublin, Va., entered pleas of guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to charges of robbery and first degree assault. For the robbery charge, Judge James Sherbin sentenced the defendant to 15 years in prison. Five years were added for the assault conviction.

Kennedy was one of the two men who entered Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville, on Aug. 20, 1999, and demanded a specific narcotic drug from employees, who were being held at gunpoint. Witnesses watched the perpetrators, Kennedy and Jason Dalton, flee the area in a small green car.

After allegedly committing a string of similar robberies throughout the states of Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, the two were apprehended in New Han-

Child Safety Seat Check Locations Are Scheduled

The Garrett County Health Department has scheduled a series of child safety seat checks to help families make sure their children are as safe as possible when they travel.

The first seat check is scheduled for Sunday, May 20, from 1 until 3 p.m., at the Accident Volunteer Fire Department in conjunction with their open house. Trained personnel will be available to make sure child seats are installed correctly, are not recalled, and are the correct seat for the child's age and weight.

"At the seat checks we have held in the last year, nine out of 10 seats have needed some kind of cor-over County, N.C., after robbing a pharmacy there. They were found to be in possession of a green Chevy Cavalier, two pellet guns that looked like semi-automatic weapons, and a map that included information about Beachy's Pharmacy. Officers of the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) traveled to North Carolina to obtain statements from the defendants.

The men were indicted for these crimes by the March 2000 term Grand Jury. The state's attorney's office had to wait until Kennedy's cases were completed in North Carolina and Virginia before bringing him to Maryland to face the local charges.

Dalton previously pleaded guilty to the same charges and was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

In other circuit court news, an Oakland man was found not guilty of a charge of second degree assault. Everett Boyd Weimer Jr., 40, was charged following an alleged domestic incident in August 2000. The state's only witness, Weimer's spouse, exerted her privilege not to testify and no evidence was presented to the court, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Man Arrested For Numerous Theft Charges

Investigators with Garrett Bureau of Investigation made an arrest recently of a Mountain Lake Park man relating to a theft of more than $12,000 in cash and two handguns. Charles Howard Burgess III was arrested and charged with one count of felony theft, one count of misdemeanor theft, and two counts of weapons violations.

The theft occurred at the residence of Judy and Perry Hebb, located along George Washington Highway, in the early summer months of 2000. According to investigators, Burgess had been residing with the Hebbs at the time of the theft.

GBI recently recovered one of the two stolen handguns. The handgun was traced back to Burgess, who had traded the handgun to a 15-year-old youth in the Friendsville area.

Burgess is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on a $20,000 bond.

The second handgun has not yet been recovered. Persons with knowledge of its whereabouts are urged to contact GBI at 301-334-1909. According to investigators, they are only concerned about the gun's safe recovery, and callers should not be concerned about being charged.

Education Bd. To Hold Open House May 30

The Garrett County Board of Education will be holding an open house at their new location along Second Street on Wednesday, May 30, from 3:30 until 6:30 p.m.

In April, the board completed its move of administrative offices from the older building along Fourth Street to part of the M&T Bank building along Second Street.

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent, said he wants to invite all members of the business community, school personnel, parents, and all members of the community to visit the new facility.

The entire building was purchased by the Garrett County Commissioners, and part of it is leased to M&T Bank. The Fourth Street building has been declared a surplus property, and will be transferred and deeded to the Garrett County Commissioners effective July 1.

"We are very grateful to the commissioners for providing us with this new facility," Teets said. "It has been needed for a long time, but I really didn't expect it to happen so quickly."

According to Madeleine Collins, president of the board of education, the atmosphere of the new building is much more professional.

"We are very excited about being in downtown Oakland," Collins said. "The two buildings are as different as night and day. This new building is much more professional, and being in downtown Oakland has made a wonderful difference."

Dr. Teets said tours will be given starting in the third floor board room. Refreshments will also be served.

STATE VICA-SKILLS OLYMPIC WINNERS RECOGNIZED — The winners of the VICA-Skills Olympics, which were held in Baltimore, were recently recognized for their accomplishments by the board of education. Winners representing Northern High School were Josh Perez, who placed first in the action skills demonstration and will be attending nationals; Laurie Fratz, who placed first in Job Skills B; and Mark Zimmerman, who also placed first in Job Skills A. Ron Bray of Southern High School placed first in the promotional bulletin board competition. He will also be attending nationals. The team, consisting of Steve Teagarden, Jeremiah Ervin, Scott Bolyard, and Erin Gregg, took first place for SHS in the team building competition. They will compete in a house-building demonstration. They will have to build a house in three days, and everything, including plumbing and wiring, must work. The team of Steve, Erin, James Preston, Andrew Harvey, and Becky Rinehart took third place in the quiz bowl competition. Sitting in the first row, from the left, are Rinehart, Harvey, Fratz, and Zimmerman. Standing, from the left, are Madeleine Collins, president of the board of education; Gregg; Teagarden; Loren Bowser, SHS carpentry instructor and VICA adviser; Bolyard; Candy Dauses, assistant adviser; Bray; Mary Ann Shipe, SHS adviser; and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent. NHS advisers Tony Talerico and Bob Moranduzzo, and Perez, Preston, and Ervin were not present for the photo.

Mishaps Result From Medical, Vehicle Problems

A pair of separate single-vehicle accidents along Interstate 68 this week were attributed to medical and mechanical problems, respectively, by the Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack. The drivers, who were the lone occupants of their respective vehicles, both sustained minor injuries, although no charges were filed.

The first accident occurred at 3:20 p.m. Sunday along westbound I-68 approximately four miles west of Keyser's Ridge when Stephen Paul McDonald, 20, Uniontown, Pa., lost control of his 1999 Volkswagen Bug, which traveled off the roadway and struck the center median. The impact caused the vehicle to flip and roll several times before it came to rest on the interior shoulder of the eastbound lanes.

McDonald was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, where he was treated and released. Personnel from the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department were also summoned to the scene.

Tfc. R. Sharp's investigation revealed that McDonald had suffered a mild diabetic shock episode, which caused him to lose control of his car.

Tuesday's accident occurred at approximately 6:30 p.m. when a 1998 Chevrolet Blazer operated by Philip David Tasker, 26, Keyser, W.Va., experienced mechanical problems along eastbound I-68 just east of Green Lantern Road. As his vehicle began drifting off the left shoulder, Tasker over-corrected, which caused the Blazer to skid across the road and strike an embankment on the other side of the eastbound lanes.

Northern Rescue transported Tasker to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded. Tpr. J.B. Schlossnagle's investigation cleared Tasker of fault in the single-vehicle mishap.

Friday Vehicle Stops Lead To Drug Charges

Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack were involved in two separate vehicle searches Friday that led to a total of four arrests of individuals on possession of drugs with the intent to distribute charges, among others.

The first incident took place at 6:25 p.m. when Tyler Scott Meyers, 18, of Greencastle, Pa., was arrested after a traffic stop near Friendsville along westbound Interstate 68 at Bear Creek. A passenger in a 1993 Ford Tempo, Meyers was charged after a consent search uncovered suspected Ecstasy tablets and marijuana on his person.

Eventually a total of 100 suspected Ecstasy tablets, with an approximate street value of $25 each, three 3.5-gram packets of suspected powdered Ecstasy, and 3.4 grams of suspected marijuana were recovered from the vehicle by Tfc. J.P. Grinnan, who also located a glass smoking device that contained suspected burnt marijuana residue, a digital scale, and numerous empty baggies.

Meyers faces charges of possession of Ecstasy and marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of Ecstasy and marijuana, and five counts of possession of drug paraphernalia. He was subsequently released from the Garrett County Detention Center when he posted a $5,000 bond as set by a district court commissioner.

The second drug arrest of the evening was carried out in the southern portion of the county by a team of state troopers and Garrett County sheriff's deputies assigned to the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

At approximately 10:30 p.m. the investigators stopped a 1991 Mercury sedan on Maryland Highway just east of Swanton Hill Road. Confidential information said the vehicle would be traveling to West Virginia for a marijuana pickup to bring the drug back for distribution in this area.

A surveillance team of Task Force investigators stopped the vehicle as it was making its way back in the direction of Oakland, and a K-9 drug detection scan resulted in a positive alert. The vehicle and its occupants were searched and a quantity of four 1 oz. bags of suspected marijuana, drug paraphernalia, and a set of weighing scales were recovered.

The vehicle's three occupants, Benito Perea, 23, Corinth, W.Va., and Roy Cheshire, 21, and Michael Thompson, 19, both of Oakland, were each arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. Perea and Cheshire were also handed additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia.

Perea and Cheshire were subsequently released from jail after each posted a $2,500 bond. Thompson posted a $1,000 bond.

Single-Vehicle Accident Leads To DWI Charge

A McHenry woman faces a charge of driving while intoxicated (DWI) in the wake of an early Sunday morning single-vehicle accident along Cranesville Road north of the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort, according to the Maryland State Police, McHenry barrack.

A trooper investigating the report of a single-vehicle crash along Cranesville Road between White Rock and Sang Run roads located a 1988 Chrysler LeBaron at approximately 5:25 a.m. The car had struck a tree when the driver, Elaine Dana Strobel, 30, failed to negotiate a curve just south of White Rock Road, crossed the double yellow line, and skidded completely across the oncoming northbound lane to strike a tree.

Tpr. J.B. Schlossnagle's report stated that when he arrived at the accident scene, Strobel and her passenger, Geoffrey Allen Reams, 18, Oakland, were both asleep inside the wrecked vehicle. Both refused medical treatment, and Strobel was arrested for DWI after performing poorly on a battery of field sobriety tests. She was transported to the MSP barrack for processing and subsequently released to a friend pending trial. No charges were filed against the passenger.

State troopers recorded a second DWI arrest this week at 1:15 a.m. yesterday morning, when Pittsburgh resident Shane Scott Kinman, 35, was stopped for an equipment violation along northbound Garrett Highway at Mayhew Inn Road. Field sobriety tests initiated by Tfc. B. Broadwater led to Kinman's arrest, and a computer check revealed that his driver's license had been suspended by the state of Pennsylvania. He was released after being processed on DWI and driving while suspended charges.

ROUTE 40 SCHOOL HONORED AT GALA — Route 40 Elementary School recently received honorable mention at the Maryland Blue Ribbon Schools gala, which honors high-performing schools. The Maryland Blue Ribbon Schools program, administered through the Maryland State Department of Education, is part of the National Blue Ribbon Schools honor program. At both the state and national levels, these programs are designed to recognize superior accomplishments in student achievement, instruction, school organization and culture, parent and community involvement, professional development opportunities, and leadership. Motorists Face Charges After Saturday Arrests

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made numerous arrests Saturday which resulted in many different charges.

A deputy was traveling along Gorman Road near Steyer Mine Road around 3 a.m. on Saturday when an approaching vehicle failed to dim its headlights. According to the deputy, he followed the vehicle and observed it cross the center line and drive in the opposite lane.

The deputy attempted to make a traffic stop; however, the vehicle continued traveling for approximately two miles before stopping. The driver of the vehicle, Page Robert McCrum, 36, Virginia Beach, Va., was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), driving on a suspended license, fleeing and eluding, failing to drive right of center, and failing to dim headlights to an oncoming vehicle.

McCrum was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $1,415 bond.

Earlier that morning deputies confronted the driver of a vehicle in the parking lot of Arrowhead Market after observing seven occupants in the 1990 Geo. The driver, Michael Fazenbaker, 20, Grantsville, was arrested and charged with DWI, violating a license restriction, and possession of an alcoholic beverage under the age of 21.

A search of one of the passengers, James Walker Winebrenner, 35, Grantsville, revealed a small quantity of marijuana and paraphenelia.

Fazenbaker was released from jail on his own recognizance. Winebrenner was released on a $500 bond.

Deputies stopped a Ford Ranger truck for speeding along Maryland Highway near D Street. The driver of the vehicle, Tony Lynn Way, 41, Crownsville, was placed under arrest for driving on a suspended license.

According to deputies, a search of the vehicle revealed a suspected marijuana cigarette. Way was also charged with possession of marijuana.

Way was released on a $5,000 bond.

A separate traffic stop was made by deputies along M Street in Mountain Lake Park around 11:30 p.m. Saturday. The driver, Mark Edward Whitacre, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested and charged with DWI, driving on a revoked license, driving on a revoked out of state license, and failing to drive right of center.

Whitacre was released from the jail on a $2,500 bond.

A passenger in the vehicle, Charles French Stinson, 45, Oakland, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and failing to obey a lawful order of a police officer.

Stinson was released from the jail on a $3,000 bond.

Edgar Louis Powell, 77, Deer Park, was also arrested by deputies and charged with DWI and failing to drive right of center after deputies stopped him for a traffic violation along Maryland Highway near Southern States.

He was released on his own recognizance.

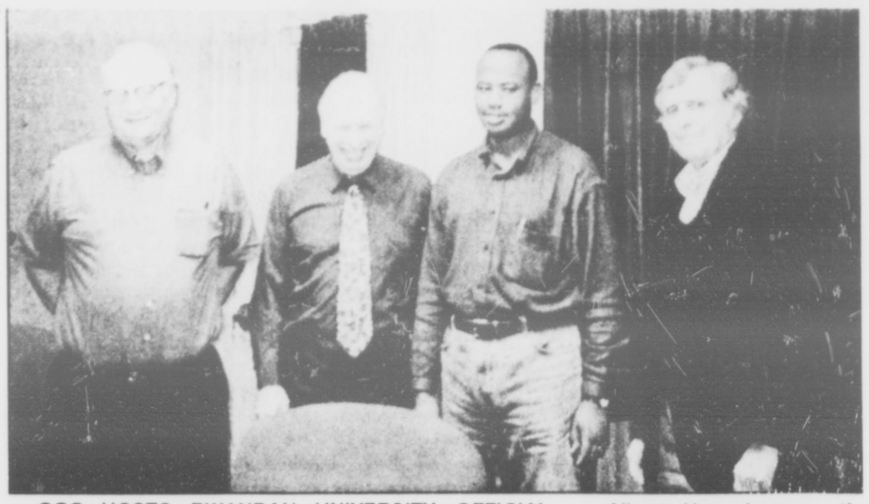
No injuries were reported, but a charge was filed in a motor vehicle accident around 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Sylvia May Guthrie, 53, Oakland, was charged with failing to yield the right of way when her 2001 Chevrolet Malibu was struck in the right front side by another vehicle traveling south along I Street. Guthrie was traveling west along Wheeling Avenue at the time.

The other vehicle, a 1989 Ford Escort, was being operated by Michael Lee Murphy, 19, Oakland.

Deputies made another arrest early this morning, Thursday, when they made a traffic stop along Glendale Road.

Lane Stephen Duda, 37, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested and charged with DWI and failing to drive right of center.



GCC HOSTS RWANDAN UNIVERSITY OFFICIAL — Albert Nsengiyumva, the computer center director at the National University of Rwanda, visited Garrett Community College recently as part of an effort to improve information services in his homeland. He was treated to a demonstration of various applications for distance learning and was informed of the ways the college serves its community with information services, and expressed particular interest in the Garrett Information Enterprise Center currently under construction. Educated in Belgium as an electronics engineer, Nsengiyumva subsequently returned to Rwanda to help develop an information technology infrastructure. Three Sustain Minor Injuries In Sunday Crash

Three individuals, one a 1-year-old toddler, were slightly injured in three-car collision Sunday morning along North Third Street, according to the Oakland City Police Department.

At approximately 10:40 a.m. a line of three cars was stopped in the northbound lane of Third Street just prior to Omar Street as the lead vehicle (which was not identified) waited to make a lefthand turn into a driveway. The second stopped vehicle was a 2000 Chevrolet sedan operated by Clayton E. Nazelrod, 32, Dover, Del., and the third stopped vehicle was a 1999 Ford Ranger, driven by Gerald Charles Cady, 28, Swanton.

Another vehicle, a 1993 Eagle Talon operated by Joanna Beth Quick, 17, Dover, Del., approached the line from behind and reportedly failed to stop, striking the rear of Cady's pickup truck, which was forced into the rear of Nazelrod's sedan.

Cady and his toddler passenger, and 15-year-old Jeremiah Quick, who was riding in the Talon, each sustained minor injuries and were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were all treated and released. None of the other drivers or passengers involved in the pile-up were hurt.

No charges were filed by investigating officer Pfc. Chris Feller. Personnel from the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Woman In Stable Condition After Sunday Accident

An Oakland woman sustained injuries including a broken leg in the wake of a head-on collision south of Grantsville, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. Cumberland Memorial Hospital staff listed her in stable condition as of yesterday evening.

At approximately 6:24 p.m. Charlotte Lynn Wilson, 20, was reportedly operating a 1989 Dodge Omni at a high rate of speed along southbound Chestnut Ridge Road near Meadow Lake Road when her sedan slid first toward the right shoulder, then back across the roadway and into the path of an oncoming 2001 Ford truck driven by Gregory Alan Wilburn, 29, Grantsville.

Wilson was injured in the collision, and was transported to the hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Personnel from the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the accident scene. Tfc. R. Sharp's report indicated that charges may be forthcoming.

"Maryland You Are Beautiful" Nominees Sought

The Maryland You Are Beautiful program, in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development and the governor's office, is now accepting nominations for the 15th annual "Maryland's Most Beautiful People" Volunteer Awards. The deadline for nominations is August 10, 2001.

"Unique to Maryland and the nation, the Maryland You Are Beautiful program generates enormous state pride by recognizing thousands of unsung heroes who make Maryland a better place to live, work, and visit," said Gov. Parris N. Glendening.

"There are many heroes in our state, but often those "unsung heroes" — our many volunteers — don't get the recognition they deserve," said Floraine B. Applefeld, director of the Maryland You Are Beautiful program. "With the many demands placed on people's time, it's wonderful to see that many individuals still volunteer to serve the citizens and visitors of Maryland."

A nominee might be a tour guide at a museum or historic landmark, the person who organizes a local fair or parade, or someone who generously gives his or her time to community support services, Applefeld said. Nomination forms are available in public buildings throughout the state, or by contacting the Maryland You Are Beautiful program at 410-347-2272. Persons may also visit the Maryland You Are Beautiful program's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/myab.

All nominees will be honored at local award ceremonies. One nominee from each county and Baltimore City will be chosen to represent the many nominees from their area at a statewide awards ceremony in Annapolis hosted by Governor Parris N. Glendening, Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, and other dignitaries on Wednesday, Nov. 14, 2001.

The "Maryland's Most Beautiful People" Volunteer Awards are made possible through the generosity of many private contributors: the Classic Catering People, Linganore Winecellars, University of Maryland Music Department, the Chorus of Dorchester, Bank of America, and CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield.

DCL Policy Review Board Sets Meeting

The Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board will meet on Tuesday, May 29, 7 p.m., at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center. The agenda for the meeting includes action on the final draft of the land use and development plan for the lake.

At its May 14 meeting, the board completed a review and amendment of the second draft of the plan. Department of Natural Resource planner Neal Welch and lake manager Paul Durham have worked with the board since last fall to develop the plan. Board meetings were open to the public, and there were opportunities for public comment and discussion about the plan.

After board approval, copies of the plan will be made available for public viewing at the Deep Creek Discovery Center during regular business hours, 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The board is expected to hold a public informational meeting later in the summer at a location in the lake area.

A second agenda item deals with a proposal from Scott Cervi to conduct commercial diving operations on the lake.

Women Injured, One Charged, After Crash

Two Montgomery County women were injured slightly in a Saturday morning accident along Interstate 68 west of Friendsville when their 1999 Mitsubishi Mirage slid under the trailer portion of a nearby tractor trailer. The Mitsubishi's driver was charged with failure to reduce speed in dangerous road conditions along the rain-soaked highway, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

The mishap occurred at approximately 11:38 a.m. when Vanessa Azezch Rawaghi, 22, Gaithersburg, lost control of her vehicle as it hydroplaned along westbound I-68 west of Old Morgantown Road. She and her passenger, Debra Florence Rawnaghi, 46, also of Gaithersburg, were both injured when their vehicle slid under a trailer pulled by a 2000 Kenworth T-600 tractor operated by Mark D. Reynolds, 36, Fort Recovery, Ohio.

The two women were transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, where both were treated and released. Personnel from the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. The accident report was completed by Tfc. B.A. Bond.

Time Will Tell...

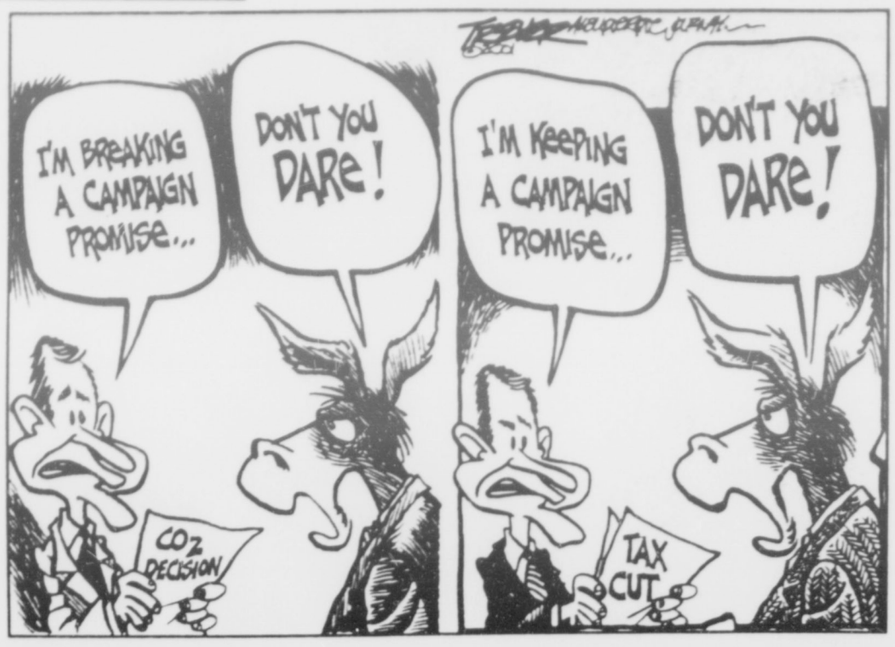
There are a number of symptoms that our nation is in the middle, or beginning, of an energy crisis, with the most visible being the continually rising price of gasoline and home heating costs. The residents of California are surely in a crisis, as not only are costs soaring, but energy blackouts are becoming an almost daily occurrence.

Just because there are symptoms, though, there are many other factors to consider in trying to determine if we are truly in a crisis, and if so, has it been intentionally fabricated. For example, just how much, if any, of the current problem is being caused by the major oil companies of the world? Such crises are usually caused by an oil shortage, but the world supply right now seems stable and we have plentiful reserves. There has been no talk of rationing gasoline, as we were forced to do in the 1970s.

We are also admittedly wary of President George Bush's approach and his just released energy plan, given his strong ties to the oil industry, an industry that is not exactly known as a great advocate of protecting the environment. Money, sadly, does "make the world go 'round," and it's too early to tell if George Bush will always do what he believes is in the best interest of the nation, or of himself. His energy plan will be picked apart over the next several months and, it is hoped, will ultimately provide a balanced, environmentally safe combination of drilling for more domestic oil, building more power plants, pushing for more energy-efficient automobiles, and promoting conservation.

The average citizen can have little impact on the first three of the aforementioned list, but can do much in the area of conservation, and should do so on a regular basis anyway, whether or not the energy crisis is legitimate. We are a spoiled nation in so many ways, including our use of electrical power, other utilities, and our automobiles. Waste is rampant. Electric lights burn for hours in empty rooms all over America, televisions are left on with or without an audience, and water is used, and wasted, as if the supply is endless, leaving faucets running and taking 20-minute (or longer) showers. If we're chilly, we turn up the thermostat instead of putting on a sweater. We don't carpool nearly enough. Our municipalities, businesses, and various agencies needlessly burn bright lights, inside and outside, all night long. (Take a ride through Oakland at 3 a.m. and observe.) We are, indeed, literal gluttons of our natural resources.

Time will tell as to what kind of leadership President Bush will provide in dealing with our alleged energy crisis. We hope he is willing and has the courage to make some tough decisions that just might be in opposition to what the oil company executives desire. Only then will we be convinced that he is not their puppet.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Teachers are easily and only too often criticized. I write to praise. This spring two local students, Heidi Frazee of Friendsville and Chris Yoder of Grantsville, enrolled in my freshman composition class at Frostburg State University. What a pleasure they turned out to be. Both were well prepared and both elected to opt out early, a rare occurrence for any student. Both attended Northern and both had learned under the tutelage of Bill Kolbe.

If Mr. Kolbe's success in any way relates to the standards set and encouraged by his principal and the Garrett County Board of Education, my hat is off to jobs well done.

Sincerely,
Bob Pletta
Friendsville

To the Editor:

Mental illnesses are real, common, and treatable. Mental illnesses are health conditions characterized by alterations in thinking, mood, or behavior associated with distress and or impaired functioning. They affect one in five Americans each year regardless of age, gender, race, or socioeconomic status.

Mental illnesses can often be debilitating. They can diminish quality of life and, in some cases, lead to suicide. Our laws and our health care plans continue to treat these problems as less seriously than physical illnesses. Despite all we have achieved in our quest to conquer mental illnesses and develop effective treatments, prejudice against people with mental illness continues. This bias is unfounded.

It is time for all of us to take action and help everyone understand that mental health matters. We must not take mental health for granted. We must come to view mental illnesses as seriously as we do all other issues.

As a private provider of mental health care services, we call upon all citizens, businesses, schools, and government agencies to recommit our communities to increasing awareness and to the understanding of mental illness.

Sincerely,
Debbie Joe Adams-Noroski
Chief Executive Officer
Garrett County Lighthouse Inc.

To the Editor:

The College of Education at Frostburg State University is scheduled for a fall 2001 accreditation review by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). Federal regulations require that accrediting agencies allow for public comment on the qualifications of institutions or programs under consideration for initial or continuing accreditation.

Both NCATE and Frostburg State University recognize that graduates, parents, schools and community organizations have valuable perspectives on the quality of the programs that prepare teachers and other school personnel. We invite interested parties to submit written testimony on Frostburg State University's College of Education to: Board of Examiners, NCATE, 2010 Massachusetts Ave. NW, Suite 500, Washington, DC 20036-1023.

Comments must address substantive matters related to the quality of professional education programs offered at Frostburg State University and/or to the professional performance and characteristics for Frostburg program graduates. Such letters should specify the respondent's relationship, if any, to the institution (e.g., graduate, present or former faculty member, employer of graduates). Copies of all correspondence received will be sent to Frostburg State University for comment prior to the review. No anonymous testimony will be considered.

Letters of comment should be received by NCATE no later than July 20, 2001.

Dr. Susan Arisman
Dean, FSU College of Education

To the Editor:

I am writing to you on a very important subject that needs to be brought to the forefront of people's minds — domestic violence. It can not be kept a secret any longer. Believe me, I know this is a tough subject, but people need to know about it. When did it become OK for a man to beat his wife, as long as he didn't put her in the hospital for a few days or give her a concussion? "Everyone knows he is a good man. He just lost control this time, and it will never happen again. We all know how sorry he is!" When did it become all right to beat the children's mother in front of them? "We all know that he is a good father and how much he loves his children. We can't believe he would do anything like that. He is a very nice man and so gentle." To everyone but his wife and children.

No one has a right to physically abuse you. You should not take one hit or one slap, not even one push. No one has the right to call you names or put you down in any way. This, too, is abuse. Domestic violence is a crime, and it is not your fault if he hurts you! It is his. You don't have to take it anymore.

There is help out there if you need it. There are many different programs out there to help, such as the Dove Center. They are just a phone call away (301-334-9000, 1-800-656-hope, or 911).

The victim has the right for law enforcement personnel to protect her. The police will accompany him back just long enough to retrieve his clothes and personal belongings. This only takes about 15 minutes to do (not like in my case, where my husband came back and was permitted to stay two hours and take three truckloads of property with the police standing there.)

We need to get stronger laws that protect the victim, and for law enforcement personnel and the courts to stand behind the laws we have set. We should not just let the abuser go.

Sincerely,
Donna M. Burton
Grantsville

To the Editor:

I would like to commend the Humane Society and the animal shelter for the wonderful service they provide by caring for and finding good homes for unwanted and stray pets.

Last year my husband and I adopted a beautiful, long-haired, calico cat from the Humane Society. It was love at first sight. Her beauty was exceeded only by her intelligence and sweet nature. We named her Chessie, after the sleeping cat on the old railroad cars.

Cats have always been a part of our family. Not long after our 18-year-old Siamese passed away, a stray cat left two of her newborn kittens with us and went on her merry way. That was 17 years ago, and Mikey and Patsy have lived with us ever since, until two years ago when we lost our beloved Patsy.

We hesitated about adopting another cat because Mikey was so old and not very well, and we thought he would resent a new cat in the family. We needn't have worried. In no time he and Chessie were the best of pals, and a spark of his youth seemed to return.

So, dear reader, the next time you see a picture in the paper of a pet that needs a home, maybe you should consider adopting it. Even if you are in your 70s--especially if you are in your 70s--think of all the good exercise you'll get, bending over to feed and pet them, and running to the door to let them in and out. Also, I've heard that people with pets live longer.

Kittens and puppies are playful and cute, and provide great entertainment, but older pets are more settled and usually more affectionate and companionable, and make better lap warmers.

Chessie has brought us nothing but joy, and anyone who enters our home and reads the welcoming sign beside the front door, knows that "a home without a cat is just a house" (or dog, if you are so inclined).

Sincerely,
Nelda McNeil
(A lover of cats)

however, have been described as "friendly and winsome," her owner remarked.

"Luna had to go through some rigorous investigation before she could be approved as a member of the workforce at the Pentagon travel exhibit," Clatterbuck said. The pup, which earned a regular spot in the Garrett County display booths, needed to provide credentials to the top brass proving that she was truly a travel show hostess and not an impostor.

"I had to send documentation to the security clearance people authenticating Luna's role in the promotion of Garrett County, although paw prints were not submitted. She has become an integral part of our strategy for drawing potential visitors to our booth so that we can provide exciting information about our resort amenities and recreation resources," Clatterbuck said.

Photos and news clippings of Luna on the job were forwarded to Pentagon security, and at last her pass and letter of entrée were granted. "I'm certainly relieved and delighted that the Pentagon people recognized Luna's role as the 'secret weapon' for our mission," Clatterbuck concluded, as Luna snuffled into her Sherpa pack.

View From My Window

END OF THE SCHOOL YEAR

Like many other people, from those in their early single digits to those few approaching the triple digit status, I have been finishing a school year. Students in elementary and secondary schools have as much as another month to go. Institutions of higher learning, one of which I have been attending, have mostly let out by now.

During the past two semesters I have been studying philosophy at a Catholic seminary. That would, in any case, be an interesting experience for a Presbyterian minister. Two mornings a week I sat among 15 candidates for the priesthood. They ranged in age from their mid 20s to a few who have only a few birthdays to go until they are 50.

The ones with more life experience came to seminary from several walks, as did the disciples of old. A retired UPS driver, an electrical engineer, an insurance actuary, a church musician, a gymnastics coach were, all of them, called from their worldly labors for a heavenly labor in the world.

My encounter with them was as one coming from the opposite direction to the same place. The Catholic Church — and I think very wisely — does not allow her candidates for the priesthood to study theology until they have studied philosophy first. Oversimplifying the matter, the church wants to make sure the candidates know how to think before they start thinking about God.

After 20 years of ministry and nine years of study before that, I was seeking to put a foundation of philosophy under a house that was already more than half built. A Protestant coming from theology encountered Catholics heading toward theology. That meeting at the crossroads made for a lively year.

Back in those years when — in what then seemed the normal course of events — I pursued courses of theology in five different institutions. Since then I have had occasion to hang out with pastors and theologians more than a little. There is one association in particular from the years of study and ministry that I recall with great fondness and gratitude.

The tribute that I can give to the Catholic seminarians with whom I have studied this past year is to say that I have never in my life felt more encouraged, welcomed, and appreciated than in the three classes that we had together this past academic year. For a memory of greater nurture, I have to cast back to the days of my early childhood when home and school and church were all of a piece; but that world — lovely as it was — is gone.

There are structural reasons that contribute to community as a place of encouragement in the seminary. 1. The seminary tells the students what courses they will take. 2. The students take the courses together. 3. Other events are scheduled for bonding of the students. 4. Education takes place in the context of formation of the total person. 5. The first four structures result from nearly 2,000 years of trial and error.

They were trying new things at the seminary, some of which will become permanent. Other innovations will eventually be hauled to the trash dump of history. What distinguished life at the seminary, and probably life in the Catholic Church, from my usual experiences is that they are learning from their failures and building on their successes.

By the way, we learned a fair bit of philosophy together, too. We started with the chaps who got the philosophical ball rolling 2,600 years ago, and then Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle. We fast forwarded after that to the fifth century A.D. and then to the 13th and then to the 17th through the 20th centuries in a big way.

We studied about two dozen slender texts that have transformed the way the world is, the way that people think and speak and act. What is daunting and even a little frightening is the way that literally billions of people are changed by the ideas of a few people whose names they have never heard of.

As one philosopher put it, questioning is a willingness to know; knowing is a willingness to learn; learning is a willingness to question. Together we came to question, to know and to learn, not in order to tear apart, but for the purpose of putting together. If that is not the goal of all education, then I hardly know why we bother.

Annie, Get Your Gun

by Bill Grant

Things will soon be heating up at the Mountain Fresh Pavilion in Oakland, where the Garrett Choral Society will perform Annie Get Your Gun in early June. Last week, we provided some insight into the real life story of Annie Oakley, and introduced you to Annie and her beau, Frank Butler, and to the local talent that will be portraying them in the production. This week, we want to introduce to a few more of the characters you are going to encounter in a few weeks.

Just like any great recipe, a show needs some spice to get its full flavor. In Annie, a lot of spice is found in the characters of Charlie and Dolly. Charlie is the manager of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show (although in real life, Charlie had a different name!). Charlie always has a deal and scheme to try to one-up his competition, Pawnee Bill, and keep the Wild West show open. Whether he is dealing with a cranky hotel manager, his boss, his performers or Indians, Charlie always has something up his sleeve. Charlie is portrayed by Northern High senior Michael Fratz. While at Northern, he was drum major for the marching band and also was selected to Maryland's All-State Chorus. He is president of his class and a member of Zion Lutheran Church.

Dolly is Frank Butler's assistant, who finds herself playing second fiddle to Annie. Throughout the musical, she is maneuvering to regain her status — even though she is almost scalped in the process! Sue Harkins brings her considerable talent to the role of Dolly. Sue has appeared numerous times with the Garrett Choral Society and Our Town Theatre. When not on stage, she is a seventh grade teacher at Southern Middle School and spends time with her two sons, who are also in Annie.

Annie Get Your Gun will be performed in the Mountain Fresh Pavilion in Oakland from June 1 through June 6. Tickets are $8 for adults and $4 for children, and are available at Gregg's Pharmacy or from any cast member. building was totally destroyed, and the first floor sustained major heat, smoke, and water damage. The loss was estimated to be $250,000.

None of the occupants of the building was injured; however, two Oakland firefighters were transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Larry Rodeheaver suffered heat exhaustion, and Todd Hetrick had to have his eye irrigated after getting foreign matter in it. Both were treated and released.

Responding to the scene were units from the Oakland, Deer Park, Gorman, Terra Alta, and Deep Creek VFDs, while units from Kitzmiller, Bayard, and Bittinger VFDs stood by at other stations. Firemen remained on the scene until after 6 p.m.

"We could see the smoke and the flames when we were on Rt. 135 in Mtn. Lake Park," stated a member of the Oakland VFD. "We knew that we had a major, working fire."

Mattingly reported that Manor Home Center employees and a number of firefighters removed about 40 lawn tractors from the first floor in about 15 minutes while the flames raged overhead.

The fire caused a power outage for over an hour in Loch Lynn and the southern half of Mtn. Lake Park.

Other agencies sending personnel to the scene were the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police, State Highway Administration, Allegheny Power Company, and the American Red Cross.

against Daniel Charges Burbank, 39, North East (Md.), were dismissed by the state.

"The identity of Burbank was determined during a trooper's stop of a car in which Burbank was a passenger," explained the state's attorney. "Since that time, May 2000, the court of appeals has held that the basis for that vehicle being stopped is no longer valid, absent any other violations. Therefore, the identification of Burbank as the person who sold marijuana to a police informant would not have been allowed and the state had no other way to identify him."

FOY ROAD BEAR SENT ON WAY — A male black bear, who appeared on the front page of last week's issue of The Republican, was successfully trapped by a team of Department of Natural Resources wildlife specialists, studied for a short period, and released with aversive conditioning tactics last Wednesday, May 9. The trapping was necessitated when a bruin, possibly this one, broke into the Foy Road residence through a partially opened kitchen window the previous Saturday night, apparently attracted by the odors emanating from a partially opened trash compactor within. The above photo shows the bear being weighed by Clarissa Harris, center, as the anesthetized 233-pound animal is hoisted up in a Stoke's litter by Harry Spiker, left, and Steve Bittner. The bear was ear-tagged and a lip tattoo was administered, as shown above right, to catalog its identity; if it had been a sow, a radio collar would have been placed around its neck so that its denning site and litter of cubs could be located at a later point for further study. The photo below to the right shows the somewhat groggy bear at the time of its release; standing watch are Larry Crawford, Terry DeWitt, and Harris, who has a shotgun loaded with shells filled with rubber buckshot slung over her shoulder. The bear was shot several times in the hindquarters during the aversive conditioning portion of the encounter, which, to date, has apparently convinced it to seek other, less populated and less painful, feeding areas. While this particular bear has not been seen since last week, homeowner Barbara Ann Reed noted that just this past Friday afternoon a different bear (without an ear tag) spent approximately 10 minutes investigating the baited DNR trap in her yard. "We've been living with bears here for 16 years," Reed noted matter-of-factly. "We don't get upset about it, except when one breaks into the house, which happened 14 years ago and now just recently. It's pretty inconvenient to have to keep our downstairs windows shut at night with summer approaching, which DNR is telling us is pretty much our only option at this point." Naturalists are continuing to maintain a trap in the yard of the home through the end of this week in an attempt to keep tabs on any bear that may still be in the immediate vicinity. DNR encourages those who note a bear posing a clear and immediate danger to human life or domestic animals or property to call Garrett County's Office of Emergency Management at 301-334-1930, anytime night or day, and the DNR's Black Bear Emergency Response Team will be notified immediately. As always when wildlife of any nature is present, residents are urged to keep trash containers tightly sealed and anchored to the ground. Further information and tips on avoiding potentially dangerous bear/human encounters may be obtained by calling DNR's Mt. Nebo Wildlife and Heritage Division office at 301-334-4255.

Edwards Reports

owner who wishes to sell property containing natural gas. These owners will now not be required to seek approval to sell the land containing the natural gas.

Edwards had hoped to include all mineral rights, but was successful only with natural gas.

"We'll leave this alone for a few years to show how well it can work, and then we'll try for the rest of the mineral rights," he said.

The commissioners' request to change the county treasurer job from an elected position to a hired one was also successful. The position will now be titled "supervisor of tax collection."

Money for a number of capital projects has also been secured through bonding measures or grants. Renovations to the county courthouse will be funded with an approved $300,000, and $1,600,000 will go to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for improvements.

Funds in the amount of $213,000 were allotted for the replacement of the Friendsville Elementary School roof, and $200,000 to Garrett Community College for campus accessibility and heating/ventilation/air conditioning improvements.

A Chesapeake Bay water quality loan in the amount of $150,000 was given to the town of Accident for sewer improvements. Water supply assistant loans were given to Keysers Ridge ($209,590 for a water project) and Oakland ($300,000 for water system improvements).

The Department of Natural Resources allotted funds to state park projects. A dam rehabilitation project at New Germany State Park was funded in the amount of $220,000, and the construction of a canyon trail at Swallow Falls was partially funded with $60,000.

The long-planned amphitheater project was allotted $750,000. Edwards said the location of the facility is still undetermined. Originally planned for Deep Creek Lake State Park, the amphitheater project has been delayed for several consecutive years and the proposed locations have changed. Edwards said it is likely to be placed in the planned adventure sports complex atop Marsh Mountain, although this is still indefinite.

Edwards said he was pleased about the passage of HB 404, a bill he sponsored concerning Program Open Space (POS). It increases the amount a local government can spend on development projects after it has attained the acquisition goals under POS. The county was before always restricted on the amount of POS funds to be spent on development. A certain percentage of the allotted money had to be spent on acquisition and the remaining on development. Edwards said this was almost always too restrictive because persons who asked for the funding were more often trying to improve open space areas rather than purchase them. This law will allow much more flexibility, the delegate said, especially since the county has long met and exceeded the acquisition goals set by the state.

Other bills passed included an adjustment of the axle load limit tolerance for trucks carrying forest products, an allowance for the acquisition of a wine festival license, and a repeal in the law requiring school bus drivers to operate their buses no faster than 50 miles per hour. Bus drivers may now abide by the posted speed limit, including those areas that allow speeds above 50 mph.

Legislation was passed that gives the commissioners and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office the authority to hire a dog warden for the county. This person will have the responsibility of issuing summonses to any persons violating animal regulations, and to generally regulate animal control.

The commissioners were given the authority to borrow up to $3,500,000 in order to finance the construction of the Garrett County Health Complex, which is due to be completed on Oct. 1 of this year.

The entire listing of bills for both the county and the state can be seen on the Maryland General Assembly website, located at http://mlis.state.md.us.

Just what is an Evangelical Free Church?
Evangelical: We seek to know Jesus Christ personally and to make Him known through evangelism both locally and around the world.
Free: It's a term that goes back to our European roots, when our founders sought to be free from state church control. ("Free" does not mean out-of-control worship!)
Church: We're a body of biblical, evangelical Christians who follow Jesus Christ and desire to grow in our walks with Him. Our services are a blend of contemporary and traditional worship.
The Evangelical Free Church of America is one of the fastest growing Protestant denominations with over 1200 U.S. churches. It extends to some 30 other nations, encompassing nearly 1,300 additional churches.

Sincell Named Top Graduate In WVU Theatre

Matthew Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park, was presented the Outstanding Graduating Senior award from the West Virginia University Division of Theatre and Dance during the university's 132nd commencement Sunday. The presentation was made by William Windsor, division chairperson, during a ceremony held on the main stage of the WVU Creative Arts Center.

Sincell, a 1997 honor graduate of Southern High School, completed requirements for a bachelor of science degree in fine arts/theatre. Selection for the Outstanding Senior award is based upon a student's accomplishments in theatre during four years of study, as well as his/her overall academic achievement. Sincell performed numerous roles during his four years at WVU and graduated magna cum laude with an overall grade point average of 3.71.

The undergraduate theatre program at WVU is ranked among the top 10 in the nation. Few freshmen in the program earn a stage role; however, as a freshman in 1997, Sincell was cast in a WVU production of Tom Stoppard's Arcadia. Since then he has performed roles in An Ideal Husband, The Sea Gull, Dancing at Lughnasa, and Pippin, as well as Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew, MacBeth, and Richard the III. The WVU production of MacBeth was also performed in Germany last spring. He also had a role in the West Virginia Shakespeare Festival production of Romeo and Juliet last summer, and had the lead role in a Preston County production of Stand and Deliver. Sincell also performed in the West Virginia Public Theatre's production of Peter Pan in 1999.

Among approximately 2,000 actors from various parts of the country who auditioned for the 2001 Texas Shakespeare Festival, Sincell was one of 23 selected for the festival. He was unable to accept the position, however, because of various scheduling conflicts. He is auditioning in New York City this week for roles in national tours of Big River and Funny Girl, being directed by Bob Durkin. His ultimate goal is to have a career in films.

Sincell began acting at an early age in musical productions of the Garrett Choral Society, directed by Nancy Learey. He performed numerous roles while a student at Southern High School, under the direction of Jane Avery, and as a member of the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, directed by Lynn Broderick. He attended WVU on a four-year, full-tuition acting scholarship.

Sincell is the son of Don and Suzie Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park.

SHS BAND WINS TROPHIES - The Southern Garrett Marching Band, under the direction of Richard Clever, participated in the Music Showcase Festival at Cedar Point, Sandusky, Ohio, this past weekend and earned a number of trophies for that effort. The band won first place in the parade, first place in jazz ensemble, second place in concert band, and the Outstanding Drumline award. Kristen Shaffer was named the outstanding musician. Pictured from left above are: Clever; Eric Jacoby, drum captain; Jessica Moon, color guard captain; Jason Lottman, drum set specialist; and Kristen Shaffer, oboe/tenor saxaphone. Not present for the photo were Kyle Snyder, drum major, and Rachel Sincell, keyboard co-captain. The band members also enjoyed the various attractions, rides, and entertainment available at Cedar Point during their three-day visit. The band will present its annual spring concert this evening at the school, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

YOUGH GLADES FIRST GRADERS RECEIVE SIGNED BOOKS — Yough Glades first grade teacher Sue Hillen participated in the Children's Literature Festival at Frostburg State University recently. For the festival, her class created projects for the book The Worrywarts by Henry Cole and Pamela Edwards, and under the direction of Ronni DiGiola, art teacher, pop-up books by Robert Sabuta. Because of this, Yough Glades was chosen to receive 27 signed books by the authors who participated in the festival. Pictured is Mrs. Hillen's class with the books given to the school. Mrs. Hillen, on the right, presented the books to Mrs. Adams, media teacher.

McHenry Highland Fest Favorite Bonnie Rideout Set For Return

Award-winning fiddler Bonnie Rideout, a perennial McHenry Highland Festival crowd favorite, will perform on the concert stage at the 14th annual Highland Fest, set for Saturday, June 2, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The noted Scottish/Irish musician will appear on the concert stage during the festival's daytime hours of 10 a.m.—5 p.m., and will also perform at that evening's ceilidh, set for 7 p.m. to midnight.

The family-oriented Highland Festival celebrates the heritage of Scotland, Ireland, and the whole of the British Isles through traditional music, dance, games, food, storytelling, and cultural demonstrations. Admission to the festival is $10 per person 12 years and older, and readers of The Republican can take advantage of a discount coupon that appears elsewhere in this issue. Tickets will only be available at the gate on the day of the festival.

Rideout "transforms a lonely melody into utter desolation, then effortlessly switches gears from languorous ballad to virtuosic exercise," a reviewer wrote in The Washington Post. A resident of Alexandria, Va., Rideout has received numerous WAMMIE (Washington Area Music Association) awards, including this year's honor as Instrumentalist of the Year and for the Recording of the Year for her solo album Scottish Fire, both in the Folk/Celtic category. She has also won many prizes in fiddle competitions on both sides of the Atlantic, and has been recognized as the U.S.-Scottish Fiddle Champion three times.

A sanctioned Scottish Fiddling Revival teacher and adjudicator for Scottish festivals throughout the U.S., Rideout was the first American ever invited to present 18th century and Highland fiddle styles at the prestigious Edinburgh International Festival in Scotland. With a "fiery yet evocative" playing style, Rideout has earned the nickname "the piping fiddler" for her creative renditions of Highland bagpipe music on her four-stringed instrument. She was listed as one of the top 30 women in the world representing Celtic music in Maireid Sullivan's book Celtic Women in Music. Rideout herself has authored five books for the Mel Bray Publishing Company.

With a number of album recordings both as a solo artist and a guest player on works of other performers, Rideout's work is consistently aired on National Public Radio's Thistle and Shamrock acoustic music program, and she has performed on other NPR programs including Performance Today and Morning Edition. Among her many solo recordings, the album A Scottish Christmas reached the "top 10" list of both The New York Times and Billboard magazine, and Gi'me Elbow Room, Songs from a Scottish Childhood, earned the prestigious Parents Gold Choice Award.

The ceilidh is slated for 7 p.m. to midnight Saturday evening at the fairgrounds. That event will feature Scottish and Celtic fiddle playing, harp and vocal entertainment, appetizers, and a cash bar. Ceilidh admission is $6 per person for those 7 and older.

The weekend will draw to a close with the annual Kirkin' O'the Tartans ceremony at St. John's Episcopal Church in Deer Park on Sunday, June 3. The kirkin'

Stories Of Pa. Women Pioneers To Be Presented

Robert Anderson, commonwealth speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, will present a program on Monday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m., at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa., about the women traveling the Pennsylvania frontier trail.

In this slide presentation, Anderson describes the conditions — sometimes pleasant and sometimes threatening — endured by women who traveled through Pennsylvania during the last decades of the 18th century and the first decades of the 19th century.

According to Anderson, until recently, scholars have overlooked the experiences of women in the narratives of Pennsylvania frontier history and the settlement of the West.

Anderson is adjunct professor of history at Penn State University, Altoona College. He received a doctor of philosophy degree in history from West Virginia University.

The program is sponsored by the Springs Historical Society and is free of charge and open to the public. The presentation is a program of the Pa. Humanities Council, supported in part by a grant from the Pa. Historical and Museum Commission.

The Folk Meeting House is located along Springs Road in Springs, Pa. Persons wanting more information may call 814-445-6945 or 814-662-4366.

STUDENTS' ART DISPLAYED IN CALENDAR - The Maryland Association of Realtors recently selected the artwork of two area children to be featured in the 2002 Fair Housing Calender, which is distributed to individuals and businesses throughout the state. Katie Kelly and Susan Thatcher of Grantsville Elementary School were among the nominees sponsored by local realtor boards and associations. They were also among the winners in the Fair Housing Poster Contest sponsored in the state's schools by the association. The purpose of the art contest is to celebrate strides that have been made in the housing industry to provide equal housing for all citizens and to help raise public awareness of the law's success in eliminating housing discrimination. This year's theme was "Homes For Everyone," and 12 posters will be featured in the calendar. Adam Cockey, president of the association, said, "We believe that it is vital that children understand the need for fair housing for all, and the poster contest allows them to express their own unique ideas." Pictured above, left to right, are Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend; Adam Cocky, MAR president; and Jose "Pepe" Gandara, chair of the Equal Opportunity and Affordable Housing Committee, with the winners, Kelly, left, and Thatcher. Their artwork is pictured below, with Kelly's directly below and Thatcher's on the bottom. To obtain a copy of the calendar, persons may call (800) 638-6425 or look on the Internet at info@mdrealtor.org.

Garrett Acting Students Present Culminating Skits

A program of skits performed by students in Garrett Community College's Fundamentals of Acting II class was presented for students and faculty at the college recently.

The skits were the culminating activity of the two semester course, during which students progress from basic concepts of acting such as relaxation, concentration, movement, and mime in the first semester to more advanced concepts in the second semester, including voice, diction, emotional recall, and empathetic and comic techniques, with an emphasis on character analysis. Students in the first semester course do some performance scenes during class periods but not for a large audience, instructor Ben Sincell said.

Several of the skits were written for two actors, including "I'm Herbert," written by Robert Anderson and performed by students Jonathan Wildesen and Allison Sines, and "Beyond Therapy," written by Christopher Durang and published by Samuel French Inc., which was performed by students Andy Seib and Tammy Martin. Both of those skits dealt with male/female relationships at different parts of the lifespan. (See photos.)

Fundamentals of Acting is one of nine theater courses in the Fine and Performing Arts program offered by the college. Other three credit courses available are Introduction to Stage Design, Introduction to Directing (one credit), and Fundamentals of Technical Theater, a two-semester sequence that focuses on stagecraft, scenery, and stage construction the first semester, and emphasizes lighting, costume and sound the second semester. A one credit theater practicum designed to give students practical experience in various aspects of theater, including acting, directing, design, technical theater, publicity, and boxoffice, is also available, along with a one credit course in theater performance. These courses are structured so that students can take one each semester to broaden their experience.

Through an arrangement with Our Town Theatre in Oakland, GCC students receive experience with live theater. They may also develop expertise in a particular area of theater through the Special Topics in Theater courses now available. Persons interested in further information about GCC's theater program may call Sincell at 301-387-3016.

GCC THEATER STUDENTS PRESENT SKITS — The Fundamentals of Acting II class at Garrett Community College, taught by theater program professor Ben Sincell, culminated recently on stage as students presented a program of skits. A scene from "I'm Herbert," pictured above, shows Jonathan Wildesen and Allison Sines as they portrayed Herbert and Muriel, an elderly couple who sit on a summer porch and chide each other for their failing memories and confuse each other with former spouses and lovers. "Beyond Therapy," below, was performed by Andy Seib and Tammy Martin, who played a young couple who meet through a personal ad while both are in therapy. During the brief encounter, their relationship moves from instant attraction to revulsion and finally angry rejection. Persons interested in information on GCC's theater program offerings may call Sincell at 301-387-3016.

Quartet, as well as with Ms. Jacobson. He has appeared as recitalist and concerto soloist in Britain and the United States. Jacobson, after doing post-graduate work at the Peabody Conservatory with Leon Fleisher, has appeared as soloist, chamber musician, and orchestral soloist throughout the United States, Europe, and Canada. The concert is sponsored by First United Bank & Trust, and will include selections by Bach, Scriabin, Mozart, and Grieg.

Skip Gorman, dressed in traditional cowboy garb, will bring "Songs from the Old West" to the western Maryland hills on June 30. His songs, stories, and poems feature a hodge-podge of period instruments. A former teacher with a degree in Latin American studies from Brown University, Gorman combines music with an educational mission. He has performed on National Public Radio's "A Prairie Home Companion," and has made appearances throughout the United States and Europe. Total Biz Fulfillment, formerly known as Hobby House Press, will sponsor Gorman's performance.

July 7 will bring the Mendelssohn Piano Trio to Penn Alps. Now serving as the Ensemble-in-Residence of the Washington, D.C., Embassy Series, the trio is considered "one of the most exciting young ensembles" on the national and international music scene. Formed in 1997 by three graduates of the Peabody Conservatory of Music — pianist Ya-Ting Chang, violinist Peter Sirotin, and cellist Fiona Thompson — the trio's name expresses its members' admiration for the versatility of 19th century composer Felix Mendelssohn. Selections will include works by Saint Saens, Schubert, and Taneyev. Garrett Community College is the concert sponsor.

The Tempesta Di Mare chamber music ensemble will perform July 14. Based at the University of Pennsylvania, the ensemble specializes in works from the 17th and 18th centuries performed on period instruments. Their appearance will feature Gwyn Roberts, flute and recorder; Richard Stone, lute; and Ann Marie Morgan, viola da gamba, performing Handel's London, a work celebrating the music popular during this composer's lifetime. During the afternoon of the 14th, Tempesta Di Mare will sponsor a workshop for baroque ensembles. Coldwell-Banker Deep Creek Realty is the concert sponsor.

Russian natives Arkady and Tamara Orlovsky will come to Penn Alps on July 24 from Indiana, where Arkady is principal cellist of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra and conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. The Orlovskys will perform works by Borodin, Chopin, and Rachmaninoff. Tamara frequently appears as a soloist. The Orlovskys also perform with the New Russian Trio, which includes Albert Igolnikov of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and with the Grammy-winning ensemble Pro Musica of Chicago. A co-presentation with the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, the concert is sponsored by Frank Gerwig & Associates. Musical selections will include works by Borodin, Chopin, and Rachmaninoff.

Pianists Dana Muller and Gary Steigerwalt return to Penn Alps on July 28. Area music lovers may recall this duo's 1998 appearance at the Great Hall. They have presented programs encompassing the entire repertoire for four-hand piano to audiences taroughout the South, the Northeast, South America, and Scotland. To date they have released three recordings of works for four-hand piano featuring the works of Schubert, early 20th century composers, and 19th century romantic composers. Their appearance is sponsored by M & T Bank, and features works by Schubert, Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Stravinsky, and Ravel.

Soprano Aimé Sposato will appear on August 4. She has sung in operas, symphonic concerts, recitals and, most frequently, chamber music ensembles. For diversion, she has sung the national anthem at Pittsburgh Pirates games and NASCAR races. Her specialties are oratorios and opera. She has appeared as a featured soloist at the Kennedy Center, throughout the East with numerous orchestras, and abroad in Europe and Canada. A member of the voice faculty at the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music, she is cantor coordinator and soloist at the Immaculate Conception Church in Washington, Pa. She will present an evening of art songs and arias by Bach, Handel, Strauss, Puccini, and Tosti. Yoder-Hershberger Insurance is the concert sponsor.

Coming from nearby West Virginia, the Monongahela Trio will appear on August 11. Their program will include works by Gaubert, Genin, Martinu, Popper, Goosens, and del Agiula. Cellist William Skidmore, flutist Dorothy Skidmore, and pianist James Miltenberger have performed together throughout the region for several years. William Skidmore and James Miltenberger are on the music faculty at WVU, while Dorothy Skidmore teaches at Fairmont State College. The sponsor is Keystone Lime Company.

On August 18, the Heart 'n Soul Barbershop Quartet of nearby Somerset, Pa., will come to Penn Alps with a repertoire of barbershop classics, including ballads, gospel tunes, and popular favorites. Lead singer Don "Brownie" Brown and tenor Elbert "Jimmy" Walker, baritone Kelly Fritz and bass Ken Halverson have been singing in the barbershop tradition since early 2000. As members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, they sing with the Roof Garden Barbershop Chorus of Somerset County. Their appearance is sponsored by Beachy Pharmacy.

Returning to the Great Hall on August 25 after an appearance in 1998, pianist Nancy Roldan and violinist Jose Cueto will perform a program reflecting their Latin American roots. Roldan, a member of the Peabody Conservatory faculty, maintains an active solo and ensemble performance schedule in the United States, Latin America, and Europe. Cueto, besides

POLLOCK

Rated R - Running Time: 2:02 - Released 12/15/00

America's love affair with its own history continues. Fact-based historical pictures, especially involving the 20th century, have abounded of late, whether they be about famous doomed ocean liners or infamous attacks on unsuspecting naval bases, or men who almost didn't make it back from the moon. I suppose the turn of the millennium naturally prompts this sort of thing. But another branch of this category is the biopic, and this is the case with actor Ed Harris's directorial debut, Pollock. Recounting the tortured life of famous mid-20th-c. artist Jackson Pollock, whose style knocked the art world on its ear for a short period, the film pays tribute to the genius of a man with the courage and the talent to pursue his own vision rather than follow the trends of the time. But it also shows the extent to which alcoholism and depression ate away at the artist's psychological well-being and brought his life to an early and tragic end. Written by Barbara Turner and Susan Emshwiller, based on the book Jackson Pollock: An American Saga by Steven Naifeh and Gregory White Smith, the film seethes with intensity, riding the rocky waves of Pollock's life, and incorporating some surprisingly energetic, Copeland-esque music by Jeff Beal which beautifully complements the fevered style with which the artist worked.

The film basically recounts the 15-year period between the early '40s and the mid '50s when Pollock (played by director Harris) rose from obscurity to equal if not surpass his main rival, Pablo Picasso, as one of the primary artistic forces in the world. It begins when he meets his wife, Lee Krasner (Marcia Gay Harden, who won an Oscar for her performance here), another artist whose influence helped get Pollock noticed by the right people. After having seen his work, she establishes contact with the highly influential Peggy Guggenheim (Amy Madigan), who in turn introduces him to the world. His sudden rise to fame, culminating with an article in Life magazine, allows him and Lee to move from New York City to a more pastoral and inspirational setting upstate, but his ever-present struggles with alcoholism and infidelity put a constant strain on their marriage and their relationships with art-world friends like Ms. Guggenheim and New York critic Clement Greenberg (Jeffrey Tambor).

Harris, who not only stars in and directs but co-produces the film, has certainly thrown himself into this role; it is clear the subject matter means something to him. But this can also be a drawback — at times, the film seems overindulgent; it bogs down somewhat in the long center section, perhaps a result of bad editing choices. On the other hand, Harris has chosen actors who can effectively overcome shortcomings he may have in the post-production phase. Harden's performance as Lee is intense and unrelenting; it's not a character that one particularly likes so much as pities. Krasner, an artist herself, not only had to live in the shadow of her famous husband (whose success could arguably be attributed, at least in part, to her influence), but also was forced to endure his often humiliating behavior.

In the final analysis, I suppose Pollock is not unlike a Pollock painting: at times tedious and unnecessarily intricate, yet full of fascinating complexity, dark, depressing, yet oddly energetic. Tortured, yet seeking some kind of emotional outlet to help make sense of it all. Harris treats his pet project with loving care, showing the depth of his passion for the subject, but he also pulls no punches in essaying one of the many complex artistic personalities of the last century. ★★★★

A KNIGHT'S TALE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:12 - Released 5/11/01

For a lighthearted romp in the medieval age of chivalric combat, A Knight's Tale could do worse. From the desk and megaphone of Brian Helgeland (Payback) comes this not-quite-silly-enough-for-Monty-Python version of a classic love story from the time when noble men were frequently encased in steel and women were their willing property. It contains tons of intentional anachronisms like modern hair and dancing styles, and the use of several 1970s pop songs as background music, so it obviously does not expect to be taken terribly seriously, but it also boasts the sets, costumes, and production values of a film striving for authenticity. Its sickeningly sweet love story is perhaps its most annoying aspect; however, a story like this, set in this time, seems almost to command this type of romantic overindulgence. Lastly, A Knight's Tale allows Australian hunk Heath Ledger (The Patriot) to build his reputation as this year's model of Leonardo DiCaprio, ensnaring the hearts of young females everywhere with the ultimate girl fantasy. After all, folks, he is playing a knight in shining armor.

Ledger is William Thatcher, peasant squire to an aging knight. When the old man takes one too many hits during a jousting match, he expires during a rest period, and Will, well trained in the sport, decides to take the final joust in his place. His victory in the match wins 15 gold florins for himself and his assistants, Roland (Mark Addy) and Wat (Alan Tudyk), and it doesn't take a catapult scientist to see that this scam can be their meal ticket for the foreseeable future. The only trouble is, a knight must be of noble birth, and Will was born a peasant. Enter Geoffrey Chaucer (Paul Bettany), a struggling writer with the wit of a scholar and a weakness for gambling, who meets the men completely naked on a country road (he lost his clothes in a bet). Chaucer agrees, in return for food and clothing, not only to supply Will with the patents he needs to prove his nobility, but to serve as his herald, announcing with flowery speeches and crowd-pleasing enthusiasm his lord, who has now become "Sir Ulrich of Lichtenstein."

Ulrich's meteoric and highly unlikely rise to the top of the sport brings him into close associations with several important people, like the beautiful lady Jocelyn (Shannyn Sossamon), with whom he falls in love, the sinister Count Adhemar (Rufus Sewell), who seeks her hand in marriage, and even Edward, Prince of Wales (Christopher Cazenove), the heir to the British throne. His desire to be a true knight, to "change his stars," as he refers to it, often pushes him beyond the boundaries of common sense, and his desire to best Adhemar, the only knight who has beaten him so far, becomes an obsession. But he soon finds that his love and his thirst for revenge are pulling him in opposite directions, and Adhemar's devious ways threaten to unmask his dreadful secret.

Seems like a perfectly nice medieval story, yes? That's why the sudden appearance of soundtrack choices like "We Will Rock You" and "Low Rider" come as such a shock (especially when the characters start singing along!). One must get used to the idea that writer/director Helgeland is intentionally putting modern-day elements into his production, that it is not a mistake that that character is talking or dancing or wearing her hair that way. But it is jarring, given the film's otherwise authentic qualities. Meanwhile, many of the "serious" characters are tritely stereotypical, while the "funny" ones are just unashamedly modern. But if you can get past the presence of the seemingly out-of-place elements, this film may win you over on sheer exuberance. ★★★★

Why Use Standardized Herbal Products?

In some ways herbs are like wine. Wines vary in quality depending on many factors: grape type, extraction and processing methods, where grapes are grown, and growing season characteristics. The same is true with herbs which contain numerous complex chemical agents and which vary in quantity from plant to plant. In some respects, herbal products are more complicated than wine. Wine comes from one part of the plant - the fruit. Herbal medicines can come from flowers, leaves, stems, roots, and other parts. Medicinal agents may be concentrated in one part of the plant and not in others.

Standardization helps assure consumers that a consistent dose of active ingredient is in each dose of herbal medicines. Standardized herbal medicines typically cost more than non-standardized products. And although some products are labeled as "standardized," tests by independent laboratories may show that little or no medicinal agent actually is present in the product. Therefore, it pays to use quality brands of herbal medicines from reputable companies.

Oakland Community Tree Planted In Memory Of Dale Leatherwood

by Mary Sincell McEwen

A Douglas fir tree, measuring nearly 24 feet and weighing 11,000 pounds, was planted last week in front of the Oakland B&O train station in a special ceremony. The fir was donated by Pinetum Enterprises and will be used as the town's Christmas tree each year. More importantly, it has been planted in memory of a man from Ellicott City.

Dale Leatherwood was a graduate of Frostburg State University, where in 1991 he earned a bachelor of science degree in wildlife management. While attending school, he met Venessa Stacy, a Garrett County native and 1989 graduate of Southern High School. She was enrolled at FSU as well, majoring in social science education. The two struck up a courtship and eventually planned to marry. The wedding was to be held in Our Town Theatre in Oakland, as Venessa was a member of the founding board of directors of the theatre. On June 25, 2000, just months before the ceremony, Dale died very suddenly at the age of 30, the victim of an undiagnosed heart ailment.

Pinetum Enterprises of Swanton, which donated the tree, is owned and operated by Marshall and Cindy Stacy, the uncle and aunt of Venessa. Memorial donations made in Dale's name to Our Town Theatre were used to pay for a portion of the cost to move the tree to the train station site. The town of Oakland pitched in some funding as well. Scheffels' Allegheny Welding and Machine donated the use of the crane to place the tree, and also provided manpower.

"The tree is an appropriate memorial to Dale," said Venessa. "He planted many trees as part of his habitat restoration projects, and was a member of the National Arbor Day Foundation for a number of years. Memorial donations to the foundation's Trees In Memory program in Dale's name resulted in over 300 trees being planted in a national forest near Yellowstone National Park."

Venessa said Dale dedicated his life to wildlife management. He worked with Townsend's ground squirrels in Idaho, raised golden eagles to be reintroduced in Kansas, studied the woodcock in Louisiana, and worked with herpetofauna (reptiles and amphibians) in Missouri. At the time of his death, Dale was a wildlife biologist for the federal government at Yakima Training Center (YTC), a military training area located in the state of Washington.

At YTC, Leatherwood worked in wildlife management with sage grouse, a threatened species in that state, and helped manage mule deer and elk hunting seasons. As part of his habitat restoration work, he was involved in research and implementation of new sagebrush habitat restoration methods.

Outside of his career, Dale was an active member of the Westpark United Methodist Church. He drove the church van on Sunday mornings to pick up children and elderly members who could not drive. His hobbies included hiking, birding, hunting, and photography.

"Although from Ellicott City, Dale spent a lot of time in Garrett County visiting friends, hunting, hiking, and photographing nature," said Venessa. "Swallow Falls State Park was one of his favorite places in Garrett County to take pictures."

Surviving besides his fiancé are his parents, Gurney Leon and the Rev. Neva H. Leatherwood, Ellicott City, two brothers, his grandmother, and several nieces, nephews, cousins, aunts, and uncles.

"The placement of the tree in front of the train station is doubly meaningful to us, as Dale's father is a retired B&O railroad man," Venessa said. She said she and the Leatherwoods are grateful to the town of Oakland and the Scheffels for their work on the tree, and especially to Marshall Stacy, Jane Avery, Judy Finkel, Lynn McDaniel, and the rest of the Our Town Theatre group who initiated the project and saw it through.

Avery said she is pleased with how the project has come to fruition. "The tree is an important gesture toward Venessa and Dale's family, as well as a gift to the town," she said.

Venessa said Dale's parents have visited the tree and that his mother referred to it as "stunning."

It is hoped, Avery said, that the project will in some way help Venessa and all others who loved Dale continue to heal.

ONE TREE, TWO GIFTS — A tall Douglas fir tree was planted last week in front of the historic train station in Oakland as a memorial gift to one family and as a community gift to the town. Marshall and Cindy Stacy of Pinetum Enterprises, Swanton, donated the huge pine, and Our Town Theatre helped fund the project, along with the town. It was donated in memory of Dale Leatherwood, a young man who died last year just months before becoming part of the Stacy family. He was engaged to Venessa Stacy, and the two were to be married at the theatre. See story. Pictured above from left are Matt Scheffel of Allegheny Welding and Machine (which donated the crane and manpower to move the tree), Marshall Stacy, and Jay Moyer, supervisor of waste water treatment for Oakland. The fir will be used each year as the town's Christmas tree.

Rams Defeat Beall And Westmar To Advance To Regional Final

For the fifth time in the past six years, the Southern High School varsity baseball team will play in the West Region IA championship game, as the Rams advanced to that level this week by defeating visiting Beall on Monday, 10-0, and topping host Westmar yesterday, 9-4, in a region semifinal contest. Coach Jim Bosley and his 21-1 squad will host Williamsport this Friday to determine which team represents the region in the state tournament.

Justin DiSimone, the top pitcher in the Rams' rotation, tossed a three-hitter against Beall on Monday, as the Rams scored enough runs in the first four innings to have the game called after 4½ because of the 10-run rule. DiSimone gave up a double by Colt Ruby in the top of the first inning, and allowed two singles in the second inning before settling down and retiring the next 10 batters, eight of whom he struck out. He finished with nine strike-outs and issued no walks.

Southern put three runs on the board in the first inning, as Chad Panther was hit by a pitch and later scored on a single by Ricky Reams. Brad Palmer then drew a walk, and Reams ultimately came home when two balks were called against Ruby. A sacrifice fly by Jared Fike allowed Palmer to plate the third run.

Singles by Steve Eiswert and Tobi Stoner led off the Rams' four-run second, as Ryan Ewing followed with an RBI single to bring Eiswert home, and an error on the play allowed Stoner to score as well. Reams and Palmer then each hit RBI singles to make it 7-0.

The Eiswert-Stoner duo struck again with back-to-back singles in the third inning, Ewing brought Eiswert home with a sacrifice fly and DiSimone then reached on an error to plate Stoner.

The Rams recorded their 10th and deciding run in the bottom of the fourth when Fike doubled and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Stoner.

Southern finished with nine hits, including two singles apiece by Reams, Eiswert, and Stoner.

The Rams had to work harder yesterday against the Westmar Wildcats, as the home team took a 4-3 lead with a four-run third inning. But Southern rallied for four runs in the fifth, two in the sixth, and one in the seventh to secure a spot in the region title game.

The Rams took a 3-0 lead in the second inning, as Fike led off with a single, Joel Helbig reached on an error, and Eiswert made it to first on a fielder's choice to load the bases. After one out, one run scored on an error, and Chad Panther followed with a two-run single.

The Wildcats took the lead in the third when Andrew Nicol and Richie Dellinger hit back-to-back singles, Bobby Alkire hit a sacrifice fly to bump them to second and third, Jared Rishel brought Nicol home with a squeeze bunt, and Sid Bittinger followed with an RBI double to make it 3-2. Bud Fazenbaker was intentionally walked to load the bases, and Josh Glass followed with a two-run single to put Westmar up 4-3.

The home team enjoyed that lead until the top of the fifth when the Rams responded with four runs to take the advantage for good. Fike led off the inning by reaching on an error, Helbig followed with a walk, and both scored on a single by Eiswert. After one out, Kevin Goralski stroked a run-producing double. The fourth run was recorded on an error.

Fike finished with a pair of singles to pace the Rams' six-hit effort. Westmar finished with nine hits, including two singles by Nicol. Bryson Meyers got the win on the mound over Rich Dellinger.

The Rams had defeated the Wildcats in both regular-season games via the 10-run rule, 10-0 and 11-0.

"Westmar is a decent team, and I was concerned about our kids' thinking that they would roll over them since we had shut them out twice," stated Coach Bosley. "They are not a great hitting team, but they have very solid pitching."

The Rams' next opponent, Williamsport, reached the regional final by defeating Clear Spring yesterday, 9-4. Williamsport has a modest 11-11 record for the season, but Bosley said that the .500 record is deceiving, considering the level of baseball that is played in that area. "Williamsport plays in the toughest league in the state," he said. "They are the best hitting team we will have faced so far this season. Their pitching is similar to what we have faced much of the year."

The top pitcher for Williamsport is Gary Naile, who is also one of the team's leading hitters, along with catcher Matt Allen.

Starting on the mound for the Rams will be DiSimone.

Williamsport is no stranger to the Rams in the playoffs, as the two teams have met each other four times since 1996. Southern was edged by Williamsport in the region championship game, 19-17, two years ago, and then avenged that defeat last year with a 13-3 win in a semifinal contest.

The Rams have won the region championship three times in the past five years, in 1996, '98, and 2000.

The only loss for the Rams so far this year was to Fort Hill (15-5) last week in their final regular-season game, a result that had both good and bad effects, according to Bosley. "It cost us a perfect regular season and ultimately may cost us the Area Championship, but it also helped our kids to refocus, and realize that on any given day in baseball, just about any team can beat another one," he said, noting that the Rams defeated the Sentinels by 10 runs in their first encounter this season. "This awareness should certainly help us if we continue to progress in the playoffs."

Friday's game is slated to get under way at 4:30, but could be moved to 4 p.m. The winner will advance to the state semifinals and will play at McCurdy Field in Frederick next Tuesday at 4 p.m. The state championship game will be played at Joe Cannon Stadium near Baltimore on Saturday, May 26.

If the weather forces a postponement of Friday's game, it will be played Saturday at a time yet to be announced.

SHS Handcuffs Hancock 11-0; Blazers Battle Set For Today

Southern High School's varsity softball juggernaut steamed through the opening round of the Maryland Class 1A West Region playoffs Monday with standout Jennifer Bosley manning the helm during an 11-0 thumping of visiting Hancock. The Rams' junior righty tossed a one-hit shutout, and singled twice and doubled once during her own plate appearances.

Yesterday top-seeded SHS was slated to host second seed Clear Spring, victors in Monday's 12-1 opening round contest at Northern, but the rain prevailed and the game was postponed until 4:30 p.m. this afternoon in Oakland.

The Rams jumped out of the box quickly during Monday's Oakland postseason debut. Gina Reeves and Erica Green each punched out RBI singles, and SHS got a third run in the same stanza on a Hancock error. More Panther errors helped account for three Southern runs in the second inning, and Bosley contributed an RBI single to that inning's output to put the Rams up 7-0.

SHS was held scoreless in the third, but roared back in the fourth to push four more runs across the plate. Reeves tallied an RBI single and two more runs scored on errors, and Megan Burner contributed an RBI on a fielder's choice. When the dust settled, Southern was firmly planted in the driver's seat by the final 10-run margin.

In addition to the aforementioned hitting highlights, the Rams got a pair of singles from Autumn Uphold. Bosley's excellent pitching performance featured nine strikeouts and not a single walk. Only two Panthers got out of the batter's box unscathed, one who singled in the fourth and another who reached base on an SHS error.

While a solid all-around team, Southern's best chances for the rest of the state title chase rest with a core contingent of players that other teams will be gunning for. Chief among these is Bosley, who to date has recorded a 15-2 record on the mound, struck out 240 batters in 105 innings of work, and scattered just 26 hits along the way. (That's an average of just over one hit per full seven-inning outing, although more often she tosses just five innings before the mercy rule takes effect.) Her earned run average is a mind-boggling 0.20, and her control is further underscored by the miniscule 15 walks she's issued so far.

Fellow pitcher Liller has a 2-0 record with a 1.22 ERA, and Uphold has a 1-0 mark with a 2.33 ERA.

The Rams bring a balanced attack to the plate, with Uphold's .474 batting average leading the way. Liller and Bosley rank next at .439 and .435, respectively, and the cousins also share the team RBI lead with 22 each, plus Bosley has blasted a Ram-high four home runs. Stacy Scripp has a .368 average and 18 RBI, Reeves has recorded a .345 mark with 14 RBI, and Green has proved a solid run producer with 16 RBI.

Liller leads in runs scored with 35, Uphold has scored 34 times, and Bosley has crossed the plate 30 times.

Regardless of the outcome of today's battle with Clear Spring, the contest will give local fans their last opportunity to see Bosley and her teammates on their home field. Should the Rams win, they will be on the road for the rest of the state title hunt.

A BREAKFAST WITH CHAMPIONS, literally, was enjoyed by 15-year-old Matthew Ford on Saturday in Pittsburgh, as he was the local winner of a special drawing sponsored by Foodland. Each Foodland store in the Pittsburgh district had one winner, and Matthew won for Browning's Foodland, Oakland. The Southern High School freshman met and dined with collegiate and professional athletes who are either current or former members of Pittsburgh athletic teams. He is pictured below with All-Pro defensive back Rod Woodson, who played for a number of years for the Pittsburgh Steelers and now plays for the Baltimore Ravens. Among others present were Coach Walt Harris of the Pittsburgh (University) Panthers and Coach Bill Cower of the Steelers. Players for the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team were also present, as were some Pittsburgh television personalities. The only Pittsburgh team not represented was the Penguins hockey team, which is currently in the NHL playoffs. Matthew, son of Chick and Geri Ford, was accompanied by his father. The event was held at the Marriott Hotel in Pittsburgh.

Early Husky Errors Pave Way For 10-0 Loss To Clear Spring

The baseball season for Northern High School ended Monday in Clear Spring as the Huskies fell to the hosts by a 10-0 margin in the opening round of the Maryland State 1A West Region playoffs. NHS practically handed the game to the Blazers outright by committing eight errors, half of which came in a 7-run Clear Spring first inning.

"You give extra out, you get burned, and we did," Northern coach Phil Carr remarked. "They jumped on us with seven runs in the first on two hits, four errors, two walks, and two hit batters." The Blazer onslaught came after the Huskies knocked out their only two hits of the day—singles (one an infield single) by Greg Whittemore and Jeremy Frazee—in the top of the leadoff inning.

After falling behind 7-0 in the opening inning, the Huskies were forced to play catch-up without success and were held both scoreless and hitless the rest of the way by Clear Spring's Adam Mills and Matt Cline. The Blazer offense scored twice in the second inning and once in the third. NHS starter Whittemore worked the first four innings before departing in favor of reliever Dan Vagnetti.

"It was a disappointing loss because we really didn't have the opportunity to show what we're capable of," Carr commented. "We struggled on defense, just like we had all season. While our mental errors decreased over the year, we never could shake the physical fielding errors, and that got us again today, as it has all season."

Several Huskies put up some excellent numbers over the course of the season. Speicher led the squad with a .361 batting average, a .500 on-base percentage, and his 16 RBI shared the second spot with Frazee, who tallied six sacrifices. Trey Brenneman whacked three home runs, two of which were grand slams, and accounted for a team-high 19 RBI. Whittemore stroked 22 basehits, and he and Wolf and Speicher each had three stolen bases. Wolf led the team in walks by drawing a dozen.

Whittemore got the lions' share of pitching assignments, especially when NHS went up against a tough opponent. He tallied a 2-5 record with 19 strikeouts in 39 and a third innings pitched, and notched one save. Vagnetti went 3-2 with 20 strikeouts over 31 and two-thirds innings, and also had one save. Frazee's record was 2-1, and he worked 18 and two-thirds innings.

"Our pitching has been pretty decent all year," the Huskies' skipper said. "If we had fielded better behind our pitchers we'd have won a few more games. Early in the year we lost to Bishop Walsh, Beall, and Hancock, then came back to beat all three at the end of the season. That shows we were getting on the right track.

"While it's been a tough year in some respects, we've learned a lot and will bring a lot of experience back next season. "We lose only 10 of our 13 players—Wolf, Frazee, and Speicher—and we'll miss their leadership, but it's time for Lenhart and Whittemore to step into their shoes as team leaders, and I'm confident they can do it. We'll also got some fine players, pitcher Jason Rice among them, ready to come up from the junior varsity squad," Carr concluded.

Northern Washed Out Of Playoffs By Clear Spring

The season for the Northern High School varsity softball team came to a close Monday in a Maryland Class 1A West Region playoff opener at Clear Spring, as the Huskies went down in a 12-1 defeat at the hands of a powerful Blazer squad. After wrapping up with an overall 4-15 record, the young NHS team can take solace in the steady improvement it evidenced in recent weeks, and the knowledge that several accomplished batting performers will be stepping up to the plate again next year.

Northern got off to a good start in Monday's outing, taking a 1-0 lead after leadoff batter Brooke Butler ripped a double, stole third base, and scored on Jolene Brenneman's RBI single. It was downhill from there, however, as the Huskies failed to cross the plate again while the Blazers scored once in the second, three times in the third, and eight times in the fourth of the 10-run rule shortened contest.

Clear Spring pitcher Sarah Yeakle picked up the complete-game victory, scattering just four hits and striking out eight Huskies along the way without issuing a single walk. She also knocked a pair of singles on offense to help pace the victors' nine-hit output. Brenneman started on the mound for Northern, and was lifted after just under four innings of work when Brandi Perez was summoned for relief duty.

"We had a tough day against a good team," NHS coach Tom Riley commented afterward. "Still, I'm proud of the determination our players showed even when they were down, today and throughout the season. We'll be looking for marked improvement next year as every player will be returning for another season."

The Huskies had several strong performers at the plate this season. Junior Brenneman compiled an excellent .674 batting average as she held down the clean-up slot in the batting order, and also showed outstanding speed by turning in 14 stolen bases and scoring 14 runs, both good for second place on the roster. Her hitting prowess drew the respect of opposing pitchers, as she drew a number of intentional walks and struck out only twice. Admittedly, Brenneman struggled for much of the year on the mound herself, but, as Riley pointed out, this season marked the first year she had been asked to pitch, and she never shirked the responsibility.

Leadoff batter Butler, another junior, had the squad's second-highest batting average at .446, and led the team in stolen bases with 16 and runs scored with 19. Classmate Bridget Frazee, the third cog in the junior captain triumvirate, hit .417 for third place, the same spot she held in the batting order. Frazee also led the team in RBIs with 14 and triples with seven, and stole a dozen bases and scored 13 runs as well. She and Butler combined on defense to commit just four errors playing shortstop and second base, respectively.

Freshman Lyndsi Butler's .353 average was fourth-highest on the roster, followed by a .327 tally by sophomore Amanda Frantz, who also accumulated 10 RBI and 12 doubles. Butler and Brenneman had 9 RBI apiece, and each whacked three doubles.

"We'll be back," Riley predicted. "A number of our girls will be playing in the county's summer league, where they will continue to hone their skills. We're expecting big things next season."

Doerr Off To Winning Hot Stove Start

Doerr Construction got off on the right foot in its Hot Stove Baseball League opener Tuesday with a 10-7 win over the Frankfort VFW squad at Short Gap, W.Va. Pitcher Jason Rice sparked the win with a 13-strikeout performance.

The victors wasted no time in giving Rice breathing room to work with, as Doerr jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning and added a fifth run in the third. Frankfort rebounded to score twice in the bottom of the third, then the teams traded single scores in the fourth stanza. Doerr scored twice in the top of the fifth to go up by five, but the hosts put four runs on the board in the bottom of the inning to pull to within an 8-7 tally. Doerr widened its lead to the final three-run margin of victory with a pair of scores in the sixth.

Doerr was paced at the plate by Dan Ellis, who drove in three runs on a pair of singles, Derek Workman, who singled three times, and Darrick Lowdermilk, who doubled, singled, and drove in one run. Each team accumulated eight hits, and Doerr's defense committed just one error on the day.

Crellin UM swept a twinbill from Cornerstone Assembly of God, 33-3 and 19-5, and whipped Oak Park Church of the Brethren twice, 20-4 and 31-17.

Mike Fazenbaker was the winning pitcher in all four games. Billy Martin smacked four home runs against Cornerstone, Jeff Martin, Fazenbaker, and Ronnie Murphy each hit two, and Mike Ashby rapped one. Against Oak Park, Martin hit three homers, Bill Ashby and Murphy each had two, and Chris Uphole, Billy Martin, and Fazenbaker each recorded one.

In other action, Gortner Union and Cherry Glade Mennonite split a doubleheader, and Gortner also swept Maple Glen Mennonite. Crellin United Brethren topped Oakland Church of the Nazarene twice.

Gortner won the first game against Cherry Glade, 15-14, with John Sharpless on the mound for Gortner, and Beryl Moser pitched Cherry Glade to an 18-17 win in the second game. Rodney Bird hit three homers for Gortner, while Josh Petersheim had two and Jerry Yoder, one. For Cherry Glade, Terry Beal, Jensen Long, and Sheldon Maust each hit one home run.

Gortner's 12-9, 28-8 sweep of Maple Glen featured winning pitchers Steve Sauder and John Sharpless. Jason Barnard, Petersheim, and Bird each hit homers for Gortner, while Larry Byler, Dwayne Overhold, and Brad Yoder each recorded one for Maple Glen.

Crellin UB defeated Oakland Nazarene by scores of 21-7 and 20-19, with Jeremy Crosco the winning pitcher in both games.

Crellin UM leads the league standings with a 4-0 mark, followed by Crellin UB and Mt. View at 2-0, Gortner at 5-1, Maple Glen at 2-2, Cherry Glade, Crellin AG, and Glade each at 1-1, Cornerstone and Pleasant View with 0-2 records, and Oak Park and Nazarene each at 0-4.

Lakers' Campaign Ends With Playoff Losses To AC, PSC

The 2001 baseball season came to an end for the Garrett Community College Lakers this week, as Coach Ed Wildesen and his squad were eliminated from the Region XX tournament, which was hosted by GCC. The Lakers dropped a 15-7 decision to eventual region champion Potomac State College on Friday, defeated Hagerstown CC in their second game that day, 6-4, and then fell to Allegany College of Maryland on Saturday, 6-2.

Garrett finished the campaign with an overall record of 21-22. The Catamounts of Potomac State topped Allegany, 2-1, in the final game on Sunday to win the title.

A three-run homer by former Southern Ram Josh Bosley in the fourth inning of the Lakers' game with Potomac State knotted the score at 3-3, as the Catamounts put one run on the board in each of the first three innings.

Garrett then went on top by a 7-3 margin with four runs in the top of the fifth, as Bosley smacked his second three-run shot of the contest, and Craig Barkey stroked a run-producing double.

Potomac State rallied for one run in the bottom of the fifth with two walks and two fielder's choices, and then erupted for six runs in the bottom of the sixth to take the lead for good. The six runs were recorded via a three-run homer by Josh Phillips and a three-run triple by Morgan Clendenin.

The Catamounts iced the win with five more runs in the bottom of the seventh, which ended the game because of the eight-run rule. James Samolovitch, who had hit a solo homer in the second, led off the seventh with a walk, followed by two more walks issued to Jody Roof and Wayne Sager. Clendenin then hit a two-run single, Phillips followed with an RBI single, and Omari Briscoe concluded the contest with a two-run homer on the first pitch by Laker reliever Chris Fisher.

The Lakers finished with a 10-8 edge in hits, but four GCC pitchers allowed a total of 13 walks. PSC reliever Marc Atkins was credited with the win on the mound.

Josh Bosley and Jeff Earley combined to record a four-hitter in the 6-4 win over Hagerstown in the second game.

After two scoreless innings, the Lakers took a 3-0 lead in the top of the third behind a home run by Chad Cooper. They made it 5-0 with two runs in the fourth, as Brandon Stewart smacked a round-tripper after Barkey doubled.

The Hawks rallied for four runs in the bottom of the fourth behind a three-run homer by Regan Smith to make the score 5-4.

The Lakers added an insurance run in the top of the fifth. Bosley, who was the starting pitcher for Garrett, was relieved by Earley in the seventh with runners at first and third and one out. Ryan Wetzel made what may have been a game-saving catch in left field to end the Hawks' threat.

Derek Huffman had to take the loss on the mound for Hagerstown, even though he allowed only five hits in going the nine-inning distance. The Hawks ended their season with a 28-10 record.

The Lakers also led nationally ranked Allegany by a 2-1 margin in Saturday's game, at least until the bottom of the seventh when the Trojans scored two runs to take the lead for good. They added three more in the bottom of the eighth to win their 43rd game of the season against just six losses.

Allegany took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Scott Kintz reached on an error and later scored on a single by Jerry Fulton. Laker ace Jason DiAngelo then held the Trojans scoreless for the next five innings, and allowed a total of only five hits.

Matt Mills hit a single for the Lakers in the third inning, and Dan Kochenderfer followed with a home run to put GCC up 2-1.

RBI singles by Kintz and Dan Patsilevas in the bottom of the seventh put the Trojans up by a 3-2 margin. David Tranquilli relieved DiAngelo in the eighth, but was tagged for three runs on a run-producing single by Nick Gozzard and a two-run double by Kintz.

The Trojans turned four double plays to support winning pitcher Craig Stabinsky, who gave up seven hits, struck out five, and walked four in going the distance. Kintz had three of AC's 11 hits.

Northern JVs Close Season With Victory

Northern High School's junior varsity baseball squad finished its season on the right foot this past Thursday with a last-inning rally that secured an 11-7 win over the Bishop Walsh jayvees in Cumberland. The Huskies finished with a 4-11 record on the year as BW's mark dropped to 4-15.

NHS was down 7-6 heading into the top of the seventh and final inning. The Huskies knotted the score at 7-all before Jason Thomas, who was batting with two outs and the bases loaded, cracked a two-run single to take a 9-7 lead. The Huskies added two more runs in the inning to pull away, and pitcher Jason Rice sealed the win by holding BW scoreless in the bottom half of the stanza.

Rice took the win on the mound, and cracked a double and a single at the plate. Allen King stroked a pair of singles and Chad Frazee ripped a double.

Rams' Jayvees Roll To 13-4 Mark With Win

A makeup game this past Thursday afforded the Southern High School junior varsity baseball team with an additional opportunity to add to its stellar season, and the Rams responded with a 5-2 win at Westmar. Southern recorded a 13-4 mark on the year, and the Wildcats finished at 7-9.

Billy Reams limited the Cats to just five hits in claiming the victory from the mound, and helped his own cause by ripping an RBI double. Jay Tressler also cracked a run-scoring two-bagger, Nathan Fitzwater stroked a pair of singles and recorded an RBI, and Chris Burell scored three runs after reaching first base on a single and a pair of walks.

Rams Edged By Keyser In Three-Team Competition

One point is all that separated the top two boys' teams in a three-team track and field meet hosted by Southern High School last Thursday, as Keyser finished with 76 points to edge the Rams, who amassed 75 points. University was a distant third place with 24 points.

The Southern girls were also a close second-place finisher, also to Keyser, as the Golden Tornadoes recorded 85 points, Southern finished with 75, and University scored 15.

The SHS boys actually won seven events, Keyser won six, and University won four, but the Tornadoes had just enough in second, third, and fourth places to eke out the team victory.

Leading the Rams was Matt Stephens, who won the long jump with a distance of 18 feet, 9 inches, and won the triple jump with a length of 38 feet, 6 inches. He placed second in the high jump and in the 110 high hurdles.

Kyle Snyder won the shot put with a throw of 45 feet, 1.75 inches, and was third in discus. Jeremy Lear captured first place in the 200 dash with a time of 23.72 seconds, and Bryan Schwalm was the winner of the 400 run in 54.03 seconds.

The Southern 400, 800, and 1,600 relay teams also finished first (team members not reported).

Also earning second places for the Rams were Ricky VanBogelen in the 100 dash, Josh Sharon in the 400 run, Matt Frederick in the 3,200 run, and Chris Lantz in the 300 hurdles.

The Southern girls recorded victory in seven events, with Brittany Naylor and Natalie Domenick each earning three first places, and Justine Pagenhardt getting two.

Naylor won the long jump with a leap of 14 feet, 9.5 inches, and the 3,200 run in 12 minutes, 29.6 seconds, and she was also on the winning 3,200 relay team (10 minutes, 41.8 seconds).

Domenick won first places in the 800 run with a time of 2 minutes, 36.3 seconds, and the 1,600 run in 5 minutes, 43.3 seconds. She, too, was on the winning 3,200 relay team.

Pagenhardt won the high jump with a height of 4 feet, 4 inches, was on the winning relay team, and placed second in the 1,600 run. Also on that team was Melissa Durst.

Another first place was garnered by Southern's Laura Preston in the triple jump, as she cleared 29 feet, 9 inches.

Other second places were recorded by Durst in the 400 run, Frantz in the high jump, Jenny Hickman in the 300 hurdles, and by the 400, 800, and 1,600 relay teams.

The Southern teams will compete this evening in the Region I championships.

ATHLETES GET BOOST FROM UNO — Uno Chicago Grill, Deep Creek Lake, is supporting the Garrett County Sportaerobic Team again this year by helping the members make the trip to California this summer. The team recently competed in national competition and came home with national championships. Christine Tucci, manager of Uno, is pictured as she presents a $4,000 check to Brenda Brosnihan, coach of the sportaerobic team. This is the second year owner Greig Johnson and Uno have offered support to the young athletes. The team will travel to San Francisco in July to compete as members of Team USA, and will face athletes from over 30 countries in the World Sportaerobic Championships. "We are thrilled to have Uno as our corporate sponsor again this year," said Brosnihan. "Without this kind of generosity, this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity would not be possible for many of these local kids." In the front row, left to right, are Morgan Brosnihan, Abby Wildesen, Chelsea Crosco, Alayna Gaither, Jessica Warnick, and Brittany Harvey. Second row, same order: Grace Herpel, Anna Keefer, Kellie Shotwell, Rachel Margroff, Melissa Ray, Brosnihan, and Tucci. Named Academic All-American Wrestler At JMU

Oakland native Nathan Rickman has been recognized with honorable mention status on the National Wrestling Coaches Association (NWCA) Academic All-America wrestling team. A senior at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va., the integrated science and technology major is carrying a 3.62 grade point average as graduation approaches.

Rickman is one of four JMU wrestling team members named to the Academic All-America team, the most from one school, and the Dukes' program ranked sixth overall in the nation. JMU's wrestling teams have been ranked in the Academic Top 20 for the past eight consecutive years, with six straight top five rankings between 1994 and 1999.

"We make a conscious effort in our recruiting to make academics and athletics equal priorities," commented 13-year JMU wrestling head coach Jeff Bowyer, whose 2000-01 squad compiled the program's best team GPA ever at 3.166 on a 4.0 scale. "We are fortunate to have an outstanding academic support program to monitor and assist our student-athletes so that they can maintain academic success and reach their academic goals."

The top six team rankings, in order, were Princeton, Stanford, Boston College, Harvard, Central Michigan, and JMU. Pittsburgh's Duquesne University ranked seventh. The NWCA Academic All-America team is composed of 11 First Team members, 10 Second-Team members, and 35 Honorable Mention recipients.

A 1997 graduate of Southern High School, Rickman holds the Rams' record for most career wrestling victories and finished his JMU career ranked 14th in career victories for the Dukes. He is a son of Norma and Jack Rickman, Oakland.

Northern Ice Still Unbeaten On The Pitch

Northern Ice, the Northern Garrett Soccer Club's under 14 all-girls team, upped its record to 7-0 on Sunday by shutting out West Virginia's Potomac Highlands Club and Garrett County's Arsenal team. Counting Northern Ice's streak from last fall, the team has won 17 consecutive matches.

Even more impressive than the win streak is the defensive performance of the Ice players, who allowed a total of two goals the entire fall season and, in their first seven matches this spring, have given up only one goal.

Scoring goals for Coach John Milbourne's team this past Sunday were Brittany Milbourne, Markell Klavuhn, Chelsea Green, Tiffany Yoder, Lindsay Schrock, Susan Kolb, and Britta Lais. Recording saves in goal were Tiffany Yoder, Susan Kolb, and Jackie Folk.

The starting defensive line this spring for Ice includes Amy Shaffer, Stephanie Beachy, Bethani Gillum, and Erin Brenneman. The quartet utilizes a zone defense known as the flat back four.

"The most phenomenal thing about this defense is that three out of four girls on the starting defensive line are legitimate U-12 players playing in the U-14 division," stated Coach Milbourne, who explained that others fill in from time to time, but not until the starting line has allowed the offense to build a comfortable lead.

"All of the offense in the world isn't worth a dime if you can't keep the other team out of your goal," Milbourne said.

Area Speedway Review

Interstate 79 Speedway

Last Friday night at Interstate 79 Speedway the winners' circle saw four new faces.

The Late Model feature was won by Butch McGill after he started on the pole. McGill quickly pulled away from the field. Paul Wilmoth mounted a late charge but came up short and had to settle for second.

In the Semi Late division, M.T. Hall of Pennsboro, W.Va., picked up win number one. Duane Moreland held off L.C. Powers for second.

Fairmont, W.Va.'s Ron Parrish driving for Mtn. Lake Park's Automotive Machine picked up the win in the Gold Digger AMRA Modified. Parrish started on the pole after picking up the first heat race. Last year's point champ, Dave Defibaugh, was second and Shawn Davis was third.

Jim Byers made it two in a row in his #36 M&M look alike Pure Stock. Byers started in row two and never looked back after taking the lead.

Dave Summers picked up his first feature of the 2001 season in the 4-Cylinder class. Jeff Pennington and Tom Simpson challenged but could not get Summers. They settled for second and third.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park

By Donna Butler

Mike Benedum made his first visit to Roaring Knob a profitable one as he took the win in the Ken Nicholson and Sons Late Model feature Saturday night at Roaring Knob.

Benedum took the lead on the 18th circuit, and led the rest of the way, with Gary Tonkery second, and Mel Minnick, Jesse Guseman, and Jeff Ferguson completing the top 5.

Defending Modified champ Wayne Jordan took top honors in the Caney Valley Sport and Marine AMRA Modified division.

Young Mike Hay battled his way from the sixth starting spot to take the checkered in the VitaLink QCOL Classic Lites pro division.

Scott "The Ace" Spade became Roaring Knob's first 2-time winner of 2001, finding victory lane in the Country Charm Hot Stocks.

Jaclyn Sickles drove her brother Steve's number 911 to the win in the powder puff race.

Friday night's Fort Necessity Garage four and six cylinder racing program saw Craig Shaw take the Sportsman Sprints. Danny Leonard won the four cylinder stock, as Mike Lewis of Oakland took the 4 cylinder modified class. Chris Meyers brought home the gold in the six cylinder class.

Corridor H Speedway

by Bob Reed

Robbie Scott proved once again last week that he is the car to beat in Late Models at Corridor H Speedway in Elkins. Scott passed early leader Tim Senic on lap six and led the final 19 laps of the feature for his third win in three weeks of racing. Senic held on for second, which is his best finish of the year, with Doug Horton third, Tom Pennington fourth, and John Parsons fifth.

The news in Semi Lates last week was that L.C. Powers didn't win. Duane Moreland jumped into the lead from the outside pole and led every lap of the feature for his first win of the year. Rick Burrows finished second with Powers third.

From the pole Dave Defibaugh led the AMRA modified feature for 14 laps. On the last lap he and Ron Parrish, who drives the Gold Digger for Automotive Machine in Mtn. Lake Park, got together, with Defibaugh spinning. Parrish took the checkered in first place but was disqualified for rough driving. The officials reverted back to lap 14 with Defibaugh awarded the win over his brother Deck.

Twenty five Pure Stocks signed into the pits, with all scheduled to start the feature, but only 23 made it. John Smith continued his winning ways with his third win of the year and fourth consecutive at the track. Smith won the first heat, started on the pole and led every lap for the win. Rick Ball ran a strong second, followed across the line by Dave Riggs, Chad Rexrode, and Scott Gum. The othertwo heats were won by Jim McCloud and Rick Ball.

Kenny Rowback won his first 4Cylinder feature of the year with a wire to wire run. Rowback started on the pole and led every lap for the win over Mike Lewis of Oakland, Tommy Simpson, Kevin Pifer, and last week's winner Jeff Pennington. Heats went to Rowback and Simpson.

This Friday night regular racing continues with gates opening at 5p.m. and racing at 7p.m.

RESCUE SQUAD MEETING

The most recent meeting of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad was held last Thursday, May 10, at the Accident fire hall. Many members were present, as well as concerned citizens of Friendsville. Cheryl Rexrode presided over the meeting because of the illness of president Danny Durst. All those present were permitted to stay, but only members of the squad were permitted to speak. John Beachy and Rod Bowser separately voiced their disapproval of the public sitting in on the squad meetings.

A relief was felt by many concerned when Cheryl Rexrode announced that the board has decided to let the Friendsville ambulance remain in Friendsville. Following the meeting of April 10, at which a motion was made by Terry Spear that the entire project be put on hold until the appraisal is complete and squad members have access to all information regarding the sale, the board contacted Roger Powell, lawyer representing the squad, for legal advice. It was Powell's opinion that the board of directors did indeed follow the intent of a motion made at the Feb. 10 meeting which gave them permission to pursue the project of purchasing land and building a new complex which would house three or four ambulances, plus squad quarters with overnight accommodations, a training center, a kitchen, and social hall for squad use and public rental.

In consideration of Powell's advice, the ORC decided that Terry Spear's motion at the April 10 meeting was considered out of order and the project at the McHenry site will proceed as approved.

Rexrode announced that the ground and buildings were appraised at $472,200. She also went on to say that the Accident squad will be moved to McHenry and Friendsville's ambulance will remain in Friendsville as long as the squad does not drop below a 25% delay/no response rate per month, at which time it would be removed immediately. There was a motion made that there be no more discussion on this topic, but as there were many members who disagreed, the motion failed, 20-16, and more concerns were voiced by members. Some of the questions dealt with the purchase price and how the squad was going to pay for it, while others were concerned over the need for a social hall.

Rod Bowser tried to answer some of the questions by first stating that the board members who were elected are doing a good job to benefit this organization and that the newspapers have printed many misleading statements.

The money that is available and will be applied for by the NGCRS is a nationwide FEMA grant and the recently passed Amnesty Bill, which will provide $15 million to the state of Maryland fire and rescue organizations in the form of a low-interest revolving fund. These will be applied for soon.

As for the social hall, Bowser went on to explain that this will benefit all of the NGCRS members so that they can use it free of charge to hold parties, receptions, reunions, and so on. As of now, nothing is available for squad members to use without paying a high price. He also stressed to the members that he felt the squad should "move on and leave all of the misunderstandings behind them." "Friendsville gets to keep their ambulance, and the building in McHenry is ready to go," he concluded.

Terry Spear asked if the board was going to hold off on the purchase of the land until the grants come through, to which Cheryl Rexrode stated that she didn't know.

More discussion was made by many concerned members, but others also voiced an opinion of wanting to drop the subject and move on. It was stated several times throughout the course of the meetings that there is no opposition to an ambulance being put in the McHenry area, but much concern has been repeated over the debt and the fact that the board of directors has not communicated with the members very well on this project.

Following the meeting, Junior Shumaker, member of the board, stressed the fact that Grantsville's station covers lots of areas that don't have an ambulance, such as Dry Run and Bittinger, and that the distance between these areas and Grantsville is as great as, if not greater than, the area between McHenry and Friendsville, so he doesn't see the problem with the consolidation. He also agreed that the board could have been more informative to the members and that the public "has a right to know."

Rod Bowser explained the board's logic behind the idea of the consolidation of Accident and Friendsville at the McHenry site. He said that the consolidation would better serve the surrounding areas of Accident, McHenry, and Friendsville by having a staff on duty at all times, which would make a better response time and less delay time. Sometimes calls are not being answered by either Accident or Friendsville because of a lack of available members on duty. This draws in an ambulance from Grantsville, which can put the patient's life at risk because of the longer response time.

Pat Bowser stated that this was "five years in the making" and that members had plenty of time to state their opinions. Tom Reilly continued that he has done extensive research on at least 20 properties, some of them being owned by Sam Friend at McHenry and Hoyes, Kokomo's, Lakeview Exxon, Ringer's Garage, and the McHenry site. He also felt that facts have become misconstrued by members and the public, and that things have been "blown out of proportion."

In trying to give those in favor of the consolidation a fair voice, Bowser explained the plans for the new facility in McHenry. The existing cabin will be used for the squad quarters. As it is, it contains a kitchen, lounge area, a loft with office space, three or four bedrooms, and six bathrooms. The lounge area will include entertainment for members to pass the time during their shift. It is hoped that this will be a family-oriented atmosphere where children can spend time with parents who are on duty. A computer will also be available to members to run reports, stats, maps, and so on. The building is fuel-efficient and easy to heat.

The existing building positioned to the back of the property will be the social hall and will temporarily house the ambulance. In the future, as grant money is made available, ambulance bays will be built on the side of the squad quarters.

Prevent Arthritis Pain Later With Early Diagnosis

The Arthritis Foundation is urging older adults to assess the health of their joints in May, National Arthritis Month, to prevent arthritis pain and disability later.

The Arthritis Foundation's Assess Your Joint Health questionnaire is a new tool to help individuals identify risk factors for arthritis and early signs and symptoms of the most common form of arthritis, called osteoarthritis (OA).

OA affects 21 million people, most over the age of 40. One study found that one in three people over 63 have X-ray evidence of OA. Early diagnosis of osteoarthritis can prevent further joint damage and help seniors maintain their independence and quality of life.

Persons may obtain a questionnaire at any of the senior centers or senior meal sites in Garrett County on May 16 and 17 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Those wanting more information may contact Community Action Area Agency of Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 137.

Alzheimer's Group Slates Workshop At Allegany Coll.

"Keepsake: A Program on Memory, Aging, and Alzheimer's" has been set for Thursday, May 24, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the theater of Allegany College of Maryland. Sponsored by the Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, the workshop will include information that will help participants distinguish between the memory loss associated with normal aging and signs of Alzheimer's disease.

The keynote speaker will be Dr. Matthew Wagner, a psychiatrist with an added certification in geriatric psychiatry who is in full-time private practice with Behavioral Health Services of the Washington County Health System. His presentation will alert individuals to different forms of memory disorders, focusing on the early warning signs, diagnosis, and care and treatment options for Alzheimer's patients and their families. He will also discuss legal and financial planning issues, and community-based resources available to caregivers.

The college is located on the east side of Cumberland along Willow Brook Road. For more information on the Keepsake workshop and other Alzheimer's resources, interested persons may call the Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830.

TREATED TO A BEEF BARBECUE recently by the members of the local Knights of Columbus were the employees, physicians, and volunteers of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The Knights did so to honor these individuals during National Hospital Week, which is this week (May 6-12). The observance honors not only staff members who work directly with patients, but also the many "behind the scenes" employees of the hospital, ranging from data processing to laundry workers. The hospital has over 300 employees who work with over 60 physicians and allied health professionals. "These dedicated individuals strive to help GCMH be the best health care facility possible," said Don Battista, president and CEO, who is pictured above left. Also in the photo, from left, are: Mary Dawson, Lucy Burnett, M.J. Sabatelli, and Josie Fletcher.

MINISTERS, MENTAL HEALTH WORKERS MEET — In an effort to better serve Garrett Countians with mental illness, local ministers met last week with the staff of the Mountaintop Mental Health Associates (MMHA) Inc. to discuss ways in which the two entities may work together. "Pastors are often the first people to come in contact with persons suffering from mental illness," said Pastor Randy Nairn, who is a member of the mental health associates board. Nairn said the plan is to form a partnership between clergy members and the mental health professionals. "That way we can learn all that is available in our county so that we can better know how to help people," he said. Trish Morgan, executive director of MMHA, said she was pleased with the idea to work together, and told the pastors that her agency is "here to help." While the MMHA works with people who are already in the public mental health system, she said her staff can also offer networking and referral assistance to the pastors. A number of religious leaders gathered at the MMHA office last Tuesday to discuss the partnership. Nairn noted that May is Mental Health Awareness Month. Standing in the photo are Morgan and Nairn. Seated from left are Fanny Bender, Pastor Oren Bender, Pastor Alan Kauffman, Pastor Steve Sauder, and Pastor Mike Robinson.

•Effective with the May 17 meeting of the mayor and town council, all meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. until further notice.

•Marilyn Moors, president of the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, explained the funding shortfall for the library system for the coming year. She requested the support of the mayor and council for the establishment of a local committee to assess the needs and to plan activities for the Friendsville branch of the library. This request received the full support of the mayor and council members.

•Because of the dry weather conditions, the planting of numerous replacement trees throughout the town has been postponed until this fall to further assure the success of these plantings.

•James Kisner proposed the establishment of an alcohol-free activity center in town for use by local youth and adults. He would offer numerous family-oriented activities there. For additional information, Mr. Kisner can be contacted at 301-334-2821.

•Jess Whittemore noted that the process of updating the town's Comprehensive Development Plan is scheduled to begin during the next year. He stated that the recent state acquisition of the Yough Corridor properties will increase business opportunities for the entire community.

•The town has been notified by the State Highway Administration that the posted speed limit along Md. •Street sweeping work began last week and will continue this week.

•The development work on the new ballfield is progressing. The soil is being allowed to settle before additional finishing work is done.

•New park benches, which were acquired through Program Open Space funding, will be installed throughout the park this spring.

•The annual Clean-Up Week activity has been rescheduled for the week of May 21-26, with household trash being collected on Thursday morning and bulk items being hauled on Saturday morning.

•The town's old reservoir property, which is approximately .35 acres located between Route 53 and I-68, is available for purchase by sealed bid. The bids will be opened on June 21, and a minimum bid of $1,800 is required.

•The need for a central air conditioning system at the community center was discussed. This building upgrade will be funded jointly through the mayor and town council and the Community Action Committee.

•Bedding plants will be planted throughout town on town-owned property. Any citizens interested in participating in this beautification project are asked to contact Sara Sines, town clerk-treasurer, at 301-746-5919 or 746-5847.

NEVER SHARE YOUR MEDICINE

Do not share you medicine with someone else, and do not take medicine prescribed for another person. Your prescription fits you as precisely as good eyeglasses or bridgework. It was written for you on the basis of age, weight, sex, and physical condition.

Never allow someone else to take your medicine, even if his symptoms seem to be the same as yours. "Prescribing" for another person can have damaging results. For the same reasons, do not let anyone else "prescribe" for you.

Though no formal degrees are bestowed today, kindergarten graduation is a particularly significant milestone. It is said that by the time a child is three years of age, parts of his or her brain are already programmed for life. How incredible!

Consequently, we have little time to decide what imprint we make upon our children. In many families, both parents must work outside the home. Quality time is minimal at best. How can we influence our young sons and daughters so that as they grow, their focus will be on those things that will spell success and satisfaction each step of the way?

The answer is simple. Their focus must be on their Creator. Begin early to teach your children about God and the peace and security that comes with His love. They will face challenges with confidence and negative peer pressures will not take hold when armed with the strong security of God's Word.

Why not worship as a family this week? The time is now.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHERE IS YOUR 'MACEDONIA'?

May 20, 2001

Background Scripture:
Acts 16:6-40
Devotional Reading:
Philippians 1:3-11

As Acts tells it, there was no grand strategy in the minds of the earliest Christians. The church in Jerusalem did not decide to mount a mission to the rest of Judea, let alone to Asia Minor and Europe. The Jerusalem church began as witnesses to the resurrection of Jesus Christ gathered together as a community of which Acts tells us, "And day by day, attending the temple together and breaking bread in their homes, they partook of food with glad and generous hearts, praising God and having favor with all the people." (2:46,47)

It took persecution to move the early Christians into mission! On the day of the martyrdom of Stephen, "a great persecution arose against the church in Jerusalem; and they were all scattered throughout the region of Judea and Samaria." (8:1b) One of the Christian communities that was founded by these persecution- scattered brethren was at Antioch, and it was from here that Paul and Barnabas began their missionary efforts that established Christian congregations in parts of Asia Minor.

God's Next Move

Note that it is God, not the disciples, who acts to extend the reach of the gospel. God used the persecution in Jerusalem to scatter Christians throughout Judea, Samaria and as far as Antioch. He then used Paul, Barnabas and the Church at Antioch to bring the gospel into Asia Minor. He used the opposition of certain Jews to get Paul and Barnabas started on a mission to the Gentiles. What next would God do?

Next, God would use the hostility of Paul's opponents in Asia Minor and a dream in which Paul would see and hear a Macedonia calling, "Come over to Macednoia and help us" (16:9). Remembering our terminology of several weeks ago, God used the Paul's closed-doors to open another door through which the gospel could be carried from Asia to Europe. In this case, it would seem that God was responsible for the "closed doors" in Phyrgia, Galatia and Mysia. He wanted Paul to be receptive when he experienced this "night vision." (This term and "dream" were used interchangeably in New Testament times and were regarded as channels of God's revelation.)

Luke's 'Philippi'?

Some scholars have contended that Luke was from Philippi in Macedonia. When they reach Philippi, Luke seems particularly proud of this city which he styles "the leading city of the district of Macedonia." (16:12). It is interesting that immediately after this vision of the Macedonian call the writer of Acts slips into the pronoun "we." "And when he had seen the vision, immediately we sought to go to Macedonia, concluding that God had called us to preach the gospel to them" (16:10). It was at this point in Troas that Luke joined Paul.

The meaning of this passage, however, is much more personal. Each of us has a Macedonian call of some kind to which we need to respond. There is for each of us a place or places in our lives where we need to break out and take a 'continental' next step. You can find Paul's 'Macedonia' on the map. But the real question is: Where is the Macedonia to which God is calling you?

THE WORLD IS NOW AN OPEN BOOK for two local adults who have conquered illiteracy and the apprehensions and stigmas associated with not knowing how to read or write. They have learned to read with the help of volunteer tutors working through the Garrett County Literacy Council. Shown above, from left, are tutor and council treasurer Maury Feinstein and his student Richard Artice, and tutor and council president Mary Jo Hunter and her student John Kreuger. See story for details on the accomplishments of these individuals, and how other interested persons can participate in the Literacy Council's mission as students or volunteer tutors.

GC Literacy Council Unlocks World Of Words For Area Men

by Dave Levesque
GC Literacy Council

After Richard Artice, 64, read off the alphabet and the short story on lesson 9 of his skillbook, his Garrett County Literacy Council volunteer tutor Maury Feinstein turned to me and said "[Richard] couldn't do that six weeks ago." At another table in the Accident Library, John Kreuger, with his tutor Mary Jo Hunter, reads words and stories he couldn't read six weeks ago either.

After a lifetime of inventing clever tricks to hide their illiteracy from friends, family, and even from the government, Kreuger and Artice decided they were tired of "always [having] to stay behind" and "kidding [themselves]" because they could not read newspapers, books, or street signs. An associate from their church referred the men to the Garrett County Literacy Council, and they now receive free one-on-one tutoring.

"You know, they say 'seek and ye shall find; ask and ye shall receive,'" Kreuger explained. "It's in the Bible," a book both men said they plan to read soon. Both admit asking for help meant they had to "swallow a little bit of that self esteem," but, "it's a wonderful feeling learning to read." They hope their own stories will prompt other people to come forward and ask for help as they did.

Kreuger served six years in the Army National Guard before being discharged for illiteracy. Later, as a truck driver, he navigated unfamiliar towns and cities, making deliveries without being able to read street signs. Until he married, his own sisters had no idea he could not read. He compensated by asking strategically worded questions and listening very closely to answers he received. In time, he learned to remember and repeat what he could not write down to read later.

Artice developed similar methods of concealing his illiteracy from the world. A 47-year employee in the logging industry, he had learned to recognize product labels in the grocery store or find out what movie he'd like to see by asking the ticket seller what was playing. Most people, he said, simply assume you can read, so they have no reason to believe you cannot unless you give them one. "And," both men added, "you always pay with cash."

Now Kreuger and Artice are both learning to read through a phonics-based teaching method, breaking down each word into its component sounds. In progressing through a series of skill books, they become less dependent on pictures and charts as they "sound out" new words and decipher increasingly complex sentences. In a six-week time span, with each tutoring session one hour in length, Kreuger and Artice learned several years worth of reading skills.

The Garrett County Literacy Council is certified to teach the Laubach Method of Tutoring, and all volunteer tutors undergo an extensive three-day training course. All tutoring, in addition to being free and one-on-one, is confidential. For further information, interested persons may contact the Literacy Council by telephone at 301-3873161, or through the mail at 302 Roanoke Ave, Loch Lynn Heights, MD 21550.

Buying electricity as a group.
Do you know what an "Aggregator" is? An Aggregator brings consumers together to form a buying group in an effort to find lower rates by buying energy in bulk. As Maryland's competitive electric market develops, more and more organizations may become Aggregators for their members. Business associations, civic and non-profit organizations, and other groups can apply to be licensed by the Maryland Public Service Commission to form buying groups on behalf of their members. And as Aggregators negotiate rates and contract terms for their members, they will also be helping the overall competitive electric market to grow and evolve, so everyone benefits. To find out more, simply call our Answer Center, toll-free, or visit our Web Site. Then, ask for your free Consumer Guide to Electric Choice, plus our free brochure on Buying Electricity as a Group.

Whitlatchs To Present Slides

Missionaries Ron and Cathy Whitlatch have recently returned from Argentina, and will be giving a slide presentation and discussion at two area churches this month.

There will be a covered dish dinner on Sunday, May 27, at 6 p.m., at Hoyes United Methodist Church, located at Hoyes Road and Route 42. Slides and discussion of Argentina will follow the dinner.

Another covered dish dinner will be held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, on Tuesday, May 29, at 6 p.m. A slide presentation about Argentina will follow.

The Whitlatchs, who went to Argentina in 1983 and spoke no Spanish, have returned to the West Virginia Conference, and are now visiting 85 churches across the United States that supported them through the years.

Their two oldest children have remained in Argentina. Their daughter Meg will enter her second year of medical school at the University of Mendoza, and son Hays is staying in the country to pursue his studies to become a public translator. Their youngest son, who was born in Argentina, has returned home with his parents.

While in Argentina they developed church and community outreach programs in the Barrio Patron Santiago.

Anyone interested in the presentations are invited to attend.

DNR Enforces Regulations, Offers Course

The Department of Natural Resources will be enforcing the personal watercraft (PWC) restrictions and the operating license law this summer, according to a coordinator for DNR.

Maryland law requires that any person born on or after July 1, 1972, who operates a registered or documented pleasure vessel, including PWC, on Maryland waters must be in possession of a Certificate of Boating Safety Education. This certificate must be shown to a Natural Resources Police (NRP) officer when requested.

The required Maryland Boat Basic Boating course is offered on several Saturdays during the summer at Garrett Community College. Persons interested may call 301-387-3070 for more details.

Information may also be obtained at the web site www.dnr.state.md.us/boating/safety or by calling the NRP division at 410-974-2040.

There are also PWC restrictions that are enforced on Deep Creek Lake.

These crafts, including jet skis and waverunners, may not be operated on the lake between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays, and Memorial Day weekend; and Saturdays, Sundays, and all holidays from July 1 through Labor Day.

In addition to all other boating regulations, operators of PWC must abide by a set of their own regulations, a few of which are: persons must be at least 16 years of age to operate a PWC, all persons aboard a PWC must wear a Coast Guard approved personal floatation device (PFD), and a person may not operate a PWC between the hours of sunset and sunrise.

Pacific star played a bad guy in The Saint

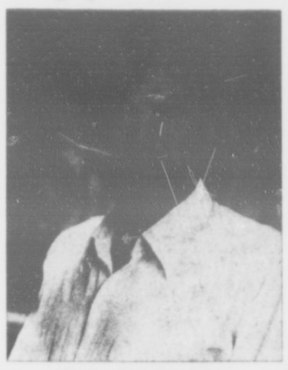
By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate



Rade Sherbedgia

Q: Didn't Rade Sherbedgia (South Pacific) play a bad guy opposite Val Kilmer in The Saint? What else can you tell us about him? –Deanne H. via e-mail.

A: Sherbedgia, who did indeed play would-be dictator Ivan Tretiak in The Saint, is a native of what is now Croatia. Just before playing Emile de Becque to Glenn Close's Nellie Forbush, the 54-year-old actor starred in Guy Ritchie's film Snatch. Sherbedgia also appeared in Eyes Wide Shut and Mission: Impossible 2, and is a respected international stage actor.

He also has recorded five CDs of his own songs and published four books of poetry.

Q: Seeing Bobby Sherman recently on a Frasier rerun reminded me of a series he did about three brothers who were lumberjacks. Who played his oldest brother? Didn't the middle brother go on to do Starsky and Hutch? What is Bobby Sherman doing now? –D.S., Colorado Springs, Colo.

A: Here Come the Brides (ABC 1968-70) was a modest hit set in 1870s Seattle. Sherman played Jeremy Bolt, youngest of three logging brothers. Robert Brown played Jason, the senior sibling, while middle brother Joshua was played by David Soul, who went on to play Detective Ken "Hutch" Hutchinson on the hit police drama you mention.

Now 57, Sherman works as a volunteer Los Angeles Police Department officer and emergency medical technician. His autobiography, Still Remembering You, is a must-read for fans.

Q: I really enjoyed Michelle Hurd on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, but she was barely on the show this season. What gives? –Dolores Wasylczak, Somerset, Pa.

A: A publicist for the show says Hurd's character was written out at the end of last season, one of several revisions to the series. She appeared this season only to tie up a dangling story line. She is not expected to return.

Q: Recently I saw the TV movie Shattering the Silence with Joanna Kerns. Who played her sister? Wasn't she once one of Charlie's Angels? –Barbara Meehan, Groves, Texas.

A: Yes, Shelley Hack, who played Becky Worth in Shattering the Silence, made her TV series debut as Angel-ic Tiffany Welles (1979-80).

Q: I remember Neville Brand and William Smith were in a Western series called Laredo, but who were the other cast members? –Roger Peace, Greenville, S.C.

A: The 1965-67 NBC series also starred Peter Brown as Chad Cooper, Philip Carey as Capt. Edward Parmalee and Robert Wolders as Erik Hunter.

IN FOCUS

Sam Neill stars as Lt. Cmdr. Charles "Swede" Momsen, who leads a mission to rescue survivors from a sunken U.S. Navy submarine, in Submerged, airing Sunday, May 20, on NBC.

The TV movie, based on the book The Terrible Hours: The Man Behind the Greatest Submarine Rescue in History by Peter Maas, tells the true story of the USS Squalus, which sank during a test dive off the New Hampshire coast in 1939.

Shea Whigham, Emily Procter and James B. Sikking also star.

SUNDAY

Lois and Hal (Jane Kaczmarek, Bryan Cranston) reflect on the boys' births and other family milestones in Malcolm in the Middle Sunday on Fox.

Orientation Set For Emergency Medicine Classes

An orientation session for an upcoming combined Cardiac Rescue Technician (CRT)/Paramedic Training (EMT-P) course is set for 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, May 23, at Garrett Community College. Persons interested in participating in the fall offering, which will get under way in September, should attend this orientation session. Registration for the orientation session can be made by contacting GCC's Jean Tressler at 301-387-3085, 301-387-3069, or 301-895-3101, ext. 3085. Two hours of Continuing Education credits (Category 2 or local option) will be provided for the orientation session.

A course in Anatomy and Physiology designed to prepare potential cardiac rescue technician/paramedic students will meet at GCC for the first time on Wednesday, June 13, from 6:30 to 10:45 p.m., and continue for a total of 10 sessions. This course will be required for all new EMT-Ps who are planning to take the CRT/Paramedic course, and will also provide useful information for advanced life support providers. The course will provide an introduction to body systems, physiology related to prehospital emergency care, drug and IV calculations, and an introduction to basic math.

The combined CRT/EMT-P course is slated to begin in September at a date to be announced, and will meet at the college on Monday and Thursday nights from 6:30 to 10:45 p.m. The combined course is designed for EMTs, CRTs, and LPN, and RNs who are also EMTs, and will be cooperatively offered by MIEMSS, Region I Office of Prehospital Care, and GCC.

FINISHES SIXTH IN TRI-STATE MATH CONTEST — Southern High School junior Laura Hollingsworth took sixth place in a field of 110 juniors from 14 high schools across the region who competed in the 16th annual Tri-State Mathematics Scholarship Competition at Allegany College of Maryland. Participants took a one-hour written test of their algebra and geometry knowledge, and Hollingsworth's ranking qualified her for a $100 AC scholarship underwritten by the LaVale Lions Club, and recognition at a recent awards ceremony at the college's Cumberland campus. Pictured in the first row, from the left, are SHS math teacher Lawrence Krupa and Hollingsworth. In the back row are AC president Dr. Donald Alexander, AC math professor and math contest chairman Gary Shaffer, and AC Foundation executive secretary Linda Price.

SHS Student, Teacher Receive History Awards

A Southern High School student and teacher recently received awards at the Maryland History Day 2001 contest in Baltimore. The contest, themed "Frontiers in History: People, Places, Ideas," brought together more than 200 middle and high school students from throughout Maryland to present history research projects they had prepared over the past year.

Benjamin Peracchio won the senior individual performance for his topic, Charles Darwin: Evolution of a Frontier. His teacher is David E. Bender.

Bender received the regional teacher award for the western district.

In addition to traditional papers, students also presented historical performances, multimedia documentaries, and interpretive exhibits. Professional historians and educators had the task of choosing first and second place, individual, and group winners in both the junior and senior division. The selected students received medals and monetary prizes.

The winners of Maryland History Day 2001 advance to the National History Day competition in College Park June 10 through 14.

MURDER MYSTERY BENEFITS RED CROSS — The American Red Cross sponsored a murder mystery dinner fund-raiser at Larry's Blues Cellar at the Silver Tree Center recently. The dinner was attended by nearly 80 guests, and performed by a cast of 14 volunteers. The event was the first fund-raiser of its kind in the local area and raised $1,500 for the local chapter of the Red Cross. The event was sponsored in part by the Silver Tree Center and BumBle Q's Restaurant along with silent auction donations from other local businesses, including McHenry Beverage Shoppe, Flowers by Webers, Taste Unlimited Catering and Banquets, Scenic Views Studio, and the Deep Creek Lake Radio Shack. BumBle Q's also donated material to the auction, as well as Larry's Blues Cellar, who offered a face to be painted on Larry's Wall of Fame. The face on Larry's Wall of Fame raised $700 for the organization and marked the second face to be offered for local fund-raising efforts. Bootsie Howell, played by Holly Huxford, was the character who "murdered" Joan Ribber, played by Elizabeth Huxford. According to Darrin Green of Larry's Blues Cellar, another murder mystery dinner to benefit the Red Cross will be held in October. Some of the participants are pictured above. From the left, they are Holly Huxford, Mindy Spano, Bryon Bowman, Judy Day, Elizabeth Huxford, Dusty Huxford, Vivian Stacey, Jonathan Wildesen, Leah Miller, and Ann Jackson.

USDA Housing Loan Program Broadened

The Rural Development office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that USDA has modified the requirements for its Multi-Family Housing Guaranteed Loan program. Loans for acquisitions can now be used to purchase and rehabilitate existing housing units.

Developers are being encouraged to rehabilitate existing units, using the $85 million in loan guarantee authority remaining for the fiscal year, which ends Aug. 31. Previous regulations only allowed funds to be used for new construction of rental housing units.

Under the Guaranteed Rural Rental Housing Program, USDA provides loan guarantees to lenders, who in turn provide loans for the construction and rehabilitation of multi-family housing complexes in rural areas. USDA will guarantee the lender's loan for up to 90 percent of the total development cost.

Units financed under the program are available to families whose income does not exceed 115 percent of the local average. The program also makes available Interest Credit Assistance for 20 percent of the loans guaranteed. This assistance allows USDA to buy down the loan interest rate to the appropriate federal rate (AFR).

Program applications and procedures were published in the Federal Register Dec. 26, and amended on Feb. 16 and May 2. Interested lenders may apply the third Thursday of every month until funds are exhausted.

Further information is available from Joyce Allen of the Rural Housing Service at 202-690-4499, or from USDA Rural Development state offices, which are listed on the USDA Rural Development web site at www.rurdev.usda.gov/rhs.

SHS ALUM SPEAKS AT SHS — Steve Kremer, a graduate of Southern High School, class of 1984, visited David Mayfield's physics classes recently to discuss his job with NASA at the Wallups Island Base in Virginia. Kremer, who graduated from the University of Maryland as an electrical engineer, explained to the students his job as it relates to the flying schedule of the space shuttle. He explained to them the problems of tracking the shuttle in its orbit by obtaining data from satellites. He showed them a videotape of the launching of a satellite from the front of a cruise missile launched by a plane flying at 70,000 feet. He explained the changes between the present shuttle service and the proposed transport vehicle of the new X-33. He answered questions as they related to his education and the various operations of NASA. He was also a lecturer at the Garrett County Career Day, held at Garrett Community College.

Garrett's "Write Away" Conference Deemed Successful

The 50 participants who took part in the first writers' conference sponsored by Garrett Community College recently heard the five presenters share their expertise and tell how they became writers. This year's conference, titled "Write Away," consisted of four Saturday morning seminars, each presented by a local professional writer.

"The conference was a great success," said coordinator Joan Crawford. "It was good to see so many people interested in writing. Some of them suggested that we make this an annual event with more seminars and longer time periods, possibly a two or three-day conference. We will certainly consider that, since there is an interest."

During the seminar titled Writing and Illustrating Children's Books, participants heard author Esther Bender and artist Edna Bender explain the process they go through from getting an idea for a story, then writing and illustrating the book, to preparing the manuscript and submitting it for publication.

Participants in the Fiction Writing seminar heard Dr. Greg Jenkins read and critique short stories a number of them had submitted beforehand and make suggestions for improvement. He also discussed parts of stories he had written.

The seminar on Writing Poetry, led by Debra Wolf, presented some fundamental considerations in writing a poem, such as using concrete language and getting the thoughts down on paper, then going back and revising. Participants also interacted with the presenter to write a poem collectively on the board.

In the seminar on Writing Publicity, Peggy Santamaria addressed each individual's needs and interests in her presentations about news and feature writing for newspapers. She also spoke about disseminating publicity through other media and answered questions from the group.

Participants in the GCC Writer's Conference represented a broad spectrum of ages from high school and college students to adults and senior citizens, and came from several states to attend this event.

PENS AT THE READY, participants in "Write Away," the first writers' conference at Garrett Community College, listened to Garrett County Chamber of Commerce public relations specialist Peggy Santamaria as she presented her seminar on Writing Publicity recently. Santamaria's workshop focused on the ways a writer can effectively and concisely spread the word of the activities of a civic group, school, or other community organization through a variety of media outlets.

The computer has almost replaced the typewriter. Many young children would not recognize an old typewriter with an exposed typebar. Today's new typewriters usually print the letters from a ball. The typewriter was an amazing invention that gained national attention in the 1870s. It was one of the most talked-about inventions displayed at the 1876 Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia.

The "writing machine" made it possible to easily copy papers and books. The invention was redesigned many times, and the keyboard could be rectangular or curved. The inking method was changed to pads or rollers. The paper feed was moved, and the keys were adjusted so that more lines of type could be seen. For about 30 years, inventors also tried to change the arrangement of the letters. They tried to ignore the QWERTY arrangement used on early Sholes & Glidden typewriters of the past and on computers of today. (Starting from the left, QWERTY are the first six letters of the top row of lettered keys.)

One popular machine that had an improved typebar action was the Williams. It was made in 1891. The keys moved the typeface that printed the letters with a jerky, "grasshopper" movement. The curved, 28-key keyboard was replaced by a straight version in 1895. Collectors search for the unusual Williams I machine and others that show the technology of another day. A Williams I typewriter made in 1891 sold last year for $6,325.

A New Pet

Q. My daughter and I brought home the most adorable puppy. He was one of a litter being given away for free at a garage sale. How can we start off right with this new pet?

A. First, congratulations! You haven't just brought home a puppy, you've adopted a new member of the family, one that will need almost as much attention and love as a new baby. So first, take a deep breath, and then prepare for a whirlwind of "things to do" to get your new pal settled in.

Since you picked up your puppy, sight unseen, at a garage sale, you should take him to the vet as soon as possible — within three days. He must be screened and treated for worms, fleas and any possible diseases.

Start your puppy out right with a good diet. I've written several columns about feeding pets, but talk with the veterinarian about the best food for a growing dog.

Learn how to take care of your new friend: Pick up books on training, grooming and common problems with your breed of dog.

Now, to the day-to-day care of your puppy. Everyone will be excited for the first few days and will want to play with him constantly, but be sure that the puppy is able to settle in as well. Give him a box (preferably a kennel cage) to sleep and nap in, with a warm blanket and some chew toys. You may need to place a ticking clock under the blanket for a few nights — the rhythm helps soothe a lonely pup. Spread plenty of newspapers around, but start housetraining your puppy immediately and consistently.

This is a very basic list, but it will hold you for the first few days that you have your puppy. Meantime, collect as much information about raising a dog as you can, and prepare yourself for a lifestyle change that, while sometimes challenging, can be immensely rewarding.

Strange BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

• Shakespeare was a great writer, but only a second-rate actor. He probably would never have played the lead role in any of his plays.

• The world's most expensive food is saffron — it's even more valuable than gold. Saffron costs about $2,000 per ounce. The high price is due to the tedious process of harvesting it. Saffron comes from the inside of purple crocuses. To make a pound of saffron, 70,000 to 250,000 crocus stigmas must be hand collected.

• The word "bedlam" comes to us from St. Bethlehem's Hospital of 18th-century London, an insane asylum.

• If a hummingbird were the size of a human, it would need to eat the equivalent of 171 pounds of hamburger a day to consume enough calories.

• Education isn't everything. Abraham Lincoln, one of the most admired and well-respected presidents of the United States, never attended college.

• The Biblical name "Esau" means "hairy."

• How do you feel about worms? In your house? Proponents of composting assert that if all the residents of New York City kept 2 pounds of worms in their homes, the country's trash problem could be reduced by 100 landfills. My source doesn't mention where the 2 pounds of worms should be kept.

• At one time, fishing and kissing were considered unlucky activities to participate in on a Friday.

• The Julia Creek dunnart, an Australian marsupial, is the size of a grain of rice when it is born. And it breathes through its skin.

• Appropriately, the word "hippopotomonstrosesquipedalian" means "of or pertaining to very, very long words."

Extra MSP Troopers To Be On Patrol During Summer Weekends

As cyberspace racers roared around the track, Maryland State Police promised extra troopers every weekend and increased efforts to keep summer highways safe by targeting speeders, aggressive drivers, and drunken drivers.

Colonel David B. Mitchell has announced that as a result of federal grants, extra troopers would be on patrol every weekend this summer. He made the announcement outside the Baltimore Washington Marriott, where NASCAR racers from Virtual Motor Sports — Like Real Racing — were holding a competition convention. Mitchell reminded motorists that aggressive driving should be kept on the track and not on Maryland roads.

"The heat is up — the heat is on," Mitchell said. "Maryland summers mean more motorists on our roads and more risk to our citizens from drivers who disobey our traffic laws. With extra troopers every weekend, we will be targeting those who exceed the speed limit, drive aggressively, drive drunk, or fail to buckle up."

Mitchell announced the start of Operation Rocket Roundup II, an enforcement effort aimed at aggressive drivers of racing motorcycles. He said that although last year's effort was successful, three drivers have already been killed in the past few weeks, and the need for another enforcement campaign is obvious.

Aggressive drivers of any type of vehicle continue to be a target for MSP enforcement. Mitchell reminded motorists they can help by safely using their cell phone to report unsafe drivers. By dialing #-7-7, the caller will be connected to the closest state police barracks and can report the description and direction of travel of the aggressive driver.

State police will also be part of the America Buckles Children Mobilization, a nationwide child safety seat and seat belt initiative that starts later this month. Troopers across the state will be conducting child safety seat checks and public education about the importance of securing children in vehicles. Colonel Mitchell announced that trained safety seat technicians are available at all 23 MSP barracks and at headquarters. Parents can stop by to ensure their safety seat is correctly installed.

Troopers will be a part of the Operation CARE — Combined Accident Reduction Effort — again this year. This holiday weekend enforcement program involves state police departments from Maine to Florida working together to increase enforcement during heavy travel periods.

Colonel Mitchell also warned that troopers may not always be easily identifiable. The Maryland State Police Operation Stealth program will use covert vehicles driving the highways to identify aggressive drivers. Once the trooper driving the "stealth" vehicle identifies a violator, he or she will radio to a uniformed trooper to make the traffic stop.

"The goal of the extra troopers and summer enforcement programs is to save lives and not to see how many tickets can be written," he said. State police will be focusing enforcement in areas of specific need, in an effort to "manage for results." Mitchell noted that traffic fatalities have been reduced in recent years, and he wants that trend to continue.

A Maryland State Police traffic safety reminder includes the following:

- Make sure your vehicle is in good condition.
- Check fluid levels, tire pressure, and your spare tire.
- Carry a cellular phone with you if possible.
- If you become disabled or see a disabled motorist, call MSP on #-7-7.

TOP SPONSORS YOUTH RALLY - Mountain Top Youth For Christ, as well as several other area churches, will be sponsoring "Impact 2001," a youth rally being held Friday, May 25, at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, located along Accident-Bittinger Road. It will begin at 6 p.m. and will include games, door prizes, skits, and human videos (skits to music). Special guest speaker Ruth Hornberger, pictured above, of eastern Pennsylvania, will also be present to talk about her missionary work in Kenya. She now works in inner-city Baltimore with missionary outreach groups. Door prizes will also be available, including a CD player provided at cost by Hot Point TV and Appliances. Admission is free, and all area youth from grades 6 through 12 are encouraged to attend.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN LEARNING PROJECT — Students at Route 40 Elementary School recently participated in a service learning project given by Rocky Gap State Park naturalist Kevin Dunn and Scales and Tales coordinator Adam Rutz. The project, organized by two Frostburg State University interns, gave students a chance to learn about the animals in their area, as well as safety around animals. They also made an activity booklet that was donated to Rocky Gap State Park. Pictured above, back row, left to right, are Rutz, FSU Interns Cory Van Dyk and Emily Carey, and Dunn. In the middle row are the fourth graders who designed the cover and learning activities for the booklet, and seated are the kindergartners who colored the cover.

Oakland Man Handed Jail Term For CDS

An Oakland man was handed a jail sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding.

James Eugene Reed, 19, was handed a six-month sentence, all but 40 days of which were suspended, fined $200, and placed on 18 months of supervised probation by Judge Ralph M. Burnett who presided over the marijuana possession hearing. Reed's March arrest by Maryland State Police troopers came after the execution of a search and seizure warrant at his Green Street residence resulted in the recovery of 17 bags of marijuana and numerous items of associated drug paraphernalia. Additional charges of paraphernalia possession and possession of suspected Ketamine were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other district court news, Joshua Conners DeBarr of Dellslow, W.Va., received a 30-day jail term after he pleaded guilty to LSD possession. DeBarr, 19, was also fined $100 in connection with the conviction, which resulted from his January arrest by state troopers in the wake of a traffic stop along Interstate 68 west of Friendsville. A passenger in the vehicle, DeBarr was charged after a white piece of cardboard laced with the drug was found in a bag of his.

Gary Michael Thomas, 49, Oakland, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but seven days of which were suspended, a $100 fine, and one year of supervised probation. The Garrett County Narcotics Task Force arrested Thomas in the wake of a January traffic stop along Maryland Highway in Oakland. A subsequent vehicle search uncovered a smoking device bearing burnt marijuana residue, and an unlabeled prescription bottle containing two different pills. Additional charges of possession of Phentermine, Diethylpropion, and drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

Todd Allen Tasker, 19, Swanton, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which were suspended, and one year of supervised probation. Oakland police officers jailed Tasker in January at the request of a clerk at the Oakland BFS convenience store, who had witnessed him fill his pockets with cigarettes. She asked him to empty his pockets, and he pulled out a total of 17 packs of cigarettes.

B.J. King, 21, Kitzmiller, was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, a $300 fine, six months' unsupervised probation, and 60 hours of community service after he pleaded guilty to making a false entry in the public record. King's February arrest by Natural Resources Police officers came after an investigation of a December incident when he killed a deer on the West Virginia side of Jennings Randolph Lake while spotlighting. He then admitted to transporting the carcass across the state line to check it in as a legally killed deer taken in Maryland. DNR check tag records and hunting kill computer entries are classified as part of the public record.

James Bryant Thomas, 30, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling in connection with marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession charges. His November arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies stemmed from a search of a Sang Run Road residence that took place six months earlier in May. After that search uncovered bagged and loose marijuana, a smoking device, a pipe, and rolling papers in the home, information was received that the materials allegedly belonged to Thomas, who had been living at the home intermittently.

Rhoda Lee Wiles, 24, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling on a second degree assault charge. She had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in December for allegedly assaulting her boyfriend during a domestic altercation at their apartment.

Kenneth Brown, 40, Baltimore, was not prosecuted on charges of felony theft, unlawful taking of a motor vehicle, and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle that had resulted from his February arrest by the Baltimore City Police. That investigation concluded that Brown, who had been released from the Western Maryland Correctional Institution in Cumberland in November, allegedly stole a Ford Explorer, a portable telephone handset, and a digital camcorder from the residence of a Frostburg (Garrett County) acquaintance the day after his release from prison.

After this April 24 district court hearing, Brown allegedly stole a parked car from its South Second Street location and drove it to Baltimore. He was arrested on vehicle theft charges several days later, and another local court appearance is pending.

Larry Dean Wilt, 21, Terra Alta, W.Va., was not prosecuted on charges of felony theft, misdemeanor theft, forgery, and uttering that stemmed from his April arrest by sheriff's deputies. Wilt had reportedly cashed a Mettiki Coal Company paycheck that had been mistakenly issued to him, allegedly with the knowledge that the check was in error.

DWI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) hearings took place in district court recently.

Ronald Dewain Smith, 36, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed 18 months in jail, an additional 18-month suspended sentence, and three years of supervised probation. The conviction also drew a guilty verdict on a violation of a previous DWI probation agreement, and an additional four months was added to Smith's jail time.

Scott Daniel Doolan, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $400, handed a 60-day sentence of which all but seven days were suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation. That conviction netted Doolan a guilty verdict on a violation of a previous DWI probation agreement, which was revoked with the imposition of an additional seven-day sentence.

George Robert Layman, 50, Md., was sentenced following a DWI conviction, and received a 90-day jail term, all but seven days of which were suspended, a $255 fine, two years' supervised probation, and 50 hours of community service.

Joy Marie Stewart, 30, Pa., was sentenced following a DWI hearing, and was handed a probation before judgment ruling along with 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 60 hours of community service.

School Bus Violation

James Alfred Abbott, 30, W.Va., entered a "not guilty" plea to passing a stopped school bus operating flashing red signals. He was convicted nonetheless, and fined $100 with an order to complete 10 hours of community service.

Pleasant View Hosting Jews For Jesus Program

Pleasant View Baptist Church has slated a program titled "Christ in the Passover" by a representative of the evangelistic organization Jews for Jesus, for 10:15 a.m. Sunday, May 20, at the church. The program is open to the public, and the speaker, Bryon Dorn of Washington, D.C., will take questions from the audience after his presentation.

The focus of Dorn's "Christ in the Passover" presentation will entail an examination of Jewish roots of Christianity, focusing on the commonalities between the Jewish Passover feast and Jesus' Last Supper. Using a visual display of traditional Passover accouterments, Dorn will attempt to enhance Christian understanding and appreciation of the Jewish background of the Christian communion. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the redemptive aspect of the crucifixion at Calvary.

The program will include a demonstration of a table set in the traditional Jewish Passover manner, including representative foods which are explained. The ceremonial seder plate, the three-compartment pouch in which the matzo (unleavened bread) is kept, as well of the traditional cup of Elijah will be presented, and the christological significance of each will be explained. Jews for Jesus has presented this demonstration in over 15,000 churches since 1956.

Pleasant View Baptist Church is located along Garrett Highway, two miles south of Oakland. For further information persons may call the pastor, Rev. Walter Weeks, at the church office at 301-334-8515.

Oakland Man Not Guilty Of Drug Charge

An Oakland man was exonerated of a drug charge during a Garrett County District Court hearing recently when part of the evidence being used against him was ruled inadmissable in court.

Michael Paul Liller, 24, had been arrested for marijuana possession after a February traffic stop along Garrett Highway at Monte Vista Road. A marijuana possession charge was levied against him when the arresting deputy located a suspected marijuana cigarette in his pocket; however, the defense attorney argued that proper consent for the search was never obtained, nor did probable cause or reasonable suspicion of a potential crime exist to undertake a search without Liller's consent.

Based on that argument, Judge Ralph Burnett's final verdict was that Liller was "not guilty" of possession of marijuana.

ACCIDENT NATIVE STUDIES IN ITALY — Rachel Leverenz, a college junior majoring in fine arts with a concentration in art history at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., recently returned from a spring semester of studies in Italy. Art history and architecture were the chief fields explored group of 400 American and Canadian students studying in Florence through Syracuse University's (N.Y.) Division of International Programs Abroad. The semester included numerous field trips to famous sites at Venice, Assisi, and Siena, as well as Rome, where she is shown above, at left, with a classmate at the ancient Colosseum, and Pisa, where she is shown, at right, with a classmate at the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Leverenz's studies were enhanced by her immersion in the culture in microcosm as she carried out the daily routines of life with her Italian host family. "I realized quite early [in Italy] that the backbone of Italian art is the undeniable passion for life of the Italian people and the land itself. By being immersed in the true context of this art, I was finally able to understand the theme of Renaissance achievements as an earnest dedication to high human standards and a high level of expression. My previous textbook understanding of this theme did not prepare me for even my first week of on-site lectures." This summer Leverenz will be serving as an intern in the publications department of the National Museum of Women in the Arts, located in Washington, D.C. A graduate of Northern High School, Leverenz is the daughter of Jann and Neil Leverenz.

Miss Carter and Mr. McNulty Exchange Vows In November

Tami Carol Carter and Michael Patrick McNulty were united in marriage on November 11, 2000. The double-ring ceremony took place at Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Annandale, Va., at 2 p.m., with Father Patrick Holroyd officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Patricia Carter, Oakland, and John A. Carter, Bruceton Mills, W.Va. She is the granddaughter of Bernadette Bittinger and the late Walter E. Bittinger, Deer Park. The groom is the son of Charles and Barbara McNulty, Alexandria, Va.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a matte satin sleeveless white gown with matching wrap by Vera Wang. The scoop neckline was accented with embroidered trim with matching design in the back. The A-line skirt was trimmed at the bottom with matching embroidery, which extended to the length of the gown. The chapel length train was accented with a row of antique buttons that extended from the scoop backline to the full length of the train. The matching fingertip veil was trimmed with pearls and a sheer layer of tulle. The groom wore a three-quarter length black jacket accented with buttons and a white shirt and vest by Ralph Lauren.

The bride carried a bouquet of 12 creme colored Virginia roses hand-tied with a white satin ribbon. Freesia and white wildflowers accented the roses.

Serving as matron of honor was Karli (Crittenden) Austinson, long-time friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Melissa Corley, Amy Giffin, Dawn Moore, and Lisa Garfinkel, college friends and sorority sisters of the bride. Cousin of the bride, Grace Reckart, served as flower girl.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids, wearing sleeveless champagne floor length dresses with matching wraps, carried small bouquets of Virginia roses, hand-tied with sheer cream ribbon. The flower girl wore a satin floor length gown with champagne accents and antique buttons extending down the back to the full length of the dress. She carried a pomander ball of Virginia tea roses, suspended by a sheer satin ribbon.

Serving as best man was Frank McNulty, brother of the groom. Ushers and groomsmen included John E. Carter, brother of the bride; Thomas and John McNulty, brothers of the groom; and Capt. Brad Felling and Tom Sowa, friends of the groom. The groom and ushers wore matching boutonnieres of Virginia roses accented with greenery.

Flowers on the altar were given in memory of the bride and groom's grandparents and in memory of Debra Heselbach, godmother and cousin of the bride.

Flute, piano, and violin music provided the processional pieces for "Canon in D" and for "The Wedding Song" during the lighting of the unity candle. Long stem white roses were given to the mothers following the exchanging of vows and the blessing of rings. The bride and groom exited down the aisle to music of Handel, titled "Hornpipe."

Scripture readings were read by Angel Simms, long time friend of the bride, and Cathy McNulty, sister of the groom. "The Irish Wedding Blessing" was read at the conclusion of the service by Melanie McNulty, sister of the groom.

An antique white Rolls Royce escorted the newlyweds to the reception at Westwood Country Club in Vienna, Va. A black stretch limousine provided transportation for the bridal party and immediate family during the day's festivities. Guests enjoyed a cocktail hour with hors d'oeuvres and a cheese and vegetable buffet table.

The dinner blessing was read by Cathy McNulty, and guests enjoyed a sit down dinner and an evening of music and dancing.

The four-tier white wedding cake was decorated with white icing flowers and ribbon designs in a fondant icing style. The four layers had a white chocolate mousse filling topped with white fondant icing. The cake was provided by the caterers of Westwood Country Club.

Guests also enjoyed a groom's cake, handmade and decorated by Megan Garnett, friend of the groom. The DJ and videography services were provided by the Pros of Washington, D.C. Wedding photos and outdoor snapshots were provided by Walker Photography, Vienna, Va.

An engagement party was held in May at the home of Melissa Corley, friend of the bride, Rockville. Immediate family and friends were in attendance. A bridal shower was hosted by Karli Austinson and Angel Simms along with the bridesmaids in October, at a hotel in Frederick. Guests enjoyed a buffet lunch and desserts.

Over Half Of Maryland's Corn Crop Planted

The dry weather trend continues in Maryland as farmers spent 6.8 suitable days in the fields for the week ending May 13. Maryland state statistician Ray Garibay reports that this weather allowed planting to progress steadily with sweet corn planting 52% complete, 4% higher than the previous week, tomatoes 65% complete, 10% higher than the previous week, and green pea planting virtually complete.

Field corn is currently 68% planted, 28% higher than the previous week, and 10% ahead of the five-year average. While the dry conditions have contributed to the increase in corn planted, some farmers may have to delay further planting in non-irrigated fields until they receive rain.

Fruit blooms for apples and peaches are nearing completion. Strawberries are 82% bloomed, running 10% behind last year's crop and 1% behind the five-year average. Strawberry harvest has begun in some areas with 3% of the crop harvested.

Hay supplies are reported in adequate condition for the most part. Hay supplies are rated 1% very short, 6% short, 89% adequate, and 4% surplus. The dry conditions experienced recently are ideal for cutting hay. However, alfalfa and grass yields are reduced in many areas due to lack of moisture.

Maryland's crop progress for the week ending May 13, listing the item and percentages for this week, last week, last year, and the five-year average, in that order, follows.

Small grain development: barley, headed 88, 71, 91, 90; rye, headed 70, 67, 91, 82; winter wheat, headed 40, 14, 79, 59.

Planting progress: cantaloupes 57, 32, 57, 60; cucumbers 34, 24, 35, 35; field corn 68, 40, 63, 58; lima beans 10, 5, 9, 11; snap beans 22, 8, 18, 33; soybeans 11, 8, 8, 6; sweet corn 52, 48, 53, 55; tomatoes 65, 55, 49, 58; watermelons 36, 19, 30, 46.

Fruit crops: strawberries, bloomed 82, 75, 92, 83; strawberries, harvested 3, --, 12, 11.

Hay harvested: other hay, 1st cutting 14, 7, 16, 15; alfalfa, 1st cutting 16, 6, 30, 13.

Soil moisture condition for the week ending May 13, listing percentages for very short, short, adequate, and surplus, in that order, is: topsoil moisture 24, 61, 15, 0; topsoil (2000) 2, 19, 75, 4; subsoil moisture 7, 42, 51, 0; subsoil (2000) 1, 12, 81, 6.

House/Senate Committee Increases Proposed Ag Budget

A House/Senate conference committee working on Congress's budget resolution mustered another increase in spending that can be used for emergency farm programs this year and for a new farm bill that would start in 2003, according to a source close to the budget negotiations.

The nonbinding budget resolution now includes a additional $5.5 billion for emergency spending on farm programs that can be added to existing program payments in the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. Under a bipartisan amendment sponsored by Senator Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa), the Senate had added $5 billion to the budget baseline for farm programs.

The conference committee kept the Senate's budget resolution goal of adding $7.35 billion to farm program spending next year. But, it added $1 billion a year or more to the Grassley amendment for the five years of the next farm bill, 2003-2007. The budget baseline for farm programs was increased by $8.35 billion for 2003-2005.

Under the Grassley amendment, it would have increased by $7.35 billion a year. In the last two years of the next farm bill, $7.85 billion a year would be available. That's up from $6.35 billion for those years as passed by the Senate.

The increases still fall short of some $9 billion requested by many farm and commodity groups for this year and an added $12 billion a year for the following ten years. Over the past three years Congress has added about $9 billion a year in emergency spending, but some in Congress have been reluctant to add that much right now, before crop yields and prices are known.

Exactly how the additional money is spent will depend on the farm bill that eventually comes out of Congress.

"We think you can write a pretty good bill for this kind of money," the Congressional staffer said.

Manure Transport Project Expanded

Maryland's Manure Transport Project has been expanded to help all types of animal operations cover the costs of transporting excess manure off their farms. The project provides farmers with cost-share assistance of up to $20 per ton to help pay for costs associated with moving manure away from poultry, dairy, swine, and other animal operations.

Animal producers with high soil phosphorus levels or insufficient land to apply manure may apply. Receiving or sending farms may be eligible, and a nutrient management plan is required.

The Transport Project is administered through the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share (MACS) Program. To apply, farmers should contact their local soil conservation district or call the Maryland Department of Agriculture toll free at 1-877-7MANURE.

Maryland Ag Statistics Issues Monthly Report

Prospective Plantings

Maryland producers are ezpected to plant 490,000 acres of corn for the 2001 crop year, up 2% from last year's 480,000 acres, and 4% from 1999's 470,000 acres. The five-year average for corn planted acres comes to almost 485,000 acres. The banner year in the last five years was 1997 with 510,000 acres of corn planted.

The five-year average for soybean planting totals close to 510,000 acres. If realized, this year's plantings will be the largest soybeans acreage since 1995 when 550,000 acres were also planted.

For small grains, winter wheat planting is estimated at 190,000 acres, unchanged from the December seeding forecast and down 30,000 acres from last year. Barley planted acreage remains at 55,000 acres, no change from last year. For the 2001 crop year, sorghum planting intentions are forecast at 7,000 acres, a 30% decrease from last year's estimate of 10,000 acres.

All hay harvested acres are forecast at 240,000, up 5,000 acres from last year's final estimate of 235,000 acres.

Ranking of Major Factors that Influence Forage Quality

Six major factors affecting forage quality (not yield), ranked by their impact on forage quality, include: 1) maturity, 2) crop species, 3) harvest and storage, 4) environment, 5) soil fertility, and 6) variety. The relative importance of each of these factors are described below.

1) Maturity (harvest date). Maturity is the most important factor affecting forage quality. Forage quality is never static; plants continually change in forage quality as they mature. As plant cell wall content increases, indigestible lignin accumulates. In fact, forage plant maturity changes so rapidly that it is possible to measure significant declines in forage quality every two or three days.

2) Crop species. Differences in forage quality between grasses and legumes can be very large. The protein content of legumes is typically much higher than that of grasses, and legume fiber tends to digest faster than grass fiber, allowing the ruminant to eat more of the legume.

3) Harvest and storage. Improper harvest techniques can seriously reduce forage quality, primarily through the loss of leaves. Storing a hay crop at an incorrect moisture content, or improper ensiling of a forage crop, can dramatically lower its quality.

4) Environment (climate). Moisture, temperature, and the amount of sunlight influence forage quality. Rain damage is very destructive to forage quality. When bad weather delays harvesting, the forage crop becomes more mature and hence lower in quality. High temperatures may increase lignin accumulation and decrease quality, but drought stress may actually benefit quality by delaying maturity.

5) Soil fertility. Soil fertility affects forage yields much more than it does quality. While it is possible to produce high quality forage on poor, unproductive soils, it is generally very difficult to produce high yields of high quality forage with an unproductive soil resource. Proper soil phosphorus (P) and potassium (K) levels help to keep desirable legumes in a mixed seeding and also reduce weed problems. It is necessary to balance soil fertility to avoid mineral imbalances in ruminants. Low soil fertility, as well as very high fertility, has resulted in reduced forage quality.

6) Variety (cultivar). After decades of breeding foraged for yield and persistence, attention has recently been focused on developing or identifying varieties with improved quality. Variety or cultivar can affect forage quality, but not as greatly as the other five factors. In alfalfa, selection for improved quality is underway by most commercial companies, and several U.S. firms have initiated selection in corn silage hybrids for improved forage quality.

Other factors affecting forage quality. Several lesser factors also can influence forage quality. Weeds can negatively affect quality, especially in the case of noxious weeds. Insect pests can lower forage quality, particularly if they cause significant leaf loss. Plant diseases can affect quality when they result in a shift in the species present in the field and when they promote leaf senescence. Insects and diseases generally have their greatest impact on yield and persistence of forages.

Sorghum & Sudangrass Establishment

Summer annuals should be planted from two weeks after corn until the end of June. Soil temperatures should be at least 60 degrees F. Seedings may be made as late as July 15 in emergency situations, but yields will be reduced because of limited moisture in the summer and cool temperatures during the fall. When utilizing any of the summer annual crops in a planned rotational grazing situation, two seedings should be made about three weeks apart. This will stagger the maturities and make grazing management easier.

Forage and grain sorghum planted for forage should be planted in rows to facilitate harvest and minimize lodging. Avoid planting the sorghums too deeply as emergence problems may occur when planted deeper than one inch in most Garrett County soils. Also, avoid seeding rates above 10-12 pounds per acre since they can increase the risk of lodging, particularly with the tall forage sorghum types. Corn planters work well for planting sorghum provided the appropriate plates or feed cups are used to achieve the desired seeding rates. Sorghum can be planted using any tillage system provided adequate weed control can be achieved.

Fewer herbicides are labeled for grain and forage sorghum than corn so select fields where weeds can be controlled with labeled herbicides. When using Lasso or Dual, be sure to use seed that has been treated with the appropriate safener. When planting after a failed corn crop, be sure that the herbicides used on the corn are labeled for sorghum.

The other summer-annual species can be broadcast seeded and cultipacked or seeded with a grain drill into a well-prepared seed bed. A firm, well-prepared seedbed is best, however, acceptable stands may be established without tillage using no-till drills. Solid seedings result in finer and shorter plants, which are desirable for silage and grazing. Wider row spacings (20 to 36 inches) allow for cultivation and results in better regrowth and more uniform production throughout the season. Narrow rows provide intense competition and herbicides are rarely necessary when seeded in this fashion. Only a few herbicides are labeled for these summer-annual crops so weed control should be considered carefully in selecting a row spacing. Row spacing itself, however, has relatively little effect on total forage production. Seeding rates vary depending on seeding method and anticipated moisture conditions.

Plant sudangrass, sorghum-sudangrass hybrids, and millets 1 inch deep in medium to heavy soils and 1 1/2 inches deep on sandy soils. If the soil is dry and rain is not anticipated before seedling emergence, cultipack the seedbed to maximize seed-to-soil contact and moisture conservation.

Newspaper Mulch for the Garden

Newspapers and grocery store tabloids can be used as a mulch in the garden. Four or five (4 or 5) layers of paper can be laid around plants and anchored down with a shovelful of soil or rocks/bricks/stones on the corner. The paper will decompose throughout the season. Additional layers may need to be added to prevent weeds from emerging. Avoid walking on the paper, especially after a rain or soaking.

Wet-to-dry paper becomes brittle and tears easily. Paper remains can be rototilled in the garden after the end of the growing season.

Shredded newspaper can also be used. Apply the shredded paper in three to four (3 to 4) inch depths. Newsprint with colored pictures can be used with little problems. AVOID glossy colored paper inserts, colored Sunday comics, or sections with heavy colored printing. Chemicals and heavy metals such as lead and cadmium used in the colored printing process can leach into the soil and may cause toxic problems with plants or their uptake.

Payments Available For Grazed Small Grain Crops

Producers with Production Flexibility Contracts (PFC's) under the 7-year AMTA Program, who plant small grains (wheat, barley, and oats) may receive payments on these 2001 crops for grazing them.

Graze-Out payments are available to producers who are otherwise eligible for Commodity Loans and Loan Deficiency Payments (LDP's). The 2001 small grain crop must be grazed by livestock. The producer must not harvest the same crop for grain or by other methods on the same acreage.

Graze-Out payments are subject to the same basic eligibility requirements as Commodity Loans and LDP's.

The application period for Graze-Out began for wheat on April 20, and begins on May 25 for barley and oats. The ending date is August 31. There are no late-filed provisions for this program.

Eligible acres for Graze-Out purposes is any acreage of wheat, barley, or oats that is planted on a farm having a PFC, is certified on a 2001 Crop Acreage Report (FSA-578) as intended for grazing only, and is not harvested by any means other than grazing. Any acreage certified as grain is not eligible for Graze-Out and any acreage certified for grazing is not eligible for disaster benefits in case of a natural disaster.

Producers must request Graze-Out payments in the county FSA office that maintains their farm records. The application for payment is filed on Form CCC-633 Grazing by Farm Serial Number. Producers whose farm records are not established in an FSA office should visit the FSA office serving the county in which they live.

Producers may obtain Form CCC-633 Grazing from FSA in person, by mail, by telephone, by fax, or from the Internet at www.fsa.usda.gov/dafp/psd.

Producers requesting a Graze-Out payment shall maintain records for a period of three years after the date of the payment to document that eligibility requirements are met.

For more information on Graze-Out or to file an application for payment, please visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Shopping Plaza or telephone 304-329-1923. The FSA fax number is 304-329-3056.

Maryland DIA Joins Producers To Introduce Dairy Compact Legislation

Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA) and other dairy producer groups joined 12 members of Congress to introduce "The Dairy Consumers and Producers Protection Act of 2001." The east lawn of the U.S. Capitol was the scene of a rally and press conference promoting the legislation. The bill secures participation for regional dairy compacts in states that have already passed Compact legislation. It also extends the current Northeast Regional Dairy Compact, and creates a similar alliance for southeastern states. By law, no state can participate until authorized by the U.S. Congress. Maryland's General Assembly approved Compact participation for Maryland dairy producers in April 1998.

Led by the bill's main sponsors, U.S. Reps. Asa Hutchinson (R-Ark.) and Bob Etheridge (D-N.C.), members praised the success of the Northeast Dairy Compact and pledged to expand its reach to the Mid-Atlantic and Southeast regions. The six New England states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine have maintained an official dairy compact for the past three years. If approved by Congress, Maryland would join Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York state to round out a northeast regional marketing alliance.

"I sensed from the crowd a real spirit of unity and commitment to pass compacts this year," said MDIA president Myron Wilhide of Detour (Carroll County). "Make no mistake about it, we will encounter stiff opposition from some well-financed groups. But dairy producers all along the Eastern Seaboard are equal to the task. Given the considerable support that we received in the previous session of Congress, I am confident the momentum for dairy compacts will continue to increase."

Many of the compact's benefits, such as regional price stabilization, local marketing incentives, and zero operating costs to state and federal governments, were touted by a bipartisan group of representatives. Among those members joining Hutchinson and Etheridge were Reps. John McHugh (R-N.Y.), John Baldacci (D-Maine), Eva Clayton (D-N.C.), Don Sherwood (R-Pa.), Maurice Hinchey (D-N.Y.), Nancy Johnson (R-Conn.), Roy Blunt (R-Mo.), and Bernard Sanders (Independent-Vt.).

"One of the prime tenets of the new administration is the concept of devolving power back to the states," said a spirited Rep. Sanders. "Well, dairy compacts do just that. They promote stable production prices and regional marketing alliances for producers, while providing consumers with local outlets for fresh fluid milk. Without independent dairy producers, we would be at the mercy of large-scale corporate farms with unimpeded power to set arbitrary prices."

Since the mid 1980s, many dairy farms have received below market value for their products, leading to a sharp reduction in the number of independently owned facilities. This new legislation allows the formation of regional interstate compact commissions to supplement federally mandated minimum milk prices paid to farmers. The commissions, composed of producer and consumer representatives from participating states, would be funded entirely by industry contributions and subject to federal review.

"We need dairy compacts to help reverse the decline of independent farm operations," says Wilhide. Passage of dairy compact legislation has been and will remain a top priority for MDIA in the months ahead. Keeping producers in business is essential for the economic viability of small businesses in many towns and communities, not to mention the importance of maintaining consumer access and preserving open space lands. With increasing demands for nutritious milk products both at home and abroad, it is imperative that we support those who sustain this vital industry."

Several court decisions have already ruled dairy compacts constitutional. By allowing contiguous states to join in regional market alliances for a set timeframe, dairy compacts operate at no government expense, provide no subsidies to farmers, and impose no regional barriers to commerce. The Dairy Producers and Consumers Protection Act has 150 cosponsors, including all eight of Maryland's House members. The measure will be referred to the House Judiciary Committee for consideration. A concurrent measure in the Senate is expected shortly.

Fifth Annual "Peaceful" Festival For Friends Earns Over $3,500

NIXON MALCOLM AND EMILY THOMAS

The fifth annual Festival for Friends, a fund-raising event in honor of two local children's birthdays, was held on April 22 at the McHenry House (the use of which was donated by Wisp Resort). This year's party had a 1960's "peace and love" theme, with attenders dressed in the styles of that decade.

The Peace, Love, and Festival for Friends was held in honor of Emily Thomas and Nixon Malcolm, children of Brenda Thomas and Lori Malcolm. Thomas and Malcolm coordinate the event each year to be a fund-raiser for children's charities, rather than hosting traditional birthday parties for Emily and Nixon. The proceeds from the 2001 party are being distributed among three charities: Grant-a-Wish Foundation, Shriner's Children's Hospital, and The Republican newspaper's Warm the Children fund.

The Festival for Friends this year was dedicated in memory of the late Crystal Rounds, a veteran Festival For Friends volunteer.

With 142 guests in attendance, the festival raised over $3,500 for the selected charities. In addition to several games played for $.25 per turn, a series of raffle events for items donated by local area businesses were also conducted. The Grant-a-Wish Foundation donated an ocean vacation package for one raffle, as well as passes to the National Aquarium in Baltimore. Proceeds from these additional raffle items help support the Festival for Friends and the Grant-a-Wish Mountain Retreat Program at Deep Creek Lake.

Grant-a-Wish Foundation representative Audrey Braude, special events coordinator, and other GAW individuals were on hand to help out. Eric Wotring, Scott Lewis, Mark Lewis, Lou Marks, and Rob Sebold entertained as Ali Ghan Shriner clowns, handing out balloon sculptures to the children. Warm the Children was also represented at the festival by Mary McEwen, campaign coordinator.

In addition to the carnival games and raffles, Funky Face Painting was done by Geri Baumann, Groovy Photos by Deb Taylor, and Teeny Bopper Tattoos by Aaron Colebank. Hip Hair Wrapping was handled by stylists Brandi Rounds, Carrie Colebank, and Tosha Feaster.

A Beanie Babies™ Walk (similar to a cake walk) was conducted all afternoon by Jenny McNally. Lane Duda performed in the Far Out Cafe with songs from the 60's era, and the 60's Trivia Game had numerous adult participants who were quizzed on their knowledge of the baby boomer generation by Kim DeGiovanni and Stacy Sines.

Malcolm and Thomas attributed the success of the event to the many volunteers who offered their help for the Festival for Friends. In addition to those already mentioned, other volunteers were Alice Sisler, Natalie Newhall, Mike DeGiovanni, Emily Bowman, Todd Thomas, Eric Malcolm, Shari Riggleman, Michelle Caldwell, Scott Pusateri, Tim Glotfelty, Daniel Sisler, Bert and Peggy Thomas, Bobbi McCrobie, Barbi Sisler, Carla Corbin, and others.

Over the course of five years, the Festival for Friends has raised over $10,000 for children's charities. The donations to Grant-a-Wish have been used to boost a local benefit of the program, the GAW Mountain Retreat. This is one of eight programs offered by GAW. The Deep Creek program is designed to give families a temporary escape from the stresses of routine medical treatments their children are experiencing. Through partnerships with local vacation home owners, GAW coordinates with Brenda Thomas to provide accommodations for families living within driving distance of the Deep Creek Lake area. Each family is presented with a "welcome basket" filled with gift certificates and complimentary passes to local restaurants and attractions, all donated by local businesses and individuals. Organizers of the Festival for Friends have set a goal to purchase a home on or near the lake for the mountain retreat respite program. Malcolm and Thomas reported that the effort to meet the goal is well under way.

GROOVY MOMS — The Peace, Love, and Festival for Friends was hosted again by two busy local women who both say they are moms first. Lori Malcolm (left) and Brenda Thomas work for months, along with their families and friends, to coordinate a spring bash to celebrate the birthdays of their children. The proceeds always benefit charities for children. Each year the party has grown, with this year's final total reaching over $3,500. Shown below are guests participating in the popular Beanie Babies™ Walk, which was run by MC Jenny McNally.

PEACE, LOVE, AND FUN — Guests at the Festival for Friends were entertained in a number of ways throughout the afternoon, with activities ranging from carnival games to trivia contests. Refreshments including pizza, snacks, and sweets were there for the taking, and clowns milled about offering their balloons and, as shown below, their hugs. Volunteer Geri Baumann (aunt of party honoree Nixon Malcolm) is pictured above as she plies her face painting talent on guest Lex Ozias. All photos provided by Lori Malcolm.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The annual meeting of the lot owners of the Bittinger Cemetery will be held Monday, May 28, at 11:30 a.m. at the Bittinger fire hall for the election of board members and other business. All lot owners are urged to attend. For anyone who will attend it, I wish you would mention a suggestion from me. I think it would be a great idea to place along the bank between the cemetery and the road (since it is too steep to mow anyway) a community perennial garden, with everyone contributing a few shovels of daffodils, tulips, day lilies, etc. It might be possible that Emmanuel Youth Group members would do the digging.

It seems like last week was a blur since my family and I tried to cram lots of things into a short time because my uncle and aunt, Dr. Ralph and Betty Hummel, Olympia, Wash., were in for a week's visit. Of course, Betty's sister, Helen Englar of Westminster, was up to spend as much time as possible with her sister. Betty and Helen lunched with their cousins, Rhea Hetrick of Salisbury, Pa., and Harriett Buckel at Penn Alps one day. Ralph was able to catch up with his brother, Ben Hummel, in New Germany and his sister in Cumberland. Of course, they all checked out Courtney Englar's new house in the Cove.

Last weekend happened to be a double celebration of birthdays. Helen's older son Mike, also from Westminster, had one, and Betty and Helen's little brother, Dale Glotfelty, had a birthday on Sunday. We had a busy celebration Saturday evening, starting with dinner at the first chicken barbecue at the Bittinger fire hall, which was one of the biggest "first of the season" ever. They sold out. Was it possible that some of those guys who manned the barbecue pit might have consumed a few of the chickens before it even got inside? Really, though, those guys do a good job cooking some great chicken.

I can't believe that "Pappy" Dale turned 71 years old. I used to think that 70 was old, but he is in no way old. After we pigged out at the barbecue, it was rush home for the Glotfelty tradition of checkerboard birthday cake. All the nieces and nephews and their families were present, along with Courtney Englar, Dot and Russell Teets, and Ruth DiPaolo.

Betty, Helen, and I had a nice time driving around what we used to call the Amish Corner. It is the Foxtown and Beachy Road area, and we gathered up some things for my nature dolls.

If you happened to miss the first barbecue, you still have lots of chances to enjoy them, as they hold them every second Saturday of the month between 4 and 7 p.m. during the summer season. I was delighted to see an old childhood friend there, Hazel Bowser Gaumer from Hagerstown, and one of her daughters and husband. It was good to see my second cousin, Mabel Smith Engle, who was formerly one of my 4-H leaders. She lives over in Pennsylvania and is kept very busy with her church activities, including serving as choir director, Sunday school teacher, and organist. She was an active member of Emmanuel Lutheran when she lived in Bittinger. I also met a couple who live on Marsh Hill Road who said they are big fan of "Notes From Bittinger." Why, I don't know. Although I wrote a lot of names down on a placemat, I have misplaced it, so I don't remember their names, but they previously lived in Pittsburgh. They, like so many people from there, spend most weekends and their free time on the lake.

Talking about former Pittsburgh residents, I enjoy catching up with Nancy and Jerry Geisler of McHenry. We first met on the slopes at the Wisp during our teenage years, and Nancy lived in the next dorm to me at the University of Maryland. We shared many rides back and forth from College Park to Garrett County.

I was thrilled by the quality of the performance of the Northern High Chorus and Band last week. Especially fond of the band, I was not at all surprised that the and members won first place at the Music Festival in Las Vegas on their Southwest trip. I believe they deserve more support as the many organizations and individuals prove to everyone that we are not just "dumb hicks" here in Garrett County. When I used to compete on my horse in jumping competition down-state, people used to tell me they couldn't believe that I was from Garrett County. This also happened when I was in grad school at Frostburg State College when I was the best student in the class.

Garrett County has outstanding schools. Even the Cumberland people used to have that attitude. For example, my sister and my pony club did not give us much respect, but I went much farther than the riders from Frostburg and Cumberland on their expensive, professional horses. I was the only rider from the Cumberland Pony Club that ever competed on the Capitol Regional B Team at the national level. In fact, one year at the National Rally my horse was among only five horses who completed the cross-country course. It was a brutal course. After the cross-country phase the stable area looked like a war hospital, with dozen of riders on crutches and a few horses in body slings. But my dear, Little Joe, breezed over the course like we were on our jump course behind our barn.

Beulah Moon attended the Spring Music Festival at Westmar High School, where her son Jay is the band director.

Ethel Buckel and Beulah Moon attended a Lutheran Brotherhood communicators meeting and dinner at the Polish Pines Restaurant in Keyser, W.Va., on Saturday evening.

Beulah Moon was a Mother's Day dinner guest of her family at the home of Jay Moon, Finzel.

Ruth DiPaolo attended the Garrett County Social Services annual foster parent appreciation dinner Saturday evening at the Elks Lodge, Oakland. She was also guest of her children, Rodney Glotfelty and family, Barry Glotfelty, Carol Bass and family, and Joan Sussman and daughters for Mother's Day dinners and ice cream.

Steve and Mary Ellen Presgraves, Berwyn Heights, Michael and Susan Schreffres and July and Joe, Ferne Beachy, Cindy Stanton, and Sally Poholsky had lunch at the Nemocolin Lodge on Saturday. Joe Schreffres was participating in a junior golf tournament over the weekend at Nemocolin. Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky spent Sunday visiting and watching Joe play in the final day of the tournament.

Hazel and Wayne Gaumer, Hagerstown, Henry and Bonnie Bowser, Harrisonburg, Va., and Cheryl and Andy Nix from Christiansburg, Va., visited with Hazel and Henry's mother, Kathryn Bowser, over the weekend.

Jim Glotfelty treated his wife Donna and his mother-in-law, Ida Reckner, to a Mother's Day dinner at a restaurant near Uniontown on Sunday. Mother's Day visitors of Ida were Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa., and granddaughter Ashlin Gray, Hanover, and Karmen Carey, Frostburg. Lisa and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg, Abby Gray, Hanover, and Cheryl Glotfelty were also recent callers.

Mother's Day weekend visitors of Jim and Donna Glotfelty were Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa., Ashlin Gray, Hanover; Karmen Carey, Frostburg, and Lisa and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg. Tom Glotfelty telephoned his mother with Mother's Day wishes from his Spirit Airline base in Detroit Sunday evening.

Jeff and Sheli Gray and daughters, Hanover, spent several days here following hospitalization in Johnstown of their grandmother, Betty Bittinger, after she suffered a heart attack recently. Betty has now returned to her home and is reportedly doing well. Sheli and daughters remained in the area to assist in the Bittinger home.

MELANOMA KNIGHTS RAFFLE QUILT FOR RELAY — The "Melanoma Knights" Relay for Life team, composed of family members and friends of the late Brian Browning, raffled off a quilt recently to raise funds for the American Cancer Society. The winning ticket was purchased by Broad Ford Elementary School teacher Debbie Hinebaugh, center, who is flanked by Knights team member and cancer survivor Esther Trautwein, left, and Knights team captain Teresa Browning. The quilt, which portrays "a trip around the world," was worth over $700, and the Melanoma Knights raised over $700 on the raffle that will directly benefit the local chapter of the Cancer Society.

May is Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month

Nine Tips to Help Faith Leaders and Their Communities Address Teen Pregnancy

1. Address the need teens have for spiritual fulfillment and help them find answers to the many challenging problems they face.
2. Encourage parents to talk with their children about sex and morality within the context of your faith tradition.
3. Enlist adults in your faith community to help young people.
4. Make sure the children and teenagers in your faith community understand what your faith tradition says about sex, love, and marriage in general and teen pregnancy, in particular. Use clear and unambiguous language.
5. Learn about contemporary youth culture—what your young people are reading, listening to, watching, and doing.
6. Organize supervised group activities for teenagers in your faith community.
7. Reach out to teenagers who are not involved in any faith community.
8. Celebrate achievement and excellence.
9. Reach out to other faith communities, neighborhood organizations, and institutions that work with young people.

If you want to know more about these issues, plan to attend the Family Chat on Saturday, May 19, at GCC Continuing Education Building, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

To register, call 301-334-8122.

Rehabilitation Of Property Can Yield A Refund

Residents or businesses using Maryland's Heritage Structure Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program to renovate historic structures now have the option to take the credit as a refund if they have little or no state tax liability, under recently enacted legislation. Governor Parris N. Glendening signed Senate Bill 523 and House Bill 1109 into law on April 20.

"The Heritage Structure Tax Credit Program is an important Smart Growth and Neighborhood Conservation tool that many communities in Maryland can use," said Governor Glendening. "These changes will make this valuable program more accessible and easier to use in revitalizing Maryland's older and historic buildings and communities."

Maryland already provides a state income tax credit equal to 25 percent of the qualified rehabilitation costs of a certified heritage structure. Certified heritage structures are those:

- listed in the National Register of Historic Places;
- designated as a historic property under local law;
- located in a historic district listed in the National Register or in a local historic district and contributing to the district's significance; or
- located in a certified heritage area and contributing to the area's significance.

With the new amendments, which go into effect July 1, 2001, if earned tax credits exceed the taxpayer's tax liability, a refund may be claimed in the amount of the excess. Organizations exempt from taxation under Section 501 (c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code are also eligible to receive a refund.

More than 50,000 structures in Maryland are thought to be eligible. The Maryland Historical Trust, an agency of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), administers the program and assists potentially eligible communities in gaining access to this revitalization tool.

For a project to qualify for the credit, the rehabilitation expenditure in a 24-month period must exceed $5,000 for owner occupied residential property, and the greater of the adjusted basis of the structure or $5,000 for all other property. The rehabilitation must conform to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and must be certified by the Maryland Historical Trust. Costs for common rehabilitation treatments like new roofs, plumbing, heating and cooling systems, as well as kitchens and bathrooms are tax credit eligible. The credit may also be combined with local and federal incentives for the rehabilitation of historic property.

For more information, or to request a Heritage Preservation Certification Application, persons may contact the Maryland Historical Trust's Office of Preservation Services at 410-514-7627, or visit the Trust's web site at www.marylandhistorical trust.net.

Projects Can Benefit From Tax Credit Prog.

Maryland businesses earning tax credits as a result of supporting nonprofit projects approved by the Neighborhood Partnership Program (NPP) can now broaden their choice of projects, according to the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development. Legislation enacted this year broadens the eligible areas for NPP projects to those located within Priority Funding Areas, which include all incorporated towns and cities, plus additional areas designated by counties and approved by the state Department of Planning.

Previously, projects funded by NPP were limited to Designated Neighborhood Revitalization Areas around Maryland. This change in the program expands the pool of eligible nonprofit recipients. Since the program was authorized in 1996, 130 projects operated by nonprofit organizations have received tax credit allocations.

The Neighborhood Partnership Program, administered by the DHCD, provides $1 million in state tax credits annually to encourage businesses and corporations to become financial partners in community projects operated by nonprofits.

A business may earn state tax credits by contributing as little as $500 or as much as $250,000 in a tax year. Businesses contributing cash or goods to support approved projects under the program earn tax credits equal to 50 percent of their contribution. This state income tax credit is in addition to federal and state charitable deductions, significantly reducing the cost of the contribution. And if the business's tax liability in one year is insufficient to use all of the credits, they may be carried forward for up to five years to reduce future tax liability.

This change makes the program more consistent with other "Smart Growth" programs by supporting and enhancing existing communities, the DHCD says. It will enable more nonprofits operating public purpose projects to participate, and it is expected to attract more business contributors.

For a directory of approved projects that are presently marketing tax credits as well as exact locations of Priority Funding Areas throughout the state, persons may visit DHCD's web site at www.dhcd.state.md.us. and click on Revitalizing Our Neighborhoods. For more information on the Neighborhood Partnership Program, persons may contact Glenda Keel at 410-514-7241.

The Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development works with partners to revitalize communities, encourage home ownership, expand affordable housing opportunities, and enhance Maryland's historic sites and traditions. The Neighborhood Partnership Program is part of DHCD's Division of Neighborhood Revitalization.

GCC SGA READY TO SERVE — These incoming Garrett Community College Student Government Association officers, and their faculty advisor, are making preparations for the 2001-02 school year. A full agenda lies ahead, as they will be planning a number of student activities, allocating funds to campus clubs, and conducting monthly meetings, along with helping plan September's new student orientation event. Seated in the front row, from left, are sophomore class representative Jessica DeWitt and president Lauren Stillwagon. Standing are SGA advisor and coordinator of Student Activities Tim Foster, sophomore representative Vance Slagle, and secretary Gregory Jean-Baptiste. Not pictured is vice president Erica Grillo.

Friendsville Man Sentenced To 14 Years In Jail

John Joseph Hovatter, 41, Friendsville, was sentenced last week by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin to 14 years in the Department of Corrections. Hovatter entered a guilty plea last month to the charge of second degree sexual offense, and at that time Sherbin had ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

Hovatter was charged in October 2000 by Maryland State Police troopers following a domestic altercation in the Friendsville area. The victim in the case told police that she had been at Hovatter's residence to talk with him and to retrieve belongings she had left there months before. Hovatter apparently began to assault her and prevented her from leaving. She escaped through a window, but the defendant followed her out and continued to assail her outside. She finally fled to a nearby residence and called for help, according to the report.

Upon his release from prison, Hovatter will be forced to register as a sexually violent offender in any community in which he lives.

In another circuit court case, charges against an Oakland man were dismissed by the state's attorney. Joseph Allen DeWitt, 25, was arrested last November on sexual offense and assault charges, allegedly against a 15-year-old victim in August 1999.

"Additional interviews were held with the victim and witnesses, and some of their versions of the events changed," explained Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney. "It became apparent that the case could not be presented to a jury in a fashion that 12 people would agree that there was evidence beyond a reasonable doubt to gain a conviction."

SCOUT FINDS HIS FATHER'S FRIEND — Boy Scout Troop 22 of Oakland made an important trip earlier this month, traveling to Washington, D.C., to visit the nation's capital. While there, the boys went to the famous Vietnam War Memorial Wall. Before the trip, Scout Mike McConnell asked his father, Marine veteran Ken McConnell, the name of a Marine who went through basic training with McConnell at Paris Island in 1967. His name was Jerome Higgens, and he was killed in action. With that information, young McConnell, pictured as he points, did find Higgens's name. Vet McConnell said Higgens's cot was right across from his at boot camp. They were both "country boys," he said. Of the approximately 50 men in McConnell's basic training unit, 27 of them are memorialized on the wall. "I try to explain to my kids that war has been with humankind for a long time, and going from the USA to such a poor country and seeing people live in such squalor made me feel like I needed to do what I could to make the world a better place. I think God puts us on this earth and in situations to learn from them, to make something good out of bad situations. I had to come back, put it behind me, and realize that the best way I had to make the world a better place is by making myself a good person and raising my kids to be good people. Hopefully, with more and more people doing that, we can avoid wars altogether." The other scouts pictured above are Brendan Stephens, Dennis Garlitz, and Nathanial Stem. Troop 22, sponsored by the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, will honor veterans by marching in the Memorial Day Parade in Oakland, which will begin at 10 a.m. downtown. Various Charges Filed By Deputies, Arrests Made Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to 528 South Third Street, Oakland, around 3:30 a.m. Monday for a reported domestic assault.

According to police, Kerry Allan Hughes and the victim had been arguing through the night, and Hughes struck the victim in the face.

She was arrested for domestic assault and was transported to the Garrett County Detention Center, and was later released on her own recognizance.

Pa. Woman Hurt, Cited In Three-Vehicle Mishap

A Pennsylvania woman was injured in a three-vehicle collision Friday that was apparently caused when she drove across the centerline and into the oncoming lane of Garrett Highway at Keyser's Ridge, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

Agueda G. Manaloto, 47, Fayette City, was deemed at fault in the 11:36 a.m. accident, which resulted in her hospital stay at Cumberland Memorial Hospital, from which she has since been released. She was charged by Tfc. K. Stakem with failure to give full time and attention to her driving.

Manaloto was traveling northbound in the southbound lane of the highway

Woman ...jured In Wet Weather-Related Accident

Garrett County sheriff's deputies reported to the scene of an accident Tuesday evening that resulted in a Kitzmiller woman being transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

Mary Joyce Tasker, 36, was traveling westbound along Maryland Highway when, she stated, she hydroplaned on the roadway, lost control of her 1992 Dodge Shadow, and traveled off the roadway over an embankment. The vehicle overturned several times before coming to rest in the ditch.

Tasker was transported by Tri-Towns Rescue Squad to Memorial Hospital, where she is listed in stable condition. Bloomington Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

No charges were filed in the accident.

In another incident, a Swanton man was arrested early Thursday morning when sheriff's deputies responded to Cranesville Road north of the Yough Mountain Resort in reference to a subject passed out behind the wheel of a vehicle.

Upon arrival, deputies found Toby Wayne Tasker, 18, passed out in the driver's seat of a 1994 Chevrolet. According to police, the vehicle was found in the middle of the roadway with the lights on and the engine running.

Deputies woke Tasker and found alcohol in the vehicle. Tasker failed field sobriety tests and was arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI). Tasker was also charged with violation of a license restriction, failure to drive right of center, and a minor in possession of alcohol.

Tasker was later released pending trial.

A Mtn. Lake Park man was also arrested by deputies for DWI early Wednesday morning.

A sheriff's deputy and an Oakland police officer responded to the intersection of Route 135 and Weber Road and found Johnny Lee Tasker, 39, passed out behind the wheel of a Ford Bronco. The vehicle was located in the eastbound lane with the lights on and engine running. According to police, they found several empty beer cans in the vehicle.

After waking the driver, a strong odor of alcohol was detected on his breath and person, police said.

Tasker was subsequently released pending trial.

Governor Vetoes Edwards's Natural Gas Rights Bill

Governor Parris Glendening vetoed a total of 18 bills passed in this year's Maryland General Assembly, several of which would have affected Garrett County. Delegate George Edwards expressed anger this week about some of the vetoes, especially one dealing with the natural gas rights on farm land.

"By vetoing House Bill 376, the governor is basically penalizing our farmers in Accident and Pleasant Valley," Edwards said. The bill, which was sponsored by Edwards and passed by the lawmakers with little to no opposition, would have allowed farmers to join the state's Agriculture Land Preservation Foundation without having to get permission from any natural gas company that may own the gas underneath the property.

"A farmer owns the land, but any minerals underneath the surface may be owned by a mining company," Edwards said. "Any one who knows about the minerals in Garrett County knows that in the Accident-Cove area and in Pleasant Valley, the main resource is natural gas. The bill would have just made it easier and simpler for farmers to get into the land preservation program."

Glendening said he vetoed the bill because it "could lead to destructive and extended disputes between the foundation and land owners on one hand, and those who would seek to spoil the land with mining or gas extraction." In a letter to Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, the governor said that the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation is "at its maximum subscription level, and it is unnecessary to provide this type of incentive to induce property owners to conserve their land in this program."

He also said he was concerned about language in the bill that requires the foundation to make determinations regarding whether or not the exercise of the natural gas rights will interfere with the agricultural operation. "This provision could lead to many disputes involving the foundation, landowners, and the owners of natural gas rights," the governor wrote.

"These reasons are all asinine," Edwards said. "First of all, would it really cause a problem if the foundation had to make some decisions once in a while concerning natural gas rights? I don't think it should. Secondly, we are trying all the time to encourage farmers to join land preservation programs. It makes no sense to say that they are being 'induced' to join, and that anyone involved in this process would 'seek to spoil the land.' Texas Eastern has been pumping natural gas out of Accident land for years without any problems. It made no sense to veto this bill. In doing so, the governor is penalizing our farmers, no question about it."

Another bill vetoed by Glendening had to do with the speed limit for school buses. As the law stands, school buses cannot exceed 50 miles per hour, even on the highway where 65 is the posted limit. HB 976 would have repealed that law, allowing drivers to travel at the posted limit, but Glendening said he felt it was "unacceptable to potentially create a situation where a school bus filled with children is in an accident while traveling at 65 miles per hour." He cited the lack of seat restraints as compounding the danger.

Edwards said there is a danger in going too slow as well. "When a bus is traveling at 50 miles an hour on the interstate, there is a danger when every other vehicle is traveling at 65," he said.

Glendening also vetoed the much-publicized Senate Bill 124, the Firearms Safety and Accident Prevention and Education Program. This bill would have required all public school students to receive some form of gun safety training, from instructional films for youth to actual visits to shooting ranges for middle and high school students. The bill did not require specific teaching programs, only that responsible gun safety programs be included in all schools' health education curriculums.

"The bill as it was passed puts a state stamp of approval on the practice of taking middle and high school students to gun firing ranges to handle weapons," the governor said. "I support efforts to create responsible gun safety programs in our schools. However, this bill would create a clear appearance of the state encouraging young people to handle weapons and potentially furthering their interest in a time when we are trying to fight the scourge of gun violence."

Edwards said he felt the training would have had positive results. "I don't think it's such a bad idea to

PADDLERS CLEAN THEIR PLAYGROUND - The ninth annual Upper Youghiogheny River Clean-Up was held last week, involving 30-some volunteers, as well as support from various businesses and the mayor and town council of Friendsville. Several cubic yards of trash from the river and its banks were collected; however, organizers were pleased to report that the volume of refuse is significantly less than what it has been in years past. Hauling gathered trash in the raft above are Chad Ellison, left, and Jess Whittemore, both veteran paddlers and long-time volunteers with the clean-up. Details of the effort can be found in a letter to the editor from Whittemore in this section. The photo was provided courtesy of Wild Rivers Photo Service, Ohiopyle, Pa.

Oakland Man Sentenced For 1999 Assault

An Oakland man was convicted of second degree assault and handed a 25-day jail term despite entering a "not guilty" plea before visiting judge Timothy Finan in a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding.

Steven Joseph Eddy, 44, was handed a one-year sentence, all but 25 days of which was suspended, a $55 fine, and three years' supervised probation. His April 1999 arrest by the Maryland State Police came after a domestic assault at the Friendsville area home he was residing in at the time. Alcohol was a factor in his behavior, according to the charging statement.

In other district court news, Timothy Allen Welch, 35, Mtn. Lake Park, was handed a 30-day sentence by Garrett County Judge Ralph Burnett after he pleaded guilty to trespassing. Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested Welch in March after several incidents of trespassing at the Loch Lynn home of his ex-wife, one of which had ended with an expressed warning by a deputy not to return.

Heath Andrew Snyder, 20, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to carrying out a felony theft scheme and was handed a 90-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation, ordered to complete 40 hours of community service, and required to pay $552 in restitution to his victim. Allegany County sheriff's deputies arrested Snyder in March after he had taken a sum of cash and a debit card from the Grantsville home of a relative, and subsequently made several cash withdrawals from ATMs in several other states.

Thomas Edward Parker Jr., 26, was handed a stet ruling with an order to complete 40 hours of community service as a result of a marijuana possession charge. Parker's August arrest by state police came after a trooper had approached a group of subjects who were drinking in the parking lot of Uno Restaurant. The trooper discovered a pair of bags of suspected marijuana lying next to the group on wet grass, and Parker admitted that one belonged to him.

David Erik Peterson, 22, Morgantown, W.Va., was handed a pair of stet rulings with a requirement to complete 40 hours of community service in connection with charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. State police stopped his vehicle along Garrett Highway near Deep Creek Lake in November for speeding and an equipment violation, and a subsequent vehicle search uncovered a film canister containing suspected marijuana in a dashboard compartment.

Shwayne Mitchell Bonnett, 28, Ellerslie, was handed a stet ruling on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. His November arrest came after state police investigated a suspicious occupied vehicle parked after hours in the lot of the Hilltop Exxon station along National Highway. Upon speaking with the occupants the trooper noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana, and a vehicle search subsequently uncovered suspected marijuana and several items of paraphernalia.

Steven George Ferguson, 38, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling by Judge Finan on charges of fourth degree burglary and disturbing the peace. His March arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from an incident when he reportedly entered a neighbor's home and verbally abused her in a dispute over her children's behavior.

Donald Carl Dumire, 42, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling by Judge Burnett on a violation of an ex parte charge. He had been arrested by Oakland City police officers for allegedly following and cursing his wife while a court order banning all contact was on file.

25-YEAR OLD TIME CAPSULE TO BE OPENED — Friendsville Elementary School will be celebrating "Through the Years" tomorrow, Friday, May 25, at 5 p.m., as it opens a time capsule that was buried on the school grounds 25 years ago by the students who attended the school in 1976. The "Fun Factory" will be there, along with food, games, and door prizes. A talent show, trivia contest, '70s fashion show, and Karaoke are also being planned. A slide presentation will be held, including pictures from the past along with pictures of the present. The current students will be adding items to the time capsule, which will be opened in 25 years. In the photo are the students from the class of 1975.

Accident Man Charged With Domestic Assault

A Saturday evening domestic altercation at a Friendsville tavern resulted in the arrest of an Accident man by Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

James Ora VanSickle, 52, allegedly argued with his girlfriend at Ken Friend's Tavern, and reportedly struck her several times in the face during the course of the incident. He left the scene but was apprehended a short time later by Tpr. G. Becker, and arrested on a charge of second degree assault. VanSickle was subsequently released after he posted a $500 bond as set by a district court commissioner.

An early-morning traffic stop in Friendsville resulted in the arrest of a West Virginia man on a variety of charges.

James Nicholas Hampton, 32, Albright, was stopped along Friendsville Road just south of First Street at 12:28 a.m. for passing on a double yellow line and for an equipment violation. Tfc. B.A. Bond initially arrested Hampton for driving on a suspended license, then an ensuing search of his 1997 Chevrolet Suburban uncovered a quantity of suspected marijuana, a smoking pipe, and rolling papers.

Hampton was later released on his own recognizance after appearing before a district court commissioner.

Good Judgment, or a Slap?

Among Governor Parris Glendening's pet projects is his Smart Growth program, which promotes land preservation and the proper use of land, while regulating urban sprawl. While there may be some troublesome aspects of the program, the philosophy behind it is certainly worthy.

Thus the governor's veto of a bill introduced by our own Delegate George Edwards, and passed without hesitation by the state legislature, seems to fly in the face of his own philosophy about land preservation. House Bill 376 would have allowed farmers to place their land with the state's Agriculture Land Preservation Foundation without having to get permission from the natural gas company that may own the gas under the property. Currently, farm owners must get said permission before being granted admission into the program, which provides a variety of tax incentives and a guarantee that the land will continue to be used only for agricultural purposes.

The governor said that the bill could create disputes between the landowner, the foundation, and the gas company that "would seek to spoil the land with gas extraction." However, the extraction of natural gas in one of the least intrusive mining operations there is. Texas Eastern has been extracting gas from huge areas under northern Garrett County farmland for years, with no damage whatsoever to the property.

Farmers are hesitant as it is to try to sign up their land with the foundation. Having to first work with the gas companies makes it more cumbersome, and discouraging, for them. Does the governor want ag land preservation or not?

The governor gives other equally lame reasons for vetoing this bill (see story on front page).

He also vetoed another Edwards bill that would have allowed school buses to travel up to 65 miles per hour on the interstates. Presently such buses are not permitted to travel in excess of 50 mph, even on interstate highways, which can actually pose some different safety hazards.

Edwards is, frankly, livid with the governor over these vetoes, especially the aforementioned one. Garrett County has more natural gas reserves than does any other county in the state. We have to wonder if the governor's action is more a slap to George Edwards than it is good judgment.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate the Hardys on the wonderful, well-organized horse show they ran at the Nemacolin Equestrian center. They where not only able to attract the horsy set, but also many non-horsy spectators, who had a wonderful time. This is important, as I am sure many of my equestrian friends will agree.

Horses are becoming big business in both Garrett and Preston counties. Shows like Nemacolin and Mountaintop are a tremendous asset to promote this versatile sport. Maybe we can get The Republican to cover some of these events. You are one of the only area papers that does focus on a variety of interesting events, not only baseball and football. Please keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Carol Burdick

To the Editor:

My wife and I owned a condo in Deep Creek about 22 years ago, but let it go for various reasons. In 1999, we returned to Deep Creek for a vacation and found that, while the original charm was still present, many physical items were improved — so much so that we purchased a home in 2000.

Unfortunately, my wife fell upon hard luck last September and we needed some extraordinary medical attention. After consulting with Dr. Tom Johnson, we were directed to the county health department, in particular, the Home Health Group. What a pleasant surprise. This has been the most wonderful experience, both professionally and personally, one could ask for. One particular nurse has been handling the case, and she deserves much of the credit; however, she stresses that the service is rendered as a "team service." In addition to the many improvements we found when returning to Deep Creek, this experience has been the icing on the cake.

Since we have lived in several places in the northeastern and southeastern United States, we have a very good basis for a comparison to Garrett County. Our commissioners are doing a lot of things right, and this case in point is the county health department. Their wisdom and foresight is evident.

Thank you, commissioners.

Sincerely,
Delores and Bill Cantees

To the Editor:

The cool and cloudy weather was warmed and brightened Wednesday the 16th of May by the loving intentions of over 30 ecology-minded individuals who took a day out of their lives to make the banks of the Youghiogheny and Bear Creek a little cleaner. The support for this effort came from a widely diverse group including local retailers, river outfitters, private boaters, whitewater institutions and clubs, state and local government, and a hydro electric company, as well as a few local foot soldiers who picked up garbage along the waters edge of the Friendsville town park.

After collecting several cubic yards of trash, I must say we have made a significant dent in the amount of garbage over the years. We were hard-pressed to see anything. We had to get out on the banks and hunt for it, yet just a few years ago there was an abundance in plain view. Visitors are constantly mentioning how clean the Upper section of the Yough is. Other sections of the Yough and its tributaries need help, though. I would like to see more help, possibly from fishing groups, hunters, or anyone else who uses and enjoys the great rivers and streams of Garrett County.

Maybe next year we can advertise the opportunity to partake in a county-wide effort. Mountain Surf Inc., the organizer of this modest ninth annual event, will continue to spearhead the tradition. I hope the spirit of river clean-up will spread to everyone, not just on this one day, but to Tom, who throws his cigarette butt on the ground, Dick, who tosses the pop bottle out of the window of his vehicle while coming home from work, and Harry (you can't forget Harry), the one who wants to save a buck and throw his tires and washing machines over the bank in a secluded wilderness area instead of taking his trash to the dump. Harry, you left your fingerprints too! Come on! Just a little effort or, let's say, restraint and better judgment from everyone will make a huge difference, I have seen it work with just a few of us.

We can be proud of the Yough. Just last year I saw with my own eyes a very healthy eco-system. Animals, including brown, rainbow, and brook trout, three otters frolicking together in Sang Run like in a Walt Disney movie, beaver, mink, bald eagle, osprey, albino deer, black bear, snapping turtle, timber rattler, hellbender, and the list goes on and on. If you travel only 20 miles west from here into Wild Wonderful West Virginia, you will find a mine acid devastated region which may take longer than many generations to clean up. A group of whitewater boaters out of Albright and Kingwood, W.Va., organized "Friends of The Cheat" to do just that. Dave Baker, with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, credits Garrett County's good fortune to the ecology-minded industries, and the Maryland Department of Environment and Fisheries. Monitoring the natural resources and enforcing the laws, which protect the environment, are a significant reason why our Yough is world-class clean.

I want to thank those who helped. Lohr Distributors of Oakland, Friendsville Discount Liquors, and S&S Market, who supplied well appreciated drinks and munchies; Mountain Surf Inc., the organizers; Mountain Streams & Trails; the Trading Post and White Water Adventures, river outfitters out of Ohiopyle, Pa.; Precision Rafting, a Friendsville based river outfitter and American Whitewater members. Reliant Energy, which supplied the water release which made this section of river navigable; the Town of Friendsville; Becky from Wild River Photo; The Republican newspaper; and last, but not least, our foot patrol friends, Arlinda King, Laurel Ellison, and Carrie Kelley, who walked the Friendsville town park area. We need to pat them on the back and encourage their example to grow.

Sincerely,
Jess Whittemore

Vetoes Bill

have young people learn how powerful a gun can be, and for them to be taught by adults who are well-trained in gun safety," the delegate said.

The governor said he was troubled by the provision that allowed a "community or civic organization" to work in conjunction with the school boards on the program, "raising the specter," he said, "of the National Rifle Association [NRA] taking bus loads of 13-year-old boys and girls off to a firing range for a day of shooting.

"Taking such a sensitive and important program out of the counties' hands and turning it over to an organization such as the NRA is to the issue of gun safety and education," Glendening concluded.

A veto that affects a local group was that of HB 1007, another Edwards-sponsored bill. It would have postponed the date by which the Maryland Department of Resources (DNR) must issue the Deep Creek Lake recreation and land use plan. Edwards put the bill in to give the Deep Creek Lake Advisory Board not an appropriate response more time to finish its task.

"The governor was three months late in appointing the members of the advisory board," Edwards said. "This just would have given us a guaranteed extension for the due date."

State officials with the DNR apparently informed the governor that the extra time was not needed, so he said he vetoed the bill "for technical reasons."

View From My Window

ASCENSION AND PEACE

Today is the feast of the Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ. In February 2000 A.D., my son and I visited the traditional site of the Ascension atop the Mount of Olives, just outside the city walls of Jerusalem. There is an actual stone with the supposed footprint of our Lord. I kissed it as a sign of reverence, either because it is the actual spot or because it has been revered as such for the past 1,700 years.

The building that stands over the spot is a mosque. On the day of our visit, there was a steady stream of Christian pilgrims who considered the event and person commemorated.

I have said to Nick and to others for the past several months that we did well to make that trip a year ago. Today his mother would not let him go, and perhaps I might not go myself. Peace, even the mere cessation of violence, is a tenuous business in that part of the world.

There is also something biblically authentic about violence in Jerusalem. The Romans occupied it during the time of Jesus. One of the Old Testament pilgrim prayers for going up to Jerusalem included the admonition "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem" (Ps. 122:6). That city has been continuously two contradictory things over the past 3,000 years, a symbol of peace and a place of warfare.

In my mind's eye, I move back and forth from that scene of Jerusalem, a foreign place steeped in history, and the scene outside my window where I watch the sly, elegant catbird flit from privet hedge to wineberry canes, where springtime is gentle and inviting.

The 19th century English churchman John Keble saw the second kind of scene when he wrote about the Ascension: "Soft cloud that while the breeze of May/ Chants her glad matins in the leafy arch,/ Draw'st thy bright veil across the heavenly way,/ Meet pavement for an Angel's glorious march."

For all the beauty of those lines, they invite us into a false sense of security. The angel that marches into the scene is an easygoing angel, the kind that might not frighten us too much, who might not need to say on first meeting us, "Fear not!" I am not sure if Keble recognized that tension in his pastorale, for his poem resolves in another direction.

He was aware that his eye was in a different place from his soul. "My soul is envious of mine eye," he wrote, "That it should soar and glide with thee so fast,/ The while my groveling thoughts half buried lie,/ Or lawless roam around this earthly waste."

Had he been on the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem instead of an English garden when he wrote those words, he would have surely written otherwise. The wide ranging scene in the Judean hill country has a desolate aspect compared to the verdure of the rain-drenched English countryside. In Jerusalem "this earthly waste" is ready to hand both in the landscape and the politics.

The body of Ascension hymns mostly focus on the wonder of the Lord's resurrection and ascent into heaven. Though few writers capture the beauty of it with the evocative power of Keble's poetry, the theme is much the same. They stand with the 11 apostles, who "looked steadfastly toward heaven" (Acts 1:10).

The angels of St. Luke's account in the book of Acts are more dramatic than the angelic image conjured by Keble's poem. "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" the King James Bible renders their question. In modern English I take that to mean "Hey, you! Don't just stand there! Do something!"

The angels made clear that Jesus was coming back, so they didn't need to stand there with their tongues hanging out. The apostles got the message, and went back to the walled city of Jerusalem. They couldn't figure out what to do on their own. Ten days later they got some help, and then they got going.

The strife in Jerusalem today reminds Christians everywhere that we shouldn't just stand there, that we need to do something. Peace is precious, but evidently not precious enough, because by our actions we value a great deal else more than we value it.

You don't have to live in Jerusalem of 2001 A.D. to know that. The fight there is a family fight, and anyone who lives in a family — which is to say everyone — knows just how bitter a family fight can be.

I hope to return to Jerusalem some day and stoop to kiss that rock again from which — by tradition — our Lord ascended. In the meantime, I must work for peace here while praying for peace there, and so must we all.

THE BEST LAID PLANS

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Planning, lists, phone calls, deals, strategies, and lots of laundering. That's what it takes for a couple to get away for the weekend, to actually farm out the kids and leave town for two nights. What a herculean effort! People casually say, "You should take a vacation," and our friends living downstate say, "When the heck are you going to come see our house? We bought it two years ago and you still haven't given us a housewarming present." So two weeks ago, after much wheeling and dealing, my husband John and I actually got out of here for a few days. But you know about those "best laid plans," right?

I decided we should go visit our friends Ben and Heather Robb in Sykesville (that town seemed appropriate for us). Ben used to write for this paper, but he has moved on to a bigger and better desk at the state retirement office in Baltimore. The Robbs have a child-free home with a pool table and two pleasant cats. I asked two questions: "May we sleep in both mornings?" and "Do you have coffee?" The answer to both was yes, so I put the plans in motion.

First we had to take care of the children. Because the long winter and cool spring has fostered a perpetual boxing match among our three sons, I thought it best to split everyone up. There was much rejoicing over that idea. Alex and Michael stayed here with family and friends, and we dropped Robert off in Clear Spring with my sister Kathryn and her husband. Luckily all these babysitters are laboring under the delusion that our children are well-behaved, nice boys. Just kidding. They really are good, but they are especially agreeable when there is no annoying brother around brandishing a clenched fist.

So the children were checked off the list. The laundry still waited, though, if we wanted to wear something other than sweat pants and holey T-shirts all weekend. And we needed directions, phone numbers, and time tables. I got it all, and we actually drove out of Oakland only 30 minutes later than what was noted on my itinerary. (John doesn't get my love for list-making. He rolls his eyes and sighs. After 12 years of marriage, I've learned to ignore.)

So we were happily on our way, listening to our own music with no one in the back complaining about it. In fact, the silence behind our seats in the van was odd. Almost eerie. But I shook off "eerie" and chose "peaceful." Another sound changed all that, though.

"How come you're talking like Demi Moore?" I asked John. His usual mid-tenor voice had mysteriously dropped to bass, punctuated with an occasional total loss of sound.

"I don't know," he croaked. "My throat's not sore — I just seem to be losing my voice." Uh-oh. By the time we got to Ben and Heather's, he was barely audible. But we ignored it, happy to see the folks, play pool, consume beer and chips, and not have to tell a single little boy to please brush his teeth and go to bed. We went to bed late, and I did notice that lying next to John was similar to cozying up to molten lava. He had the shivers, but had forgotten to bring the freshly laundered sweatshirt. Dope slap.

The next morning my eyes popped open at 7:15, of course, and I wondered about the boys. So much for sleeping in. But since it was a rare opportunity, I did force myself to doze for an hour. Very sweet. John woke with a splitting headache, but said little about it. I was standing in the bathroom thinking that I would feed him the aspirin I had packed (along with the Band-Aids, of course). As I lifted my leg to tie my shoe, my lower back completely seized up. I couldn't move, and I tried not to scream. Pain curled across my back and wrapped around both hipbones. I stood absolutely still for what seemed a long time. Finally I straightened up, working hard not to faint. The pain subsided a bit, and I was able to move. The little spasm, however, had done its job. I was extremely sore for the rest of the weekend. I don't know why it happened — John is the one with the back problems, not me. But there I was, hobbling around like an old woman. This was definitely not on the itinerary.

So we were off to the Inner Harbor, John with a fever and me with a backache. But we talked and laughed and didn't really notice for quite a while that the traffic had come to a standstill. Playing the role of country mouse to Ben's city rodent, we teased about the "benefits" of urban life. He defended his city, swearing that "this never happens." Well, it happened. We were in the car for nearly two hours. Come to find out, there was a parade in the city. For Mother's Day. Well, happy M.D. to me.

At last we were at the harbor. What a great place. Ships were docked nearby, music drifted through the air, and the place was teeming with all sorts of people. We saw a 3-D IMAX film, Into the Deep, which was amazing, albeit a little nauseating. A museum display of Titanic history was next. I asked John how he was feeling. "Queasy," said Demi. Queasy? John is never queasy. Oh, he gets headachy, backachy, and cranky, but never queasy. I'm the chairperson of queasy. This was not on the list. We viewed the Titanic history until John's queasiness, combined with a bit of distress over the gruesomeness of the display, moved us to leave. It's difficult to read those tales of horror without thinking of one's own children, especially when they happen to be far away. As we left, I remembered that Kathryn was taking Rob kayaking on the Potomac that day. Yikes!

So the weekend came to a close with some points for us and some for the "vacation imps" that apparently haunt planners like me. John's temperature rose above 100 and my back hurt. But we did have fun, mostly just laughing with Ben and Heather and knowing that we didn't have to get anyone to a T-ball game or Sunday school for just one weekend. Things didn't go quite as planned, but we did get to sleep in, and the boys did hug each other when we all reunited. Thank goodness for good friends, good times, and piles of aspirin.

SHREK

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:27 - Released 5/18/01

Cartoon animated fairy tales are nothing new in the family market. But Shrek, the twisted, off-the-wall comedy starring the voices of Mike Myers, Eddie Murphy, and Cameron Diaz, is anything but conventional. As has been the tradition with animated features distributed by Dreamworks SKG, this film may not be considered perfectly appropriate for little children (a fact which may annoy some parents who think that any cartoon should be a children's film), but it is altogether hip and clever, and the computer-generated 3-D animation is impeccably crisp and colorful. It is directed by Andrew Adamson and Vicky Jenson (their joint debut), and written by Ted Elliott and Terry Rossio (the team behind The Road to El Dorado), and several others, based on the book by William Steig.

I don't know if the story of Shrek is supposed to have taken place a long time ago, or in a galaxy far, far away, or simply once upon a time, but it is set in the mythical kingdom of Duloc, which is populated by every fairy-tale character you can think of, from Snow White to Pinnochio to the Three Little Pigs. Living alone in a remote swamp is Shrek (voice of Myers), who happens to be an ogre. Sporting a large green frame, a big, bulbous nose, and strange, trumpet-shaped ears, he is not particularly attractive in the classic sense. As a result of this (or maybe it's his thick Scottish accent), he is usually not accepted by those around him, and so he has learned to keep to himself. This is why he so jealously guards the swamp he calls home, sending would-be intruders away with an impressive growl and a gnashing of teeth.

The central village of Duloc, which bears a striking resemblance to a similar "magic kingdom" run by a famous large-eared mouse, is presided over by the selfish and diminutive Lord Farquaad (John Lithgow), who harbors an open antipathy for fairy tales. Speaking from the courtyard of his very tall, non-descript castle, which resembles the Vehicle Assembly Building at NASA, Farquaad issues a proclamation banishing all the fairy-tale characters to the very same swamp that Shrek calls home. One of these creatures is a talking donkey (Murphy), who befriends the ogre and follows him to Farquaad's castle to contest the Lord's decision. After a WWF-style fight between Shrek and the royal guards, Farquaad decides he is stalwart enough to fight the dragon that guards the tower where the fair Princess Fiona resides. So a deal is made: if Shrek rescues the princess for Farquaad to marry, his swamp will be returned to him without so much as a dwarf left on the premises (who knows what sort of "final solution" is planned for the multitude of hapless creatures). But when Shrek and his donkey finally meet Princess Fiona (Diaz), she turns out to be very different from what they (or you or I) expect.

Shrek is a fun movie, brimming with satire and in-jokes (and a fantastic cover of the Monkees' "I'm A Believer" at the end), but it also features the kind of potty/bodily function humor that has become so popular of late. Again, this may turn off parents who expect a squeaky-clean children's movie, but Dreamworks has never adhered to that mold. There are some truly twisted jokes, but in the end the film gives us a self-esteem building message much more up-to-date than those of traditional fairy tales. Myers's interpretation of the title character is fun and amiable, even though the part was originally meant for the late Chris Farley, who apparently recorded the dialogue before he died. Murphy is his humorous, show-stealing self, and Diaz is properly cool and self-sufficient for a modern-day heroine. ★★★★

ANGEL EYES

Rated R - Running Time: 1:42 - Released 5/18/01

Angel Eyes, written by Gerald Di Pego and directed by Luis Mandoki, is one of those "big secret" films. You know, the kind where a character has some deep, dark secret, some long-past emotional scar that prevents him or her from opening up to anyone, including the audience, until the triumphant breakthrough scene where we all finally learn the reason why he or she is such an insufferable jerk. I have to admit I don't care much for "big secret" movies, and this is one of them. What's worse, this film boasts not one but two such characters (played by Jennifer Lopez and James Caviezel), and thanks to the pandering nature of Di Pego's script and Mandoki's direction, it takes them so long to reveal their psychological troubles that by the time they do, we have long since lost interest in whether they live of die, let alone whether they are able to finally make it in the sack.

Anyone who saw The Wedding Planner has seen Lopez's characterization for this movie. Her character, Sharon Pogue, is a beautiful, reclusive, single woman with a hard body and an attractive but seldom-seen smile, who would like to fall in love but can't let her guard down enough to do so. The only difference is, this time she's a Chicago cop instead of a wedding planner, and is at odds with her screwy family because of a history of abuse. Her romantic opposite, played by Caviezel, is simply known as "Catch" since the terrible accident which claimed the lives of his wife and child. If you've seen Pay It Forward, then you've seen his characterization: he walks around the city like the drug addict he played in that film, dressed in a long, dark coat and peering scarily at Sharon through coffee shop windows. I think it's called "stalking." But the reason he's following her is because she was the first responder to his accident over a year ago. She administered the first aid that saved his life, and he looked into her eyes...and recognized her from MTV. But she doesn't remember him. So we see them meet (he saves her from a gun-toting thug), they have a few dates, annoy each other (and us) with their secretiveness, and begin the long trek toward that inevitable revelation scene.

Lopez is not a bad actress, but it's hard to assess her talent based on second-rate films like this and Planner. Playing a character who is unwilling to come out of her shell is difficult to do without alienating the audience, and she doesn't seem to be able to pull it off very well. The same goes for Caveziel — his style is so subtle it's hard to see any kind of character behind Catch. He's just sort of a cryptic zombie, doing mildly strange things and speaking very little. If we don't get to know him, we can't get to like him, and we don't really get to know him until far too late. If Mandoki spent more time showing us what makes these people tick (like during the first hour when virtually nothing happens), on their histories and the nature of their crises, we might be more inclined to root for them as a couple. But he doesn't. So we aren't. ★★½
